TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1832.

AT the Council-Chamber, Whitehall, the 22d day of September 1832,

By the Lords of His Majesty's-Most Honourable Privy Council.

WHEREAS by an Act, passed in the second year of the reign of His present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the prevention, as far as may be possible, of the disease, called the cholera, or spasmodic, or Indian cholera, in England," it is, amongst other things, enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the Lords and others of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, or any two or more of them (of whom the Lord President of the Council, or one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State for the time being, shall always be one), by any Order or Orders to be by them from time to time made, to establish, and again, from time to time, by any such Order or Orders, to revoke, renew, alter, or vary all such rules and regulations, or to substitute any such new rules and regulations, as to them may appear necessary or expedient, for the prevention, as far as may be possible, of the spreading of the said disease, called the cholera, or spasmodic, or Indian cholera, in England or Wales, or any part thereof, or for the relief of any persons suffering under, or likely to be affected by, the said disease :

And whereas the said disease hath extended itself to many parts of Great Britain; and the town of Manchester, and the New Bailey Prison of the said town have been, and now are, grievously affected by the same:

And whereas the committee of visiting magistrates of the said New Bailey Prison, by a memorial, bearing date the twentieth day of September instant, and the surgeon to the said prison, in a report accompanying the said memorial, have represented to the Lords and others of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, that notwithstanding all proper precautionary measures had been taken to prevent the introduction of the said disease of cholera, or spasmodic, or Indian cholera, therein, such disease had broken out within the walls of the said prison, and the number of prisoners attacked with the said disease was daily increasing, and the ordinary prison hospital, with the addition of a temporary hospital furnished for the purpose, was found quite insufficient for the reception of those who applied for admission thereto; and further stating, that it is quite impossible to provide within the prison sufficient accommodation for the prisoners already affected with the said disease, so as to give them a fair chance of recovery, but that in the cholera hospital of the town such patients might receive the attendance and comforts essential to their situation under safe confinement; and further representing, that there are at present five hundred and twenty prisoners in the same gaol, to all of whom, from want of sufficient space to effect a separation of sick from healthy prisoners, the said disease may extend:

And whereas it doth appear to the Lords of His
