Madrid, October 28. The Duke d'Offuna, who lately returned from his Banishment at Segovia, is fallen under a fresh disgrace, the King had ordered him to be carried Prisoner to the Castle of Montaubes near Portugal, but on the 21th instant he got from his Guards just as they were going to begin their Journey, and retired into the Monastery of the Carmelites; whereupon an Edict was published the 25th, commanding him within three days after Publication thereof, to render himself a Prisoner, which if he do not, he will be proceeded against for his disobedience and flight. From Cadiz of the 18th instant, they write; that three Ships were arrived there from Buenos Ayres, after having been out three years, and that they brought a Million of Monny, 60000 Hides, and 12000 l. of red Wood. From Lisbon of the 15th, we hear that Monsieur de St. Romaine was arrived there in his second Embassy from France: And that they were making great Preparations for the Coronation of the King Don Pedro the S. cond.

Genoua, November 3. The Thomas and Cathe-

vine is on departure for Tubree to take Corn for this place; and the Friends Adventure will Sail in few days for Spain. We have advice that the Spanish Galleys are gone from Porto Sperto for Naples to Winter there; and it's believed their Arcmada will return very suddenly to Cadiz.

Stockholme, O. 30. 10 The 4th instant the Moscovite Ambassadors had their publick Audience of the King of Sweden. The Purghers were in Arms, and made a Lane from the Ambassadors Lodgings to the Castle Gate, the Guards were drawn up in two Bodies within the Castle, and the Rycks-sale, or room of Audience was guarded with 109 Drabants of Yeomen of the Guard; about 12 a Clock the Proceeding began, First rid the Ambassadors Gentleman of the Horse, then followed 68 Soldiers of the Guards, who carried the Furrs, Silks, Bows and Arrows, &c. that were to be presented to the King; after them came the Ambassadors Servants on Horse-back in Habits of Silk, next the Coaches of the Senators, and then two of the Kings, with six Horses each, in which were the Chief of the Ambassadors Train; these were followed by the Secretary of the Embassy on Horse-back, who carried the Czars Letter in a piece of Green Velvet, and then came another of the Kings Coaches, in which were the Ambassadors, Monsieur Wrede and Monsieur Falkenberg, the Master of the Ceremonies, and two Interpreters. Being come into the Castle, they were met at the foot of the Stairs, by the Sieur Rosenham the Kings Marhall, and at the top of them by Lieutenant-General Belky and Monsieur Guldensterne, who led them into the Room of Audience, at the upper end whereof was placed the Kings Throne, below it stood Chairs for the Senators to sit on, and between them and the Throne was placed on each side a Table, covered with Cloth of Silver, on which lay the Crown, the Sword, the Globe, the Scepter, and the Key. At the Door of the Room of Audience they were received by Count Steenbock Rycks Marhall, and advancing within eight or ten Paces of the Throne, the Chief of the Ambassadors made a Speech to the King, which was answered by Count Oxensterne. Then the King rose up, and taking off his Hat, enquired of the Health of the Czars, and sat down again, the Ambassadors continuing uncovered all the while. Then they presented the Czars Letter, which the King delivered to Count Oxensterne, and gave the Ambassadors leave to kiss his hand, which having done, and desired their Attendants might be permitted to pay their respects in like manner to His Majesty, they sat down on a Bench which was brought for that purpose. Their Retinue having kissed the Kings Hand, the Ambassadors rose and acquainted His Majesty, that the Czars had sent His Majesty a Present of Furrs, and desired Commissioners might be appointed to treat with them, and then the Ambassadors returned to their Lodgings, in the same order they came, and at night were entertained, with a Splendid Supper by the Kings particular direction.

