Admiralty, December 1, 1832.

NOTICE is hereby given, that information has been received at this Office from His Majesty's Consul at Elsenaur, dated the 30th October last, that by order of the Danish Government, and with the view of facilitating the navigation through the Belts and the Sleswick Holstein Canal, a new lighthouse has been erected on the north east side of the island of Fehmern, near the coast of Holstein.

It stands on the Oldenburg Heck, in the vicinity of the dangerous Puttgardens Reef.

Upon it, and at the height of 92 Danish feet (100 Hamburg feet) above the level of the sea, is placed a lamp, which may be seen, when the eye is 10 feet above the water, around the whole island, at the distance of 3 7-10ths miles, until the land is approached within $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{1}{4}$ mile, except in the direction of between S. 7° W. and S. 15° E. by compass, when the light will be hid by the hill of Cathrinenhof, in any less distance than $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles.

The light consists of six lamps with reverberators, which are made to turn round by clock-work in three minutes, during which space a strong light will be seen six times, each light shewing itself for about ten seconds, and disappearing afterwards for twenty seconds, although when near, the reflection of the lamps will be perceivable between the appearances of the lights.

The light on Fehmern will be distinguished by its revolving lights, from the others in the neighbourhood, which are fixed lights.

From the light on Giedser, the south point of Falster, the Fehmern light bears $6\frac{1}{4}$ miles W. 9° N. and from the light on Fakkebjerg, the south end of Laaland, $5\frac{3}{4}$ miles S. 34 E by compass.

The light on Fehmern will commence burning next month, and will be kept constantly lighted, from Easter to Michaelmas one hour, and from Michaelmas to Easter a half hour, after sun-set to sun-rise.
