THE following Addresses have been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Addresses His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's faithful and devoted subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Royal Burgh of Dingwall, in Common Council assembled, beg leave to give vent to our feelings on the present mournful occasion, and to mingle our tears of condolence with those of a loyal and affectionate people. Estimating, as we do, the public and private virtues of your Royal Highness's much-lamented daughter, who was the pride, the darling, and the hope of an admiring public, we cannot be but deeply affected at the premature loss of so much excellence. No wonder that an event, at once so sad and unexpected, should have cast a gloom of sorrow, bordering on despondency, over the wide extended population of the British empire. That the Father of Mercies may alleviate the poignant grief that overwhelms the breast of your Royal Highness, and soothe the sorrows of her illustrious and now widowed consort; that He may also be pleased to avert every calamitous consequence that might result to the nation from such a heart-rending dispensation, is the earnest prayer of His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Burgh of Dingwall.

Signed, in name and by appointment of the Town Council, this 27th day of December 1817, by Alex. Muckenzie, Provost.

[Transmitted by Hugh Innes, Esq. M. P. and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

WE, His Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Burgh of Kirkby in Kendal, beg leave to offer our most sincere and heartfelt condolence on the late melancholy event, which has deprived your Royal Highness of an only and beloved child, and overwhelmed the United Kingdom in the deepest sorrow.

We assure your Royal Highness, that we fully participate in your domestic afflictions, and feel that awful dispensation of Providence which has torn from you a daughter so virtuous and exemplary; and although unwilling that this humble testimony of our sympathy should recall the pangs of parental anguish, we should do injustice to ourselves were we not to declare, that on this mournful and calamitous occasion we have suffered the affliction that springs from the nearest and dearest relation.

As a national calamity, the late momentous occurrence cannot be too deeply deplored; but if we might presume to offer any alleviation to the sorrows of your Royal Highness, we trust it may be found in the zealous attachment to the House of Brunswick, so signally evinced in the united effusions of grief poured forth by all classes of His Majesty's subjects. We pray and trust that your Royal Highness may have power to bear up under this tremendous shock; and that you may long enjoy the blessing of health, and continue to be the guardian and protector of His Majesty's dominions.

Given under the common seal of the Burgh of Kirkby in Kendal, the 10th day of January 1818, Jonathan Hodgson, Mayor.

[Transmitted by Richard Howard, Esq. the Recorder, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble and respectful Address of the Senatus Aademicus of the University of Edinburgh.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the Principal and Professors of the University of Edinburgh, approach your Royal Highness with profound respect, and beg leave to present the expression of our heartfelt grief and condolence on the recent affliction which, by the death of your illustrious daughter, the Princess Charlotte Augusta, has fallen on your Royal Highness, the
