

The London Gazette.

Published by Authority.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1830.

(An alphabetical and numbered List of the Addresses presented to His Majesty, is printed at the end of the Addresses.)

Windsor Castle, August 9, 1830.

THIS day the Mayor and a Deputation of the Corporation of the Borough of New Windsor waited upon His Majesty to present to His Majesty the following Address, which His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously:

No. 1.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The loyal and dutiful Address of the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Burgesses of the Borough of New Windsor, in the County of Berks.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and affectionate subjects and servants, the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Burgesses of the ancient and loyal Borough of New Windsor, most humbly presume to approach your Majesty, with our cordial and respectful congratulations on your Majesty's arrival within the walls of your Royal Palace of Windsor, the favoured abode of a long race of Kings; and to renew to your Majesty the strongest assurances of our devoted and unalterable attachment to your Majesty's sacred Person and Government.

Entertaining a lively sense of the condescension with which your Majesty was pleased, on a former occasion, to honour us, by permitting your name to be enrolled amongst our Burgesses as High Steward of this Borough; and deeply interested, from every motive of gratitude, as well as duty, in any circumstance which can afford satisfaction to your Royal mind, we regard, with more than ordinary delight, the happy auspices under which your Majesty has commenced your residence at this superb seat of your the patron of honour, of virtue, and of religion, be Ancestors, recently embellished under the tasteful long preserved to us to promote the best interests direction of that venerated Monarch, whose loss (in common with your Majesty) we so deeply deplore, and become the appropriate emblem of the British Monarchy, alike in its fair proportions, its strength, its antiquity, and its grandeur.

Associated as is the "proud Keep of Windsor" with the recollection of the heroic deeds of many of our early Kings, and rendered the depository of the battle trophies, which inscribe the glorious names of Marlborough and of Wellington indelibly in the brightest pages of our history, and record the distinguished valour of British arms in modern times; we cannot avoid felicitating your Majesty on your accession to the Crown of these Realms at a period when the spirit of peace and internal tranquillity hovers around the British Throne, and which, but for the recent convulsion in a neighbouring kingdom, had promised, for a lengthened period, to pervade the whole Continent of Europe.

We feel persuaded, Sire, that your Majesty, who has ever evinced a heart so peculiarly English, and has ever expressed an ardent attachment to the Laws and Constitution of the Country, which balance so admirably the prerogatives of the Crown with the rights and liberties of your people, will not fail to employ your leisure from the cares of Government in the fullest exercise of the many virtues and amiable qualities with which your Majesty is so eminently endowed; in illustrating the advantages of domestic happiness; in the patronage of the arts; and in cultivating, by your condescending and endearing manners, that affectionate attachment of all classes of your subjects, which will add a lustre to the diadem adorning your Majesty's brow.

It is our fervent prayer, Sire, that your Majesty, and your illustrious Consort, may long live in the enjoyment of every blessing which a domestic life is capable of affording, shedding around you the influence of your bright example; may your Majesty,