Genova, July 6.

Since our last arrived here the Providence from Leghorne, and the Friendship and Hopeful from Spain. This Morning sailed from hence the Spanish and Genouese Gallies 37 in number, with three Gallions and four Barks, all very well fitted, and the Genouese commanded by Don Hippolito Centurione; They got this Evening to Vada near Savona, where they are to take in more Soldiers: Since they went from hence a Felucca has been dispatched to give them notice that the French Fleet is in the Bay of Rosés.

Venice, July 8. We have received advice from Corfu that the Sieur Molino sailed from thence the sixth of the last month for the Archipelago, having under his command 13 Men of War of this State, and two Fireships, and three Men of War of Malta; which is confirmed by a Vessel arrived from Zant; the Master whereof farther informs us, that four Gallies of the great Duke of Tuscany, and the two Men of War which the Republick bought of the Duke of Savoy, were arrived at Corfu, and that the Gallies of Malta were dayly expected there; What was reported of these Gallies having been engaged with several Men of War of Tripoli, is not confirmed. We have an account from Lieffina, that General Morosini was parted from thence for Corfu. The Pyrates of Daleigno and Sta. Maura have landed on the side of Zara and Senigallia, and have carried away near 100 Persons.

Dantzick, July 3. Our Letters from Czarrow tell us, that the Sieur Morosini Ambassador Extraordinary from the Republick of Venice, arrived there the 23d of the last month, and the next day continued his Journey for Fawarow, where the Court of Poland still was; and from Fawarow they write, that the King intended to receive the said Ambassador at Zolkiew, and from thence to go to his Army; And that his Majesty had named the Sieur Igursi to go in the quality of his Envoy to the Sophy of Persia.

Vienna, July 13. On Sunday last Te Deum was sung here, and the Cannon of this place were thrice discharged for the Victory obtained by the Imperial Army the 27th of the last month near Faccia. The news we have since, is, That the Duke of Lorraine had put two Battalions and some Dragoons into Pest; from whence they battered Buda with their Cannon; and that his Highness had ordered a Bridge of Boats to be laid over the Danube below Faccia, which would be finished the 10th Instant. From Presbourg they write that the Baron d'Orlitzky had with 400 Horse beaten a great Party of Rebels who were fallen into Moravia to ravage the Country, and that among the Prisoners he had taken, was the Baron Gyspar Bongrate an Officer in much Reputation with the Rebels. And that the Sieur Gombor de Patnocke had defeated another Party of the Rebels, and had taken five Standards and 30

Prisoners. The Castle of Ungwar in the Upper Hungary is closely besieged by the Rebels, but we hope it will be timely relieved. We continue to work here on the two Bastions and the Ravelin that were ruined during the Siege, which are almost finished. Several Boats are sent daily from hence with Ammunition and Provisions for the Imperial Army; and divers Officers have of late passed through this place going for Hungary with the Recruits they have raised.

Lintz, July 15. The last Letters from Hungary gave an account that the Imperial Army would re-pass the Danube the 11th and 12th Instant, and that the Duke of Lorraine was resolved to advance directly to Buda, and to attack that place, which is of no great strength, having only an old Wall and Towers, without any Modern Fortification. The Emperor intends to part from hence with the whole Court the first of the next month, and to return to Vienna, whither orders have been accordingly sent to prepare things for their Imperial Majesties reception. The last Letters from Poland told us, that the King had given Audience to the Ambassador of Venice, and that he would part in a day or two, to put himself at the head of his Army; and that his Majesty had sent some Troops towards Upper-Hungary to relieve the Castle of Ungwar.

Ratisbonne, July 20. From Hungary we have an account that the Militia of that Kingdom are drawn together, making a Body of above 10000 men under the command of their Palatine the Count d'Eslerbasi; and that the greatest part of them are to joyn the Imperial Army, and the rest to guard the Passages about Newbudsch. That the Duke of Lorraine was laying a Bridge over the Danube at the Isle of St. Andrew, which he intended to pass and to attack Buda, though he had advice that the Turks lay encamped in a considerable Body not far from that place; That General Caprara with 6000 men (among which were 600 Hungarians that had deserted Count Teckley) and the Chevalier Lubomirski with 4000 Polcs, had joyned the Imperial Army, which with these reinforcements is become above 40000 strong. And that Count Lesty had orders to march with the Troops under his command towards the Bridge of Effecke. There were with the Body of Turks that was lately defeated near Faccia 4000 Tartars, who not having time to repair the Danube at Pest, which the Turks did in great disorder and precipitation, retreated towards Erla. They write from Poland that the Turks had put some men and Provisions into Caminitz, having beaten a Party of Poles that would have hindered it. That a considerable number of Cossacks, after having received a great Sum of Money from the Pope's Nuncio, had left their General Mohila and were gone home, and though several Officers were sent after them to persuade them to return, yet it was feared it would not be of any effect; That the King of Poland intended to go into the Field the 10th Instant, and that the Marquis de Baisnue would attend him as a Volunteer.

