THE following Addresses, having been transmitted to Viscount Sidmouth, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, by the several persons whose names are respectively subjoined to each Address, were presented by His Lordship to His Majesty, who was pleased to receive the same very graciously:

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

SIRE,

WE, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Mayor, Bailiffs, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Borough of Clifton Dartmouth Hardness, beg leave to approach your Majesty's Throne with the expressions of our sincere and heartfelt condolence upon the demise of our late most beloved Monarch, whose venerable name will obtain an imperishable record in the annals of a grateful country.

His reign, protracted to an unprecedented duration in the most eventful and critical times, will be perused by the future patriot with proud satisfaction; firm, persevering, and merciful in his public conduct, his memory is embalmed in the hearts of all his subjects; pious, moral, and affectionate in his private life, his example added a lustre to every virtue.

But whilst we deeply lament the loss of such a Monarch, we cannot fail to derive consolation from the reflection that he is succeeded by a Prince, who has followed hitherto the footsteps of his immortal Parent. And we contemplate with unbounded satisfaction, the pledge your Majesty has already afforded us in your address to your Privy Council, of your gracious intention to preserve inviolate the rights and privileges of our established Constitution both in Church and State. And we fervently hope, that this proof of your paternal solicitude will be repaid by the filial obedience of all your loving subjects; and we pledge ourselves, that on our parts no infringements shall ever be made of that mutual compact which equally secures the dignity of the Throne and the prosperity and happiness of the people.

Hy. J. Holdsworth, Mayor.

[Transmitted by Charles M. Ricketts, Esq.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the General Convention of the Royal Burghs of Scotland.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE take the first opportunity of our assembling in Convention since the melancholy demise of our revered Monarch, to approach your Majesty with sentiments of condolence on this afflicting loss sustained by your Majesty and the nation; and with the offer of our sincere congratulations on the auspicious event of your Majesty's accession to the Throne.

We humbly assure your Majesty of our inviolable attachment and allegiance to your Royal Person and Government, and of our unshaken confidence in your Majesty's steady maintenance of our civil and religious liberties, and of that unrivalled Constitution which, happily for the nation, placed upon the Throne of this empire your Majesty's illustrious predecessors.

And that the sceptre of the united kingdoms may long be swayed by your Majesty, and to the latest posterity, in a direct line through your Majesty's august House, is the earnest and anxious wish of this General Convention.

In name and by appointment of the General Convention of the Royal Burghs of Scotland, in Convention assembled.

Alex. Smellie, Preses.

Edinburgh, July 13, 1820.

[Transmitted by Alexander Smellie, Esq. Preses.]

To His Majesty George the Fourth, by the grace of God KING of Great Britain, &c. &c.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, the Ministers and Elders of the General Synod of Ulster, embrace the opportunity afforded by our annual meeting, of approaching the Throne and expressing our sincere condolence with your Majesty on the death of our late venerable and beloved King.

During a reign, unprecedented in its length, and unequalled in the importance of the events with which it was marked, our late lamented Monarch ever exhibited to his subjects an example of all that was truly amiable and excellent. In the bosom of his family he was a pattern of piety and devotion; in the circle of his Court, he was the revered supporter of morality and religion; and during the lengthened period in which he presided over the Councils of these realms, the limits of religious liberty were more than usually extended, and each denomination of Christians in the Monarch found a friend.

Under his Government we experienced much of his kindness; our Ministers have had their means of subsistence liberally increased, and our rights, as Presbyterians, were recognized, extended, and secured.

Almighty God having been pleased to remove from us your Majesty's venerable and pious Father, we beg leave to approach your Majesty, and to offer to you our sincere congratulations on your Majesty's succession to the Throne of your Ancestors; and we beg leave farther to assure your Majesty, that we shall ever earnestly inculcate on the people under our care a steady attachment to your Majesty's Person, respect for the Constitution, obedience to the Laws, and an inviolable regard to those principles which placed your illustrious Family on the Throne.

That your Majesty's reign may be long, peaceful, and prosperous; and that you may live in the hearts and affections of your people, is the earnest prayer of your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects.

Signed, in our name and by our appointment, at Cookstown, this 1st of July 1820.

A. G. Malcolm, Moderator.

[Transmitted by His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Presbyterian Synod of Muinster, unanimously adopted at their annual Assembly held in Cork, this 5th day of July 1820.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and faithful subjects, the Ministers and Elders of the Presbyterian Synod of Munster, have availed ourselves of our first annual meeting since your Majesty's accession, to offer the expressions of our sincere sorrow for the death of your illustrious Father.

