THE following Address, from the Inhabitants and Visitors of the Town of Ramsgate and its Vicinity, was presented to the King at Ramsgate, previous to His Majesty's embarking for the Continent; which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously:

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Inhabitants and Visitors of the Town of Ramsgate, and its Vicinity, beg leave respectfully to approach your Majesty's most sacred Person, to testify the unfeigned joy and happiness which we this day experience by your Majesty having most graciously condescended to honour us with your royal presence.

That after a prosperous voyage to your Majesty's Continental Dominions, you may shortly return to continue your reign for many, many years over a loyal and happy people, is our most ardent wish.

To which Address His Majesty was pleased to return the following most gracious answer:

"Gentlemen,

"I receive with great satisfaction the loyal and dutiful Address of the Inhabitants and Visitors of Ramsgate, as well as the general testimony of attachment and affection from all classes of My subjects.

"I am leaving My united kingdom for a short period only, and thank you for your cordial expressions of good wishes for My return.

"It is not My first visit to this attractive place, and I heartily hope it may not be the last."

Whitehall, September 29, 1821.
