THE following Address having been transmitted to Viscount Sidmouth, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, by Thomas Mackenzie, Esq. M.P. has been presented by His Lordship to the King, and most graciously received:

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The loyal Address of the Wester Ross Farmer Society.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's faithful and dutiful subjects, the associated Farmers in the Western District of the County of Ross, North Britain, beg leave at the present important crisis to approach your Majesty with a declaration the most unfeigned, of our attachment to your Majesty's Person and Government. We are aware that in other parts of your Majesty's dominions, artful and designing demagogues have been exerting themselves, by every means in their power, to subvert the principles of piety and morality, to excite sedition, and to instil into the minds of the populace, a spirit of opposition to the constituted authorities of the country; but we beg leave to assure your Majesty (and the station which we hold in society affords us the fullest opportunity of ascertaining the fact), that in this corner of the country disaffection is only known by name, and that the lower orders are loyal and peaceably disposed.

We, as cultivators of the soil, in common with a large proportion of your Majesty's subjects, feel the pressure of the times, arising out of the inadequate price of almost every article of farm produce, but we are far from ascribing this pressure to the want of consideration to our case on the part of Government, or to mismanagement of the public finances of the country; on the contrary, we assure ourselves that the business of the nation is conducted with as much impartiality as its complicated and important nature admits of, and we have therefore resolved to trust implicitly to the wisdom and justice of Parliament, convinced, as we are, that every question of public interest will, as hitherto, receive a fair and candid discussion.
