FRIDAY, AUGUST 8, 1834.

Whitehall, August 8, 1834.

THE following Addresses to the King have been presented to His Majesty, who was pleased to receive the same very graciously:

To the KING.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's faithful subjects, the Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland, beg leave most gratefully to express to your Majesty the deep sense we entertain of your Majesty's favour in granting to us, by your royal warrant, a new and supplementary charter, confirming and extending those corporate rights which we have hitherto enjoyed through the favour of the Crown.

Devoted, by the purposes of our Institution, to the improvement of our native country, we receive this mark of your royal favour as the earnest of your Majesty's paternal solicitude to promote the prosperity of the country, as founded on the progress of industry and the cultivation of the useful arts. And it is grateful to us to call to our recollection, that it has been under the beneficent sway of your Illustrious House that the industry of this country has been the most favoured; that agriculture, commerce, and all the arts have been the most successfully cultivated; and that the greatest advances have been made towards that solid strength of the State which is founded on the numbers, enterprise, and opulence of the people.

Feeling the blessings we have enjoyed under a true liberty, maintained and tempered by the supremacy of the law, we beg to express our ardent attachment to those institutions of the State under which the nation has so greatly prospered; our dutiful devotion to your Royal Person and Family; and our unabating confidence that your Majesty, in the discharge of the high function of your Royal office, will prove alike the friend of the liberties of the people and the guardian of the rights of the Throne.

Sealed with the seal of the Society, and signed by his Grace the Duke of Buccleuch and Queensberry, the President, by desire of the Society, in a General Meeting assembled.

*Buccleuch and Queensberry, Pt.
Edinburgh, July 7, 1834.*

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble and dutiful Address of the Guildry Incorporation of Perth, North Britain.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Members of the Guildry Incorporation of Perth, in a General Meeting within our Hall legally assembled, beg to approach the Throne with sentiments of veneration and respect, and to express to your Majesty the gratitude which we feel, in common with our fellow subjects, for the firm and determined support uniformly bestowed by your Majesty upon the liberal and reforming Administration of Earl Grey.

We also presume to express our firm confidence and conviction, that the Administration which has now been formed, in consequence of the regretted retirement of that Nobleman, is entitled to, and will receive, the confidence of the country.

That your Majesty may long be spared to reign in happiness and peace, over a free, contented, and loyal people, is our sincere and fervent prayer.

Signed, in behalf of the Guildry of Perth, in presence of a General Meeting, this 22d of July 1834.

Rob. Bower, Dean of Guild.
