By the QUEEN.

A PROCLAMATION.

VICTORIA, R.

WHEREAS great numbers of evil-disposed and disorderly persons have lately, in some parts of Great Britain, assembled themselves together, after sunset, by torch-light in large bodies, and in a tumultuous manner, with banners, flags, and other ensigns, and have continued so assembled until a late hour of the night; and, during the time they were so assembled, have, by loud shouts and noises, and by the discharge of fire arms, and the display of weapons of offence, greatly alarmed the inhabitants of the neighbourhood of such assemblies, and endangered the public peace: We, therefore, being sensible of the mischievous consequences to be apprehended from such illegal meetings, and of the dangerous tendency thereof, not only to the peace of Our kingdom, but to the lives and properties of Our subjects, do hereby warn and command all persons to desist from such assemblies at their peril; and do further command all justices of the peace, sheriffs, constables, and other peace officers, to use their utmost endeavours to prevent all such illegal assemblies, and to bring the offenders to justice.
