

late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act to amend the Acts for building and promoting the building, of additional churches in populous parishes," further provisions are made for carrying such divisions into effect: and whereas the said Commissioners have made a representation to His Majesty in Council, stating that, in the year 1825, when the last census was taken of the parish of Hampton, in the county of Middlesex, and diocese of London, the said parish contained a population of 4,334 persons; that besides the parish church there is one chapel in the said parish, which has been built by the said Commissioners at Hampton-wick, in the said parish, and which affords accommodation for 800 persons, including 398 free seats appropriated to the use of the poor; that the parish church affords accommodation to 550 persons, including 110 free seats appropriated to the use of the poor; that the above mentioned chapel has been consecrated, and divine service is regularly performed therein: that the said Commissioners have further represented to His Majesty, that, having taken into consideration all the circumstances attending this parish, it appears to them to be expedient that the said parish should be divided into two ecclesiastical districts, under the 21st section of the said Act, passed in the 58th year of His Majesty King George the Third; and that one of the said districts should be attached to the said chapel, for the purpose of affording accommodation for attending divine service to the persons residing in the said districts respectively, and for enabling the spiritual person serving such chapel to perform all ecclesiastical duties within the districts attached to the said chapel, and for the due ecclesiastical superintendence of such districts, and the preservation and improvement of the moral habits of the persons residing therein; and that the district to be attached to the said chapel should be named the District of Hampton-wick, with boundaries as follows:

The boundary to commence in the centre of the river Thames, at Kingston-bridge, where the hamlet of Hampton-wick joins the parish of Kingston, and to comprise the west side of the river, along the whole extent of the parish of Kingston to the parish of Thames-Ditton, where the river takes a direction westward; and the boundary then comprises the north side of the river, separating the district of Hampton-wick, from the parishes of Thames-Ditton and East Molesey, till it comes opposite to Hampton-court-palace, where it joins the town division of Hampton, and leaving the river goes up the centre of the Privy-gardens to the south front of the Palace, along which it proceeds eastward, and thence along the east front of the Palace northward, and returns westward up the Office-yard, and along the south wall of the Kitchen-garden, to within fifteen feet of the west wall of the same, at which distance from the wall it continues in a northerly direction till it comes to the high road leading to Hampton, which it crosses, and passing through a house, the property of Mr. Evans, proceeds in a straight line to an oak tree in Bushy-park, and thence to a tree on the west side of the avenue leading from Hampton-court to Teddington, up which avenue it continues nearly to the end of the park, where it leaves the town division, and joining the parish of Teddington, proceeds in an easterly direction to a tree close to the foot-path leading from Teddington-park-gate to Hampton-wick, whence it goes out of Bushy-park, and crossing a road, called Sandy-lane, passes round two pieces of land, called the Pepper-pieces, and again enters the park for a short distance; it then again leaves the park, and proceeds eastward till it reaches the river Thames, where, leaving the parish of Teddington, and rejoining that of Kingston, it continues along the centre of the river till it reaches Kingston-bridge where the boundary commenced; an isolated portion at the north western extremity of the district is bounded on the east and north by the parish of Teddington, and on the west and south by the town division of Hampton, which district is more particularly described in the accompanying plan, and is therein surrounded by a red line:

That the consent of the Lord Bishop of London has been obtained thereto, as required by the above-mentioned section of the said Act of the 58th year of His Majesty King George the Third; and humbly praying that His Majesty would be graciously pleased to take the premises into His Royal consideration, and to make such order therein as to His Majesty shall seem meet:—His Majesty, having taken the said representation into consideration, was pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to approve thereof, and to order, as it is hereby ordered, that the proposed division be accordingly made and effected, agreeably to the provisions of the said Acts.
