N. B. Several affidavits made before the Judges of the Courts at Westminster, having been recently returned from Ireland to be re-sworn before the said Commissioners, at great expence and risk to the parties, they consider it incumbent upon them to apprise the Profession and the public in general, that all affidavits to be made within their district, in matters appertaining to the Court of Chancery and Law Courts of Ireland, and all dispositions of debt and other affidavits in Irish bankrupt cases, are to be made before said Commissioners, who alone are legally empowered to take same; and that similar affidavits are to be made before the Extraordinary Commissioners appointed by said Courts throughout England and Wales, within their respective districts.
