

the county of Hants, were wilfully and maliciously set on fire and destroyed by some evil-disposed person or persons unknown;

His Majesty, for the better apprehending and bringing to justice the persons concerned in the felony before mentioned, is hereby pleased to promise His most gracious pardon to any one of them (except the person who actually set fire to the said premises) who shall discover his accomplice or accomplices therein, so that he, she, or they may be apprehended and convicted thereof.

And, as a further encouragement, a reward of ONE HUNDRED POUNDS is hereby offered to any person (except as aforesaid) who shall discover the said offender or offenders, so that he, she, or they may be apprehended and convicted thereof.—Such reward to be paid by the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury.

MELBOURNE.

Whitehall, February 8, 1831.

WHEREAS it hath been humbly represented unto the King, that, about six o'clock in the evening of Thursday the 20th day of January last, the premises of Sir James Fellowes, of Adburyhouse, near Newbury, in the county of Berks, were wilfully and maliciously set on fire by some evil-disposed person or persons unknown, whereby two barns, containing corn and straw, together with cart, stable, and cattle-sheds, were entirely consumed;

His Majesty, for the better apprehending and bringing to justice the persons concerned in the felony before mentioned, is hereby pleased to promise His most gracious pardon to any one of them (except the person who actually set fire to the said premises) who shall discover his accomplice or accomplices therein, so that he, she, or they may be apprehended and convicted thereof.

And, as a further encouragement, a reward of FIVE HUNDRED POUNDS is hereby offered to any person (except as aforesaid) who shall discover the said offender or offenders, so that he, she, or they may be apprehended and convicted of the said offence.—Such reward to be paid by the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury.
