Thos. Bouchier,
 Deputy Clerk of the Crown for Ireland.

THE following Addresses, having been transmitted to Viscount Sidmouth, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, by the several persons whose names are respectively subjoined to each Address, have been presented by His Lordship to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent, who was pleased to receive the same very graciously:

To His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales,
 REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Nobility, Clergy, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of the County of Tipperary, are here assembled in the discharge of a painful duty, and for the purpose of offering to your Royal Highness our humble assurances that we deeply feel the full pressure of that afflicting dispensation of the Heavenly Disposer of all human events, which has taken from amongst us your Royal Highness's august Mother, the Partner of the Throne of our afflicted Monarch, our late excellent and lamented Queen.

Upon the merits of the distinguished dead, surviving affection and respect delight to rest with melancholy satisfaction; and what shall ever efface from the recollections of a grateful people the public and the private virtues of the illustrious person who has but just now ceased to run her bright course of more than half a century in the exemplary discharge of all the duties of domestic life, and before the purity of whose uncontaminated Court the dignity of the female character had, at all times, stood erect, and pollution never dared to raise its unhallowed head.

Such are the genuine impressions which this calamity has awakened in the minds of us, your Royal Father's faithful subjects, to your own own deeply wounded feelings, it will not fail to administer the best and purest consolation, that your Royal Highness is enabled to call to your recollection with what persevering and affectionate solicitude your Royal Highness had attended the sick bed of your suffering Parent, and that you did not desert the sad and interesting duty which you had imposed upon yourself, till you had seen the mortal remains of the venerable object of the public sorrows, and of your Royal Highness's tenderest and most respectful remembrances, deposited in the silent tomb.

Nath. Taylor, Chairman, High Sheriff of the County of Tipperary.

Cashell, December 31, 1818.

[Transmitted by His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the President and Council, and the rest of the Academicians and Associates of the Royal Academy, humbly beg leave to approach your Royal Highness, with the deepest sentiments of condolence, on the occasion of your Royal Highness's recent affliction.

The demise of Her late Majesty, our Gracious Queen, has spread a just and general sorrow throughout all ranks of the United Kingdom; but the remembrance of those virtues by which she dignified her exalted station will ever live in the hearts of a loyal people.

Bound to your Royal House by every tie of gratitude and affection, permit us respectfully to assure your Royal Highness that the Royal Academy is impressed with a profound sense of the irreparable loss which your Royal Highness has sustained in this mournful event.

That the Almighty may support your Royal Highness under this afflicting Dispensation, and compensate, as far as may be, so severe a calamity
