Notice is hereby given, pursuant to an Act of Parliament made in the 8th year of the reign of His late Majesty, King George the Second, intituled "An Act for the amendment of the law relating to actions on the Statute of Hue and Cry", that Moses Booth, of Chorley, in the County of Lancaster, Labourer, on Friday the 20th day of this instant August 1819, about Eight o'Clock in the Forenoon of the same day, on the King's highway, leading from Chorley aforesaid to Preston, in the said County, between the Radburn Turnpike and the Dog Inn, in the Township of Brindle (and as the said Moses Booth thinks about half way between those places), was assaulted, stopped, and robbed, by two men on foot, both unknown to the said Moses Booth, one of the said men being dressed in a fustian jacket, a pair of trowsers, near the colour of fustian trowsers, round bound hat and shoes, altogether decently dressed, and rather a tall man, the other man being dressed in a fustian jacket, a pair of breeches of fustian colour (and made of fustian as the said Moses Booth believes), round bound hat, and shoes, being rather a tall man, and marked with the small pox in his face, and having a long knife, both fresh looking decent men, apparently about thirty years of age, who took from him the said Moses Booth, a red Morocco-pocket book, in which was twenty 5l. Bank of England notes, twenty 2l. Bank of England notes, and ten 1l. Bank of England notes, the number of which notes the said Moses Booth cannot recollect, the twenty 5l. notes being clean and fresh looking, the 2l. notes being most of them clean but not quite so fresh as the fives, the 1l. notes being also clean and not ragged, some of the said notes, but which in particular he cannot say, having red ink marks or writing on them; and that the said man whose face was marked with the small pox, held the said Moses Booth by the throat, whilst the other man took the pocket book out of the said Moses Booth's pocket, and that as soon as they had got the pocket book the man in trowsers took the pocket book and went into a plantation on the road side, whilst the other man with his knife in his hand stood over the said Moses Booth for a minute or two, and then went into the said plantation, and the said Moses Booth never saw either of them more, and as he believes he never saw either of them before.

MOSES BOOTH.

SUMMONS BY EDICT.

By virtue of authority received from His Honour E. Samuel, Esq. President of the Honourable the Court of Civil Justice of this Colony, dated 30th July 1819;

I, the undersigned, at the request of Peter Fairbairn and Francis Williams, Curators to the Insolvent estate of James Maxwell, deceased, of the Island of Barbadoes, do hereby summon, by edict, all known and unknown creditors or claimants against the Insolvent estate of James Maxwell, deceased, of the Island of Barbadoes, to appear at the bar of the Court of Civil Justice of this Colony, at their Sessions, to be held in the month of April 1818, for the purpose of there rendering in their respective claims against the above-mentioned estate, properly attested, to verify the same, and hear the objection that thereon shall be made, if need, and further to proceed according to law.
