

mother must have awakened in the heart of so affectionate a son.

The tender and unremitting attention shewn by your Royal Highness during Her Majesty's protracted sufferings, and at her last moments, will ever be regarded as a signal proof of your filial piety and love, and cannot but be an unailing source of comfort to your Royal Breast.

The high distinctions of piety and virtue thus displayed in the most exalted stations around the Throne, will endear your illustrious House and His Majesty's Government to all classes of our beloved Sovereign's dutiful and faithful subjects, and to none more than to the inhabitants of the town and neighbourhood of Birmingham.

On the behalf and at the request of the Magistrates, Clergy, Merchants, Manufacturers, and other Inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood of Birmingham, the 11th day of December 1818,

Edward Thomason, High Bailiff.

[Transmitted by D. S. Dugdale, Esq. M. P. and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Anglesey, convened by the High Sheriff of the said County.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the county of Anglesey, beg leave humbly to offer to your Royal Highness our sincere condolence on the lamented demise of Her Majesty the Queen.

From the affectionate and truly filial solicitude with which your Royal Highness watched Her Majesty's painful and protracted decline, we derive a most pleasing assurance that as a Mother Her Majesty's conduct was not less endearing than it was exemplary as a Wife. Our venerable Sovereign is, alas, insensible to his loss, but those tender assiduities by which Her late Majesty gladdened the happier and solaced the gloomier days of Her Royal Consort, will ever endear her memory to the British nation.

Nor will the late Queen's memory be cherished with less grateful recollections on account of the manner in which Her Majesty discharged the duties of her exalted station. Called at an early age to the British Throne, on which Her Majesty sat longer, and in more difficult times, than any of her royal predecessors, the late Queen so conducted herself as ever to maintain its appropriate decorum, dignity, and constitutional importance.

Signed, by order of the Meeting,

J. Price, High Sheriff of the County of Anglesey.

[Transmitted by the Marquess of Anglesey, K. G. and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

WE, His Majesty's loyal and attached subjects, the Mayor, Bailiffs, Burgesses, and other inhabitants of the Borough and Town of Carnarvon, request permission to approach your Royal Highness with the respectful tender of our condolence on the death of Her Majesty, our late Most Gracious Queen.

We should under any circumstances think it our duty to offer our humble tribute of sympathy on any event which might cause the voice of lamentation to be heard in your Royal House; but on the present we feel too deeply the loss we have suffered not to participate most sincerely in the affliction with which it has pleased God to visit your illustrious Family.

When we reflect upon the long series of years that Her Majesty moved in her exalted station with so conspicuous a virtue, and so edifying an example; when we contemplate in the endearing attention of your Royal Highness and the rest of her illustrious children, so affecting a proof of her care and kindness as a mother; when we recollect the unremitting solicitude she displayed for the comfort of him, who, though lost to social enjoyment, must ever live in the heart of every good man in his dominions; and more than all when we turn our eyes upon the noble pattern of pure morals and dignified decorum which Her late Majesty held out to the wives and matrons of this great nation, we cannot but feel, we cannot but deeply deplore the decease of one who has been so great a blessing to our country, and whose constant endeavour it was to check the progress of vice, and to further the advancement of virtue.

Impressed with these sentiments, we do unfeignedly condole with your Royal Highness, and the whole of the Royal Family, on the late afflicting event; and as we trust that the Divine Providence will in compassion still watch over this great empire for its good, by raising up worthy successors to those of whose eminent examples it may please to deprive us, so we entreat the Father of Mercies ever to protect your Royal Highness in your exalted station, and to give you that comfort and support in the discharge of its high duties which he alone can give, and which he alone can render effectual.

Signed, at a public Meeting, at the Guildhall, at Carnarvon, on Friday the 18th day of December 1818, on the behalf and at the request of the said Meeting,

Henry Jones, Deputy Mayor.

[Transmitted by the Marquess of Anglesey, K. G. and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's loyal subjects, the High Sheriff, Nobility, Magistrates, Clergy, and other Freeholders of the County of Flint, approach your Royal Highness with the tender of our condolence on the decease of your Royal Mother, the venerable Queen Consort of these realms, endeared to us by