Genova, Aug. 26.

Of English Ships here is at present only in Port the Charles, Captain Wall, bound for the Levant. From Turin they tell us, that many of the Nobility, and others, did labour all they could to put off the Duke of Savoy's Voyage for Portugal, which did occasion some heats and divisions at that Court.

Brussels, Sept. 9. On Thursday next his Excellency the Marquis de Grana parts from hence for Flanders, to change the Magistrates of Bruges, and to visit the new Fortifications that are making at Ostend and Newport. The Process against the Sieur de Prusdo, and the Sieur d'Asserden, late Secretaries to the Prince of Parma, (who are accused of great Crimes and Misdemeanors) is not yet finished, the pretension of the Archbishop of Malines, concerning his Jurisdiction, (the Sieur d'Asserden being an Ecclesiastick) having occasioned some delay in it. From Liege they write, That the French Resident there had on the fourth Instant declared to those Magistrates, That the King his Master did advise them to submit themselves to their Prince, and to give him satisfaction in the points he insists upon, and that the Bishop of Strasbourg, and the Sieur Tambonneau, the French Envoy at Cologne, would employ themselves in order to a composition of the differences between his Electoral Highness and them. We have had here extraordinary ill Weather, which has spoiled the latter Harvest, and is like to make things very dear. The excessive Rains have caused great Floods, which have broken through the great Dike, between Antwerp and Zillo, in two places, and have overflowed the Country thereabouts.

Brussels, Sept. 11. Yesterday his Excellency, accompanied with most of the General Officers, parted for Flanders, having first dispatched the Spanish Courier, and signed the necessary Orders for a fourth Payment to the whole Army. From Liege we have an account, That those Magistrates have not yet returned any Answer to what the French Resident had declared to them by order of the King his Master, being unwilling to have that King concern himself in the differences between their Prince and them, and that to prevent his interposing therein, they would address themselves directly to his Electoral Highness, and make all becoming submissions to him. Our last Letters from Vienna told us, That the Affairs of Hungary go very ill; That since the taking of Cassovia the Rebels have made themselves Masters of three or four places more, and that the Turks had pulled off their Mask, and did now openly joyn with the Rebels, and had besieged Vilcke; That these advices had very much troubled the Imperial Court, and that Orders had been thereupon given out for the sending more Forces to Hungary. We expect the Marquis de Grana back here from Flanders about the latter end of the next Week.

Hague, Sept. 15. We lately told you of an Order which the French King had sent to the University of Orange, not to receive any Students of the Protestant Religion; since we are informed that that King has sent 4 or 500 Soldiers to quarter upon the Inhabitants of Orange, who exact Monies of them; And that he has forbid the neighbouring Countries to have any Trade or Commerce with them. The States General have had the Complaints that have been made of these proceedings before them, and have by their Deputies sent the French Ambassador here know how much they are concerned thereat, and have desired him to employ his Offices that things may be restored, in the said Principality of Orange, to what they were in formerly, and on this Subject the States have likewise written to their Ambassador at Paris. Our Letters from Vienna of the third Instant say, that the Turks had taken Tockay, and the Rebels Zendre, and that the Imperialists had quitted Cato.

Marseilles, Sept. 1. The 30th of the last Month arrived here one of the Victuallers attending the Fleet commanded by the Sieur du Quesne, in 17 days from Argiers; he brought over two Couriers, one from the Duke of Morimar, and the other from the Sieur du Quesne, who the same day took Post for Paris: By them we understand that the Sieur du Quesne had not as yet attempted any thing upon Argiers, having been hindered by contrary Winds and bad Weather, and that the Gallies, the day they left the Fleet, had been forced to let slip their Cables, and leave all their Anchors behind them, and were retired in great danger to their Rendezvous at Port-Mabon, the Sieur du Quesne remaining with seven Men of War only before Argiers. Yesterday arrived here a Bark in seven days from Alicant, the Patron whereof reports, That off of that place he met with a Vessel belonging to this Town, who came from the Coast of Barbary, and that he was told by the Master of it, That the Sieur du Quesne lay before Argiers, and that some hours after he had left the French Fleet, he heard much Shooting, which continued for most part of the day: The said Patron says, That two English Frigats had been at Argiers to redeem several English Slaves, and that then that Government would not hear of any Treaty with the French. Yesterday Morning arrived a Courier from Paris, with Orders for the fitting out 15 Gallies with all possible diligence, and we are told that at the same time Orders are gone to Toulon for the fitting out there several Men of War; what Service they are designed for we cannot certainly learn. The Embargo that was laid upon Ships trading to the Levant is now taken off, and the Commerce begins to be open again, and seven or eight Ships bound from hence for Smirna, Scandaroune, Constantinople, and Sidon, have liberty to depart.

Paris, Sept. 12. There are Letters from the Sieur du Quesne of the 14th past, which give an account, That he had been several times before Argiers, but that he had not yet attacked it, finding greater difficulties in the Enterprise than was at first imagined,
