January 22, 1827.

THE Remains of His late Royal Highness Frederick Duke of York and of Albany lay in state in the Royal Apartments in St. James's-Palace, attended by an Equerry and two of the Aides-de-Camp of His late Royal Highness, two Heralds of Arms, two of His Majesty's Gentlemen Ushers, two Gentlemen of the Privy Chamber, ten of the Honourable Band of Gentlemen Pensioners, with two of their Officers, and by a party of the Grenadier Regiment of Guards, during Thursday the 18th and Friday the 19th instant. The Body, covered with a black velvet Pall, adorned with Escocheons of the Arms of His late Royal Highness, and the Coronet and Field-Marshal's Baton of His late Royal Highness laid thereon, was placed upon a platform, under a Canopy of black cloth, also adorned with Escocheons. At the head of the Corpse were seated the Equerry and the Aides-de-Camp, and the Heralds stood at the feet. On each side of the Body stood the Gentlemen Ushers and Gentlemen of the Privy Chamber, and between them and the Grenadiers, who lined each side of the platform, bearing their muskets reversed, stood three of the Band of Gentlemen Pensioners supporting Banners.

The State Apartment was hung with black cloth, and the Rooms adjoining were also hung with black cloth, and lined by Yeomen of the Guard.

The Public were admitted to the State Apartment from eleven until four o'clock on each day.

On Saturday morning the 20th instant, at eight o'clock precisely, the Procession having been formed, the Remains of His late Royal Highness were removed from St. James's-Palace, escorted by a Field-Officer's Guard, consisting of one hundred and twenty men of the 2d Regiment of Life Guards, with a Standard, and moved in the following order:

Trumpets and Kettle Drums of the two Regiments of Life Guards, and the Drums and Fifes of the Foot Guards.
