The KING's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

WHEREAS by an Act, passed in the sixth year of the reign of His present Majesty, intituled "An Act to provide for the regulation of municipal corporations in England and Wales," which received the Royal assent on the ninth of September last, after reciting that it was expedient that certain boroughs of large population, should be divided into wards before any election of councillors for such boroughs should take place, it was, among other things, enacted, that every borough in the schedule (A.) to the said Act annexed, should be divided into the number of wards mentioned in such schedule, in conjunction with the name of such borough: and that it should be lawful for the barrister or barristers appointed, in pursuance of the provisions therein-before contained, to revise the burgess and councillors' lists of any borough in the present year, and he and they was and were thereby required, within the space of six weeks next after the passing of the said Act, to determine and set out the extent, limits, and boundary lines of such wards, and what portions of such borough should be included therein respectively, and the copy of the particulars of such division, should be forthwith transmitted to one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and (if His Majesty, by the advice of His Privy Council, should approve such determination) should be published in the London Gazette, and every such borough should, as should be mentioned respectively in that behalf in such order, as if the days and times mentioned in such order had in every instance been mentioned in the said Act, instead of the days and times thereinbefore respectively mentioned in that behalf: and whereas, by an Order in Council, dated the thirtieth day of September last, His Majesty (by advice of His Privy Council) did order that it should be lawful for the barrister or barristers, appointed in pursuance of the provisions in the said Act contained, to determine and set out the extent, limits, and boundary lines of the wards into which it is provided, by the said Act, that certain boroughs of large population should be divided, and what portions of such boroughs should be included therein respectively, within the space of sixty days next after the passing of the said Act, instead of the space of six weeks next after the passing of the said Act: and whereas William Longley, of the Inner-temple, Esq. and Edward Smirke, of the Middle-temple, Esq. the barristers appointed in pursuance of the provisions of the said Act, to revise the burgess and councillors' lists of the borough of Barnstaple, in the county of Devon, in the present year (the said borough of Barnstaple being one of the boroughs included in the said schedule), did, within sixty days next after the passing of the said Act, in due manner, determine and set out the extent, limits, and boundary lines of the wards of the said borough, according to the provisions of the said Act, and what portion of the said borough shall be included therein respectively, and the said barristers, after the division of such borough into such number of wards as is directed by the said Act, and within the said period of sixty days, did, in due manner, apportion among the several wards of such borough, the number of councillors mentioned, in conjunction with the name of such borough, in the said schedule; and the said barristers have duly transmitted a copy of the particulars of such division, and of the particulars of the number of councillors so assigned to the several wards of the said borough, to one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, in the words following, that is to say:

The KING'S Most Excellent Majesty in Council,

WHEREAS by an Act, passed in the sixth year of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled "An Act to provide for the regulation of municipal corporations in England and Wales," which received the Royal assent on the ninth of September last, after reciting that it was expedient that certain boroughs of large population should be divided into wards, before any election of councillors for such boroughs should take place, it was, among other things, enacted, that every borough in the schedule (A.) to the said Act annexed, should be divided into the number of wards mentioned in such schedule, in conjunction with the name of such borough; and that it should be lawful for the barrister or barristers appointed, in pursuance of the provisions therein-before contained, to revise the burgess and councillors' lists of any borough in the present year, and he and they was and were thereby required, within the space of six weeks next after the passing of the said Act, to determine and set out the extent, limits, and boundary lines of such wards, and what portions of such borough should be included therein respectively, and the copy of the particulars of such division should be forthwith transmitted to one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and (if His Majesty, by the advice of His Privy Council, should approve such determination) should be published in the London Gazette, and every such borough should, after such publication as aforesaid, be deemed to be divided into such wards as should be so determined and set out as aforesaid, and such division should continue and be in force until the same should be altered by authority of Parliament: and it is thereby further enacted, that the said barrister or barristers should, after the division of the borough into such number of wards as is directed by the said Act, apportion among the several wards of such borough the number of councillors mentioned, in conjunction with the name of such borough, in the said schedule: provided always, that the number of councillors assigned to each ward should be a number divisible by three, and a copy of the particulars of the number of councillors so assigned to the several wards of the borough, should be forthwith transmitted to one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and (subject as aforesaid to the approval of His Majesty, by the advice of His Privy Council) should be published in the London Gazette, and the number of councillors so assigned to each ward of such borough should, after such publication as aforesaid, be the number to be elected in such ward, and should so continue until the same should be altered by authority of Parliament; and it was thereby further enacted, that it should be lawful for His Majesty (if he should think fit by the advice of His Privy Council) to order any days and times, before the first of February next, for doing the several matters required and authorised by the said Act to be done, in lieu of the several days and times for the present year therein-before specified, or any of them: and, in such case, all matters mentioned in such order should be done on and within such days and times as should be mentioned respectively in that behalf in such order, as if the days and times mentioned in such order had in every instance been mentioned in the said Act, instead of the days and times therein-before respectively mentioned in that behalf; and whereas, by an Order in Council, dated the thirtieth day of September last, His Majesty (by advice of His Privy Council) did order, that it should be lawful for the barrister or barristers appointed, in pursuance of the provisions in the said Act contained, to determine and set out the extent, limits, and boundary lines of the wards into which it is provided, by the said Act, that certain boroughs of large population should be divided, and what portions of such boroughs should be included therein respectively, within the space of sixty days next after the passing of the said Act, instead of the space of six weeks next after the passing of the said Act; and whereas Edward Younge, Esq. and Edward Crompton Lloyd Hall, Esq. the barristers appointed, in pursuance of the provisions of the said Act, to revise the burgess' and councillors' lists of the borough of Chester, in the present year (the said borough of Chester being one of the boroughs included in the said schedule), did, within sixty days next after the passing of the said Act, in due manner, determine and set out the extent, limits, and boundary lines of the wards of the said borough, according to the provisions of the said Act, and what portions of the said borough shall be included therein respectively: and the said barristers, after the division of such borough into such number of wards as is directed by the said Act, and within the said period of sixty days, did, in due manner, apportion, among the several wards of such borough, the number of councillors mentioned, in conjunction with the name of such borough, in the said schedule: and the said barristers have duly transmitted a copy of the particulars of such division, and of the particulars of the number of councillors so assigned to the several wards of the said borough to

