We, your Memorialists, beg leave most humbly to represent these particulars for your Royal Highness's consideration, and to submit, with all humility, whether your Royal Highness may not be graciously pleased to establish the following scale of rewards, to be allotted according to the intentions of the Act:

THE following Address has been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Address His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

The humble Address of the Archbishop, Bishops, and other Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, in Convocation assembled.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Archbishop, Bishops, and other Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, in Convocation assembled, approach your Royal Highness with profound respect and humility.

It is our duty, Sir, and however painful the frequent repetition of it may be, it is still our duty, to express to your Royal Highness our sincere grief for the death of your Royal Mother, the Queen.

The illustrious example which Her Majesty, for more than half a century, held out to the people of this country, in religion and in morals, cannot be brought back to our recollection without suggesting to us the deepest regret for the loss we have sustained.

Our national character has in some sort fashioned itself after the great models which the Throne for so many years has afforded to both sexes. We have full confidence, Sir, that the same character will be maintained under your Royal Highness's countenance and protection. For assuredly it is upon this basis, that the greatness of a people is founded. Conquests may be achieved and nations aggrandised, by sudden violent and irregular exertions; but empires are consolidated and held together by principles of a very different description, by a steady and firm attachment to the constitutional government of the country, by respect and veneration for its laws and ordinances, by sincerity of manners and purity of morals, and above all, by a just sense of what is due from man to the revealed will of God.

The earnestness with which your Royal Highness was pleased to direct the attention of the late Parliament in its last session, to the deficiency of places of public worship belonging to the Established Church, affords ample proof of the importance your Royal Highness attaches to the religious institutions of the country.

Your Royal Highness's recommendation was cheerfully adopted, and notwithstanding the pressure that existed at that time upon the public finance, a large and liberal grant for building, and promoting the building of churches in populous parishes, was voted with an unanimity that rarely belongs to questions of public-expenditure.

When, Sir, the primary object of this grant shall be accomplished, it will be our duty to carry into effect, as far as we are able, the ultimate purposes of it, and to bring back to the Church those whom the want of room may have hitherto excluded from it.

During the period, Sir, in which your Royal Highness has directed the affairs of this great nation, a period alike distinguished by its difficulties and its successes, we have observed with equal admiration and gratitude, not only the height to which your Royal Highness has raised the military glory of the country, but also the steady and firm hand with which your Royal Highness has upheld the constitutional government of it in Church and State. Whatever dangers, Sir, may hereafter threaten either, and if either be seriously threatened both are in danger, we have full confidence in your Royal Highness's vigilance to discover, and firmness to resist them in their earliest approaches. We pray God to bless and protect you.

His Royal Highness the Prince Regent has been pleased, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, to constitute and appoint the Right Honourable George Earl of Morton, Knight of the Most Ancient Order of the Thistle, to be His Majesty's Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.