Vienna, November 3. We have Letters from Hungary, which tell us, that the King of Poland has invested Buda and Bess, and that the Imperial Army was marching thither. That the Duke of Lorraine hath sent Count Caraffa with 1500 Brandenburgers, two Regiments of Croats, and two of Dragoons to attack Sealitz. That Cassia is formally besieged by the Croats and other Troops joined with them. That the Troops of Lithuania are appointed by the King of Poland to observe Count Teckeley, and that they have a very watchful eye upon him, and endeavour to force him out of the Mountain Towns. That in the mean time the said Count labors very earnestly to make his Peace with the Emperor by the Interposition of the King of Poland, and begins to be very mistrustful of every body about him; and it is said that some of his Principal Friends have plainly told him that if he do not quickly make his Accommodation, they will provide for themselves. All our Advices continue to say, that the Grand Vicer is retired in great disorder to Belgrade, and that of the great and formidable Army which he began the Campaign with, they cannot hear there is any considerable Body remaining in the Field on this side the Bridge of Essecke.

Cologne, November 12. They write from Liege, that the Bishop of Strasbourg arrived there the 8th instant; but that some of the Companies or Troops could not be prevailed with to agree to the Project of Accommodation proposed by him, so that it is believed he will be obliged to return hither without concluding that Affair. Things remain here very unsettled, and we are expecting to hear how our Deputies will be received at the Imperial Court. Our advices from Hungary and Lintz inform us that the Imperial Army was marching towards Buda, and that the Elector of Bavaria had declared his Troops should not leave the Field till the whole Army goes, and that they should take their Winter-Quarters in Hungary, that they may be the realier for the next Campaign; That the Troops of Lithuania were in the upper Hungary, where they very closely observed Count Teckeley, who seems very desirous to make his Peace, but cannot now obtain the terms he might formerly; and that the Grand-Vicer had quite left the Field, finding himself unable to give the Christians any opposition in their successful pursuit of this Campaign, and that all he can do is to prepare for the next.

Hague, November 16. The Prince of Orange parted from hence yesterday Morning for Amsterdam, whither he is gone at the Head of a great Deputation from the States of Holland, to induce that City to consent to the new Levy of 3000 men. The Heer Van Baijen, whom the States General have made choice of, to go in Quality of their Ambassador Extraordinary to the King of Sweden, is arrived here from Frisland, to prepare for his Embassy. The Dutch Fleet which is come back from Gouvenburg, has had very bad Weather upon these Coasts, in which the Ship called the Lions, commanded by Captain Schey, has been forced ashore.

Paris, November 20. Our Letters from Flanders inform us, that the Marschal d'Assumeres having put a Garrison into Courtray, under the Command of the Marquis d'Oxelles, he decamped the ninth, and marched with the Army to a place called Rouffelar; the next day the Marschal advanced with part of his Troops towards Dixmuyde; the Magistrates whereof came and met him, and delivered to him the Keys of the Town, and the next day the place was surrendered. The Marschal having put a Garrison into it, sent all his Troops into their Winter-quarters. The Duke of Vermandon, who was very ill at Courtray, is since dead. We have advice from Thoulon, that Monfieur du Quefne arrived there the sixth instant, with the Kings Ships under his Command, having been in very bad Weather, in which he lost one of his Fire-ships. There are Letters from Lintz, which tell us, that not only New-busfelde but likewise Buda and Pest do Capitate.

Whitehall, November 12. There have been presented to His Majesty very Loyal Addresses from the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Sheriffs, Burgesses, and Citizens of London-Derry, at a Common-Hall held in the said City, October 4. 1683. And from the Sovereign, Recorder, Free-Burgesses, Bayliffs, and Commons of the Corporation of New-Exp., alias Roffpont in Ireland; which His Majesty received very Graciously.

Whitehall, November 12. By Letters from Tangier of the 19th of the last Month, we have an account, that my Lord Dartmouth, having declared to the Inhabitants and the Garrison, the Resolution His Majesty hath, for great and weighty Reasons, thought fit to take, for the Demolishing that place, and the Gracious Care His Majesty hath been pleased to have of them in their Persons and Estates; they had all of them expressed the greatest Joy and Satisfaction imaginable, and had returned their most unfeigned Thanks in humble Addresses to His Majesty.

The Swallow is arrived in the Downs, with many of the Inhabitants of Tangier, most Women; as likewise an Hospital Ship, with old and sick Soldiers.
