

to them to be expedient, that a particular district should, under the provisions of the sixteenth section of an Act, passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act to amend and render more effectual an Act, passed in the last session of Parliament, for building, and promoting the building, of additional churches in populous parishes," be assigned to the consecrated church, called Christ Church, situate in the said parish of Doncaster; and that such district should be named, "The Chapelry District of Christ Church, Doncaster," and be bounded as follows:

"On or towards the south by the parish of Cantley, on or towards the west by the township of Hexthorpe with Balby, in the said parish of Doncaster, on or towards the north, by proceeding in a north easterly direction along the middle of the road leading from Sheffield to Doncaster, as far as Saint Sepulchre's-gate; it then proceeds south easterly down the middle of Printing Office-street to Cleveland-street, and crossing that street continues south easterly, down the middle of Wood-street to the Horse-fair; it then turns easterly towards Hall-gate, up the middle of which it proceeds northerly, as far as Princes-street, and then turns north easterly for about ninety-one feet and a half to the north east corner of the house on the north side of Princes-street, next adjoining upon Hall-gate, and passing through the houses on the northern side of that street it then takes a straight line northerly, crossing Chapel-yard and Bradford-row, and continues northerly, between the backs of the houses and premises on the eastern side of Hall-gate and the western side of East Laith-gates, and enters Silver-street at the distance of three hundred and sixty-three feet from the north west corner of East Laith-gates to the west side of the house occupied by Mr. Trains; it then proceeds north easterly, along the middle of Silver-street, as far as East Laith-gates, down the middle of which it turns southerly, as far as the footpath on the south side of Nether-hall; it then proceeds north easterly along the middle of that footpath till it enters Broxholme-lane, which it crosses, and proceeds in a south easterly direction along another footpath into the road leading from Doncaster to Thorne, and passes along the middle of that road, easterly, as far as Armthorpe-lane; it then proceeds down the middle of that lane, in a southerly and easterly direction, as far as the township of Sandall, in the said parish of Doncaster; and on or towards the east the district is bounded by the said township of Sandall, as the same is more particularly delineated on the plan hereunto annexed, and thereon coloured yellow:

"That baptisms, churchings, and burials should be solemnized and performed in the said church, called Christ Church; and that the fees arising from baptisms and churchings should be received for and on account of, and paid to, the present Vicar of the said parish of Doncaster, during his incumbency of such parish; but that, upon his avoidance thereof, the said fees should belong and be paid to the incumbent for the time being of the said church, called Christ Church; and that the fees arising from the performance of burials should be regulated and applied under the provisions of an Act, passed in the session of Parliament holden in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act for erecting a church in the parish of Doncaster, in the west riding of the county of York."

"That the consent of the Most Reverend Edward Lord Archbishop of York has been obtained thereto, as required by the Act and section firstly hereinbefore mentioned; in testimony whereof, the said Edward Lord Archbishop of York has signed and sealed this representation:

"Your Majesty's Commissioners, therefore, humbly pray, that your Majesty will be graciously pleased to take the premises into your royal consideration, and to make such order in respect thereto as to your Majesty in your royal wisdom shall seem meet."

Her Majesty, having taken the said representation, together with the plan thereunto annexed, into consideration, was pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to approve thereof, and to order, as it is hereby ordered, that the proposed assignment be accordingly made; and the recommendations of the said Commissioners, in respect of the solemnization of baptisms, churchings, and burials, and the fees arising therefrom, be carried into effect, agreeably to the provisions of the said Act.
