

The London Gazette.

Published by Authority.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1818.

Lord Chamberlain's Office, December 8, 1818.

ORDERS for the Court's change of mourning, on Sunday the 3d January next, for Her late Majesty, of blessed memory, viz.

The Ladies to wear black silk, fringed or plain linen or muslin, white gloves, black and white shoes, fans and tippets, white necklaces and earrings, no diamonds.

Undress—White or grey lustrings, tabbies or damasks.

The Gentlemen to wear black, full trimmed, plain or fringed linen, black swords and buckles.

Undress—Grey frocks.

The Court to change the mourning further on Sunday the 24th of January next, viz.

The Ladies to wear black silk or velvet, coloured ribbons, fans and tippets.

The Gentlemen to continue in black, to wear coloured swords and buckles.

And on Sunday the 14th of February next, the Court to go out of mourning.

Heralds College, December 19, 1818.

In reference to the order for a general mourning for Her late Majesty the Queen of blessed memory, which was announced in the Gazette of Saturday the 21st ultimo;

These are to give notice, that upon the present melancholy occasion, it is not desired or expected that the public should appear in mourning after the 29th instant.

HENRY HOWARD-MOLYNEUX-HOWARD,
Deputy Earl Marshal.

THE following Addresses, having been transmitted to Viscount Sidmouth, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, by the several persons whose names are respectively subjoined to each Address, have been presented by His Lordship to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, who was pleased to receive the same very graciously:

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT,
Earl of Chester.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, your Royal Highness's loyal subjects, the Inhabitants of the City of Chester, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness with our most dutiful expressions of affection and regard.

We beg leave to join in the general expression of public feeling which has been displayed by all ranks of His Majesty's loyal subjects on the lamented death of our venerable Queen, and to assure your Royal Highness of our sincere participation in the common grief.

As Citizens of a great nation—we condole with your Royal Highness on the magnitude of our public loss—amidst the calamity which, in common with your Royal Highness and your august Family, we all deplore the illness of our venerable Monarch—we looked up to the partner of his throne with loyal attachment, and we viewed with delight and satisfaction the unaltered affection with which she watched over his sickness,—the zeal with which she promoted the objects which were always nearest to his heart,—the steady and firm support which she gave to the virtuous and good,—and the bright example of morality and religion which she displayed to the nation at large,—an example which shone with unclouded lustre in the character of our venerable Monarch, and endeared him to all the true friends of religion and virtue.

As individuals—we sympathize in your private affliction, and we join with your Royal Highness in all the feelings of grief which so great a domestic calamity must inspire,—feelings which spring from the contemplation of the exalted character of your Royal Mother in all the relations of private life; and we viewed with real pleasure the filial solicitude and unwearied attention with which your Royal Highness and your august Family watched over her during her long and lingering sickness,