THE following Address has been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Address His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of Hanover, &c. &c. &c.

WE, the most Excellent the President and the Most Noble the Members of the Legislative Assembly of the United States of the Ionian Islands have learnt, with the deepest regret, the unfortunate demise of the daughter of the Protecting Sovereign, to whom we owe so many obligations.

We are fully convinced your Royal Highness has already experienced the most grateful consolation, which so unexpected a calamity could admit of, in the condolence and patriotic feelings of the British Nation, whose sorrows will keep pace with those of your Royal Highness and Family, on this most melancholy event.

It is, nevertheless, a duty, and a most sacred one; we owe to ourselves and our country, to state, that, if such be the feelings of every British subject, they are most fully participated in by us, who are under the immediate and exclusive protection of your Royal Highness; and we even flatter ourselves that general as these feelings must be in the breasts of the natural-born subjects of His Majesty, we shall, however, vie with them in the sincerity of the sentiments of condolence, which we now lay at the foot of the Protecting Throne: nor do we yield to them in fervent and most anxious wishes for the health and happiness of your Royal Person and Family, through whom we enjoy our present prospects of a stable and beneficial Government, and in whose increasing welfare and happiness (notwithstanding the unavoidable calamities incident to human nature in every situation) we place our hopes of the prosperity, well-being, and final splendour of our own limited, but patriotic country.

Corfu, 17th December 1817.

[Transmitted by Lieutenant-General the Right Honourable Sir Thomas Maitland, G. C. B. and presented by Earl Bathurst.]

PRESENT,

His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT in Council.

And whereas it is expedient and necessary, that provision be made for fully supplying the inhabitants and fishermen of the Island of Newfoundland, for the ensuing season, with bread, flour, Indian corn, and live stock, His Royal Highness the Prince Regent doth thereupon, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, and by and with the advice of His Majesty's Privy Council,
