THE following Address has been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Leopold of Saxe Cobourg ; which Address His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously :

To Field-Marshal His Serene Highness Leopold George Frederick, Prince of Saxe Cobourg of Saalfeld, K. G. and G. C. B.

The humble and dutiful Address of His Majesty's Council, Mayor and Aldermen, Magistrates, Clergy, Frecholders, and principal Inhabitants of the Colony of Sierra Leone.

WE His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, His Majesty's Council, Mayor, and Aldermen, Magistrates, Clergy, Frecholders, and principal Inhabitants of the Colony of Sierra Leone, deeply affected by the great calamity with which it has pleased the Omnipotent to visit your Serene Highness and the British realms, respectfully presume to offer to your Serene Highness, the assurance that we most sensibly participate in the heart-rending affliction which your Serene Highness has sustained in the loss of a cherished companion, the glory and the hope of the united empire.

As men we sympathise with your Serene Highness in the loss of a wife, blooming in the pride of youth, of beauty, of accomplishment, at the moment when you fondly anticipated a pledge of your mutual love and an heir to the virtues of his illustrious parents.

As subjects, we sympathise in the loss of a Princess, the ornament of her station, the example of her sex, the pride of her country, and through whom we hoped that the line of our beloved Monarchs would, with their sceptre and their glories, be transmitted to an-endless posterity.

In a calamity thus overwhelming, we see no ray of light from which to derive or offer consolation, except in the mercy and protection of Him in whose hands are the hearts of kings : that He may bestow upon your Serene Highness that fortitude which is indispensable under so a gonizing a catastrophe, and which He alone can give, is our most earnest prayer.

Signed at the request and on behalf of the meeting. Edward Fitzgerald,
Chief Justice.