While his private virtues are the topics of universal approbation, and while his gentle and equal rule will be gratefully remembered by the present age and honoured by succeeding generations, it becomes us peculiarly to declare our deep and indelible conviction of the advantages we have enjoyed under his long and beneficent reign.

The blessings of civil and religious liberty which were denied to our forefathers, and gradually extended by your Majesty's illustrious House, were perfected by our late venerable Monarch. To his paternal Government the Presbyterians of Ireland have been indebted not only for protection but for the most gracious encouragement and support. Permit us, therefore, to join our tribute of most grateful affection for his memory, to the voice of the nation at large, in deploring the loss which your Majesty and the empire have sustained by the melancholy event of his death.

We would, however, console ourselves with the reflection that your venerable Parent, full of days and matured in virtue, has been removed to a better and a happier world; and we would beg leave to congratulate your Majesty on your accession to the Throne of your Royal Ancestors.

We indulge in the most pleasing anticipations of your Majesty's future reign; and we repeat our assurances of faithful loyalty, reposing our fullest confidence in your benevolent and equitable supremacy over the British dominions. We commend your Majesty to the favour of that Almighty Being By whom Kings reign; and we fervently pray, that you may be blessed from Heaven with the enjoyment of long and prosperous years in this world, and hereafter be called to the possession of a Crown in that Kingdom that fadeth not away.

All that valuable and desirable freehold estate, called Brockhurst Lodge, comprising a handsome uniform villa, pleasantly situate at Brockhurst, two miles from Gosport, three from Fareham, five from Titchfield, 15 from Southampton, and 78 from London.

The house is built in the most substantial manner, upon a plan replete with accommodations for a family of respectability; is seated on a lawn, at a convenient remove from the road, commanding beautiful and extensive views of the sea, Isle of Wight, Portsmouth harbour, Portsdown-Hill, and surrounding rich and varied scenery; containing elegant lofty dining and drawing-rooms of admirable proportion, being 24 feet by 18 feet, finished in a very superior manner, with statuary marble chimney pieces, and other expensive decorations; morning parlour, library, store-room, handsome entrance hall, and vestibule, and stone stair-case; five principal bed-chambers, three servants rooms, with separate stair-case, light dressing-room and water-closet. The domestic offices comprise a capital kitchen and scullery, larders, pantry, servants'-hall, and very spacious cellars. The garden is encompassed by lofty serpentine walls, clothed with an abundance of choice fruit trees, &c.; extensive lawn, pleasure ground, and conservatory, filled with vines, peach, and nectarine trees, of superior quality; a carriage-yard, with standing for two carriages; stabling for seven horses, harness and hay-room, and a granary.

Also a brick-built and tiled cottage, and an inclosure of very rich land, contiguous to the house, fronting the high road, in the highest state of cultivation, with a thriving plantation leading from the house to the cottage. The whole containing about seven customary acres, is freehold, and immediate possession may be had.

Also all those truly valuable and desirable freehold premises, situated at the North Wharf, Gosport, consisting of a convenient wharf, 60 feet by 33 feet, and a crane thereon, where vessels of 18 feet draught of water can lay to load and discharge their cargoes, with a large strong brick-built warehouse erected on the west side, containing a ground-floor, 9 feet in height, and 105 feet long, and 26 feet wide, with three floors over of the same dimensions, capable of carrying any weight that can be put into them, or of stowing 8000 quarters of grain.

Also a warehouse on the east side, substantially built with brick and timber, containing one ground-floor, 93 feet long and 20 feet wide, with two lofts over, each capable of holding 500 quarters of corn; three counting-rooms, with a foreman's house: the passage to the wharf secured by iron gates.

The above premises are worthy the attention of any merchant or broker requiring room, being the most commanding situation for trade in the harbour of Portsmouth, fitted as bonding stores, and the only one where vessels of burthen can lay and discharge their cargoes in perfect security, and at a trifling expence.

These premises will be rendered still more valuable when the canal from Portsmouth to London (now in active progress) is finished; as it will be a convenient situation for barges to discharge and assort their cargoes intended for Plymouth and the different western ports.

All that extensive and substantially built store, situate in the Upper South-Street, lately used as a malt house, consisting of three floors, each 95 feet by 18 feet.

Also a spacious bake-house adjoining, 32 feet by 18 feet, containing three capital ovens, 10 feet by 9 feet, drying-room over, and two flour stores, each 35 feet by 18 feet.
