

City of Presbourg; as of the approach of the Auxilliary Troops, for the relief of the Town, and to direct him, in case the enemy should gain any Outwork, or lodge themselves upon the CounterCarp, or that the place should be otherwise reduced to any Extremity, to make certain Signals from the great Tower, that thereby his Highness might know their condition: This Man got well into the Town as we understand by the Signal he was ordered to make upon his arrival there; but none of the other Signals being made, we conclude that things are very well there. The Turks made six or seven very furious assaults the 5th and 6th Instant, which lasted 15 hours, and after a great slaughter of men, gained a point of the CounterCarp, but did not remain Masters of it long, being soon after beaten off by the Besieged, who destroyed a great many of the Turks by a Mine they sprung. The Duke of Lorrain has received a Letter from the King of Poland, who therein gives his Highness an account, That his Army (which as we hear from other hands, consists of between 30 and 40 Thousand Men) marches in three Bodies, and that he hoped to be very near Vienna by the 20th of this Month, and therefore desired his Highness not to hazard any thing till he arrives: The Troops of Bavaria and Saxony, and those of the Circles of Franconia and the Upper-Rhine, are likewise on their march. Prince Lubomirski went out yesterday with a Party of Poles, and returned again this day, having had a Rencontre with a Party of Hungarians, of whom he killed 300, with the Officer that Commanded them, and took 31 Prisoners, and eight Standards, with the loss only on his side of eight Men killed, and 10 wounded.

Passaw, August 15. The Emperor has named the Count de Schafgats to go and Compliment the King of Poland upon his arrival on his Frontiers, and intends to go himself and meet him at the head of his Army. His Imperial Majesty has named Commissioners for the Tryal of the young Count de Serini, Accused of holding Correspondence with the Turks and Hungarians. The unexpected arrival of the Count Caprara, and with him a Turkish Aga, occasions divers Conjectures, and many are willing to believe that the latter is sent to make Proposals of Peace. We have no fresh account concerning the Siege of Vienna; and we seem here not to doubt but the Auxilliary Troops will be joyned time enough to relieve the place. The Imperial Ministers have had several Conferences with the Prince d' Anhalt, who is here on the part of the Elector of Brandenburg: It's said he very much presses his Imperial Majesty to establish a firm Peace with the Crown of France, which being done, he will assist his Imperial Majesty with 10 or 12000 Men against the Turks.

Cologne, August 20. Our Elector is gone from hence to Bonne; and the Bishop of Strasbourg to Cechten near Brevil. The Affairs of this City continue very much disordered. Our Letters from Eintz and Passaw tell us, That the Turks do push on the Siege of Vienna, with all the vigor they are able, That they had made several fierce assaults but without any great success; That the Besieged did defend themselves very well, and that all things were disposing for their relief.

Amsterdam, August 27. The German Post, which came in this day, brings Letters from Passaw Dated the 18. Instant; They tell us, That the Emperor had the day before received an account from the Duke of Lorrain, That the Turks had again made an assault upon Vienna, and had sprung several Mines, by means whereof they had possessed themselves of a Ravelin and lodged themselves upon the CounterCarp, but that the Besieged had not suffered them to continue long there, having sallied out, and with their Swords in their hands beaten them with a great slaughter of Men from the Posts they had taken, and that in this Action the Count de Starenberg the Governor, and the Count de Souches were wounded; and that the Emperor was parted from Passaw to go and meet the King of Poland.

Hague, August 27. The German Letters arrived this day give us an account; That the Turks had again, on the 16th instant, made a very fierce assault upon Vienna, which lasted eight hours; That with the help of the Mines they sprung, they had made themselves Masters of a Ravelin, and had a second time lodged themselves upon the CounterCarp, but that they had been beaten off again by the besieged with a very great loss of men. The Letters add, that it was reported at Passaw, that the Turkish Aga, who came with the Count de Caprara, had proposed that the Grand Signior would raise the Siege of Vienna, upon condition his Imperial Majesty deliver to him Raab and Comorra.
