BILL, NOTE, AND RECEIPT STAMPS.

CHANGE OF DIES.

*Stamps and Taxes, London,
August 21, 1834.*

WHEREAS the Commissioners of Stamps having, in the month of November 1833, pursuant to an Act of the 3d and 4th William 4, cap. 97, discontinued the use of the several dies theretofore used for denoting the stamp duties payable by law, in respect of Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes (except banker's re-issuable notes for sums not exceeding £10) and Receipts; and having provided in lieu thereof new dies, to be used after the said 30th day of November last, for denoting the duties aforesaid, from which day they declared, that such new dies should be the only true and lawful dies for denoting the duties on Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes (except such as before mentioned) and Receipts; and whereas many persons have in their possession Stamps for Bills, Notes, and Receipts, rendered useless by reason of the introduction of the said new dies, which they neglected to present to be restamped with the new dies, within the period of three calendar months prescribed for that purpose by the Act above mentioned: notice is hereby given that, for affording relief in such cases, an Act has been passed (4 and 5 W. 4, cap. 57), extending the time for restamping Bill and Receipt Stamps, rendered useless by the new dies above referred to, for a further period of six months from the 13th day of August instant. All persons, therefore, who have in their possession such Stamps, which have so become useless, will be entitled to have impressions of the new dies in lieu thereof, on the useless Stamps being presented at the Head Office for Stamps in Westminster, or
