To His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble Address of the Justices of Peace for the Liberty of His Majesty's Tower of London, in Session assembled.

WE, the Justices of Peace for the Liberty of His Majesty's Tower of London, beg leave most humbly to approach your Royal Highness, and most respectfully and most sincerely to offer our condolence. Feeling with poignant sorrow the deep affliction with which your Royal Highness is overwhelmed, by the irreparable loss that you have sustained by the death of your royal Mother, our most gracious and most excellent Queen, whose virtues have been the source of happiness to her august Family, a brilliant example to the whole kingdom, and whose death we deplore as a great national calamity.

Under the pressure of such severe grief as your Royal Highness must inevitably sustain, we presume most humbly to sympathise in your sorrows; and fervently hope, that your Royal Highness may possess health long to enjoy the gratitude of a nation, who profoundly participate in your Royal Highness's affliction with the strongest feelings of duty and affection,

By order of the Court,
Daniel Williams, Chairman.

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.
SIR,

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the High Constable and Inhabitants of the ancient Town of Brixthelmston, in the County of Sussex, with the deepest affliction approach your Royal Highness to express our most unfeigned and cordial condolence on the late melancholy event, the death of Her Majesty. an event which has deprived the country of the highest ornament of female virtue.

In this affliction we humbly bend with gratitude to that All Gracious Being, who for more than half a century has been pleased to vouchsafe to these realms the blessing of an example, which has not only animated the motives to virtue but enlarged the power of religion. These blessings aided as they were by the pious attentions of your Royal Highness to Her late Majesty on all occasions, cannot in our minds but produce the happiest consolations.—Consolations which we trust will long survive the grief with which we are now oppressed, and ultimately tend to strengthen and support those moral and religious principles, which alone are the true foundation of public prosperity and private happiness.

Signed, by the High Constable in his own name, and on behalf of all the Inhabitants of the Town of Brixthelmston.

Richd. Bodle.