said boundary line touches the boundary line of Trinity Ward hereinafter described, in the middle of the stream of the said river Dee; from which point it follows the southern boundary line of Trinity Ward as hereinafter described, until it meets the point at which the boundary line of St. Mary's Ward commences as aforesaid; (that is to say), from the said point at which a line to be drawn down the middle of the river Dee crosses the extreme boundary line of the said city along a line to be drawn up the middle of the said river in a north-easterly direction, and following the windings of the said river until it comes to the centre of the new Grosvenor-bridge over the same; thence north-easterly along the middle of the said bridge by a line to be drawn up the middle of Grosvenor-street until it meets a line to be drawn along the middle of the ancient city walls; from thence northerly along the middle of the said ancient city walls to the middle of the Watergate; thence eastwardly along a line to be drawn through the middle of Watergate-street until it meets the point at which the boundary line of this Ward commences. And we do hereby further certify, that in the said Ward, called St. Mary's Ward, are included and contained the following portions of the said borough of Chester; (namely) the south side of Watergate-street, the west side of Upper Bridge-

"We, the undersigned Barristers, duly appointed under the provisions of the "Act to provide for the regulation of municipal corporations in England and Wales," to revise the burgess lists of the city of Coventry in the present year, and by the same Act required to determine and set out the extent, limits, and boundary lines of the six wards into which that municipality is directed to be divided, have proceeded to Coventry for that purpose, and having, in order to ascertain the existing municipal boundaries, which by the seventh section of the Act, and the second section of schedule (A.) thereto, are directed to remain as before, perused and carefully considered the several charters of the corporation from the earliest period, an old leet-book of the manor of Coventry, extending back to the year 1419, and a manuscript volume upon the charters and franchises of the corporation, by Humphrey Burton, who was a solicitor and coroner of Coventry in the early part of the 17th century, and successfully defended its rights and franchises against Charles Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall, afterwards King Charles the First; and being satisfied, from this investigation, that the municipal boundaries of Coventry are co-extensive with the county of the city; and having examined the rate-books of the several parishes, and considered the other evidence and information laid before us, have divided, and do hereby divide, the said city and county of the city of Coventry into six wards, to be respectfully named, Spon-street Ward, Earl-street Ward, Gosford-street Ward, Bishop-street Ward, Cross-cheaping Ward, and The North Ward. And for apportioning the thirty-six councillors by the said Act directed to be by us apportioned among the several wards aforesaid, we, having regard, as far as we deem it practicable, as well to the number of persons rated to the relief of the poor in each ward, as to the aggregate amount of the sums at which all the said persons are so rated, and with reference to the provision in the said Act requiring that the number of councillors assigned to each ward shall be a number divisible by three, do hereby apportion the same thirty-six councillors in manner following, that is to say, six of the said councillors to the said Spon-street Ward, six of the said councillors to the said Earl-street Ward, six of the said councillors to the said Gosford-street Ward, three of the said councillors to the said Bishop-street Ward, six of the said councillors to the said Cross-cheaping Ward, and the remaining nine of the said councillors to the said North Ward.