Frankfort,

Frankfort, July 21. This day an Express passed through this place by whom we have Letters of the 19th Instant from Lintz, which give an account; That the Imperial Army having repulsed the Danube betwixt Waldsee and Buda, they advanced on the 16th Instant towards the Turks that were encamped in several odies, and having forced them from their Camps, pursued them three Leagues beyond Buda, which put the Inhabitants of that City into so great a Consternation, that they abandoned the lower Town, having first set Fire to several Houses, but the Imperialists entered the place time enough to put out the Fire before it had done any great harm; After which they advanced to the Ditch of the upper Town, and having made themselves Masters of it, they attached the Miners to the Wall, and were at work (when the Express that brought this news came from the Camp) to raise several Batteries as well against the Town as the Castle, which it was hoped would not hold out many days.

Cologne, July 21. The Troops of our Elector continue encamped at Zons; The general review that was appointed to have been held yesterday, being put off for a day or two. We have advice that part of the Marschal de Crequi's Army is come into the Country of Eysse, about nine Leagues from hence; And it's believed they will joyn the Elector's Forces.

Brussels, July 25. Monsieur de Chinay parted from hence the 22th Instant, having as we told you in our last, settled with the Marquis de Grana the matter of the Contributions. This day his Excellency entertained all his General Officers at Dinner at a House near the Camp, which will break up to-morrow, and the Troops will return to their several Garisons; But it's said his Excellency intends before they march off, to reform 40 Troops of Horse, and to put the men into other Troops, which are to be made up 50 each. Last night arrived here an Express, by whom we have Letters from the Imperial Camp before Buda of the 16th Instant, they tell us, That the Duke of Lorraine having caused the Army to pass the Danube over a Bridge of Boats at the Isle of St. Andrew, which they did without any opposition from the Turks, who being encamped in several Bodies on this side Buda, upon the approach of the Christians abandoned their Quarters, and fled in the greatest fear and consternation imaginable; His Highness advanced with the Army in great order to Buda, and detached some Troops to attack the lower Town, which they found the Enemy had quitted, having first set Fire to it, but the Imperialists entered it time enough to extinguish the Fire before it had done much damage; and when these Letters were written, their Mines were prepared, and their Batteries were almost finished, to attack the upper Town, which it's concluded is taken before this time. The Letters add, that the Duke of Lorraine had notice that Count Lesly had burnt the Bridge of Eysse; but that his Highness not having had any account of it from Count Lesly himself, gave no great credit to it.

Alague, July 25. The term of three weeks, in which it was stipulated the Ratifications of the Treaty signed the 20th Inst., should be exchanged, expiring the 28th Instant, the States General resolved by Plurality (the Provinces of Zeeland, Gelderland, and Overse) not having yet sent in their contents to ratify the Treaty; and that after which their Deputies went to the House of the French Ambassador, and exchanged with him the Ratifications of the said Treaty. The States of Holland have, in consideration the disbanding the Recruits that were raised two or three years ago, and that they may consult the Prince of Orange therein, they have, we are told, written to his Highness to desire his presence in their Assembly when this matter is in deliberation; And his Highness is expected here on Friday next.

Paris, July 26. The French Fleet continues on the Coast of Capriana; and will, it's said, be reinforced with six Men of War more from Thoulon; Monsieur du Laefne is very ill of a Fever, but continues however on board his Ship. We have advice that part of the Venetian Fleet commanded by the Sieur Molino was arrived in the Archipelago, and had taken several Turkish Gallies, and an Island, where they made a very considerable Booty. It is added that the Morlaques being joyned with the Venetian Troops in Dalmatia, had defeated a great Body of Turks, of whom 1000 were killed upon the place; of which we must expect a more particular account.

Deale, July 17. This Morning about 50 Sail of Merchant Ships outward bound sailed out of the Dowes, the Wind at N.E.
