Windsor Castle, July 17, 1830.

THIS day the Dean and Canons of the Free Chapel of St. George, at Windsor, waited upon His Majesty to present to His Majesty the following Address, which His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously:

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, the Dean and Canons of your Majesty's Free Chapel of St. George, within your Castle of Windsor, beg leave to approach your Majesty with sentiments of condolence upon the recent mournful occasion.

We participate in that affliction which your Majesty has experienced for the loss of an affectionate Brother, and we sympathise in those feelings of sorrow, which have been expressed throughout the nation, for the loss of a Sovereign whose mild and beneficent reign had justly endeared him to all his subjects.

While, however, in common with your Majesty, we deplore the loss which has plunged in grief the loyal subjects of these realms, we cannot but derive consolation from reflecting, that the Crown has descended upon the head of a Prince matured in judgment, and peculiarly connected by education and habits with the strength and glory of Britain.

We humbly offer to your Majesty our heartfelt congratulations on your Majesty's accession to the Throne of this Kingdom, and we behold with the greatest satisfaction another Son of that revered Monarch (whose paternal care for the welfare of his subjects formed so conspicuous a feature in his benignant character), seated on the Throne, and at the head of the most honourable and noble Order of the Garter.

It has been most gratifying to us to learn your Majesty's expressed determination to support the reformed religion established in this united kingdom; and we most fervently implore the assistance of the Almighty, to enable your Majesty long to confer the blessings of a peaceful and a happy reign, upon a loyal and grateful people.

St. James's Palace, July 21, 1830.

THIS day the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor; Sir James Shaw, Bart. and Alderman; Sir Charles Flower, Bart. and Alderman; Colonel Sir Claudius Stephen Hunter, Bart. and Alderman; Mr. Alderman Garratt; Sir Peter Laurie, Knight and Alderman; Mr. Alderman Copeland; Sir William Rawlins, Knight; Thomas Williams, Esq. Deputy; Matthew Wilson, Esq.; and Edward Grose Smith, Esq. Clerk; Commissioners of Lieutenancy for the City of London; waited upon His Majesty to present to His Majesty the following Address, which His Majesty was graciously pleased to receive on the Throne:

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and the rest of your Majesty's Commissioners of Lieutenancy for the City of London.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and the rest of your Majesty's Commissioners of Lieutenancy for the City of London, humbly beg leave to approach your Royal Person, with the sincerest expressions of our unshaken loyalty, and sacred respect for your Majesty's Person and Government.

We lament with the deepest sorrow the demise of our late most beloved Sovereign King George the fourth, a Monarch under whose auspicious reign this kingdom, by the wisdom of its councils, and the valour of its arms, so materially assisted in the liberation of Europe, and attained to the highest degree of national glory.

Sire,

Whilst we express our feelings of condolence on the severe loss which your Majesty and the public have so recently sustained, we hail the accession to the Throne of a Prince, who, by his virtues, has long been endeared to the nation, who in early life has signalled himself in its fleets, and has at all times been ready to support the Constitution and the liberties of the subject; we retire from your Royal presence with the most fervent wishes, that your Majesty may long reign over a loyal people, in the full enjoyment (together with Her most gracious Majesty our Queen) of all earthly felicity, and that your Majesty may continue to witness the increasing glory of your country, and the increased happiness of your people.

Edwd. Grose Smith, Clerk and Treasurer.
