AT the Court at Windsor, the 31st day of October 1848,

PRESENT,

The QUEEN's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

IT is this day ordered by Her Majesty in Council, that the Parliament, which stands prorogued to Thursday the second of November next, be further prorogued to Tuesday the nineteenth day of December next.

Whitehall, October 30, 1848.

The Queen has been pleased to grant unto Edward Hughes, of Llangollen fechan, in the county of Denbigh, Esq. Her royal licence and authority, that, in compliance with a direction contained in the last will and testament of his kinswoman Margaret, widow of Richard Jones, of Bellau-place, in the parish of Rhuabon, in the county of Denbigh, Esq. deceased, he and his issue may henceforth take and use the surname of Parry, instead of that of Hughes :

And to command, that the said royal licence be registered in Her Majesty's College of Arms, otherwise to be void and of none effect.

Whitehall, October 25, 1848.

The Lord Chancellor has appointed John Archibald Campbell, of the city of Edinburgh, Gent. to be a Master Extraordinary in the High Court of Chancery, in that part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland called Scotland.

SECOND NOTIFICATION.

I. IN RESPECT TO THE ORDERS AND REGULATIONS ISSUED BY THE GENERAL BOARD OF HEALTH, UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF THE NUISANCES REMOVAL AND DISEASES PREVENTION ACT.

Whereas by the provisions of the "Nuisances Removal and Diseases Prevention Act," 1848, for the prevention of epidemic, endemic, and contagious diseases, and by virtue of an Order of the Lords of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, bearing date the 28th day of September 1848, directing that the said provisions of the said Act be put in force throughout the whole of Great Britain; we, the General Board of Health, are authorised to issue such directions and regulations as the said Board shall think fit for the prevention (as far as possible) or mitigation of epidemic, endemic, or contagious diseases; and whereas by the said Act it is provided, that the directions and regulations to be issued as aforesaid shall extend to all parts or places in which the said provisions of the said Act shall for the time being be in force, under the Order of Her Majesty's Privy Council, unless such directions or regulations shall be expressly confined to some of such parts or places, and then to such parts or places as in such directions and regulations shall be specified :

Now, in exercise of the authority vested in us as aforesaid, we, the General Board of Health, do issue the directions and regulations hereinafter contained, to extend to all parts and places within the above-named parishes, townships, and unions of parishes, and to all extra-parochial places adjoining to such parishes, townships, and unions of parishes respectively, viz. :—

I. We direct that all Surveyors and District or Assistant Surveyors of Highways, Trustees, County Surveyors, and others, by law entrusted with the care and management of the streets and public ways and places within the parts or places to which these directions and regulations extend, shall, once at least in every twenty-four hours, effectually cleanse all such of the streets, rows, lanes, mews, courts, alleys, closes, and passages, and public ways and places, under their respective care and management, as by the Medical Officer of the Guardians, or others authorized to superintend the execution of this direction and regulation, shall be certified in writing, to be in a state dangerous to health, or to require frequent and effectual cleansing by way of precaution against disease ; and shall remove all filth, ordure, and nuisances therefrom.

II. And where any such streets, rows, lanes, mews, courts, alleys, and any passages, public ways, or places, to which any houses or tenements adjoin, which have not been entrusted by law to the care or management of any Surveyors, Trustees, or others, have been certified in writing, by such Medical Officer as aforesaid, to be in a state dangerous to health, or to require such frequent and effectual cleansing, we direct that every occupier of a house or tenement so adjoining shall keep, or cause to be kept, sufficiently cleansed at least once in every 24 hours such part of the street, row, lane, mews, court, alley, or passage, or place as adjoins the house or tenement occupied by him.

And we direct that all such works of cleansing and removal of filth, ordure, and nuisances, as are required by these directions and regulations, shall be done in such manner by effectual washing or otherwise, and with the use of such fluids or substances for preventing the escape of noxious effluvia during the operation, as the Medical Officer of the Guardians or others authorized to superintend the execution of these directions and regulations shall think necessary and shall direct.

III. We do hereby authorize and require the Guardians of the Poor, Directors, Wardens, Governors, and other like officers, having the management of the relief of the poor for the said several parishes and unions of parishes to which these our directions and regulations extend, by themselves or by their officers or persons employed under them in the administration of the laws for the relief of the poor, or by officers or persons specially appointed in this behalf, to superintend and see to the execution of the foregoing directions and regulations within their respective parishes and unions, and in any extra-parochial places adjoining thereto respectively.

IV. And further, where it shall appear that by want or neglect of Surveyors, Trustees, or others entrusted with the care and management of the relief of the poor, or by reason of poverty of the occupiers or otherwise, there may be any default or delay in the cleansing of or removing nuisances from any street, row, lane, mews, court, alley, passage, or public way or place certified as aforesaid, within any parish or union, or any extra-parochial place adjoining thereto, we authorize and require such Guardians of the Poor, Directors, Wardens, Governors, and other like officers as aforesaid, for such parish or union, to cause such street, row, lane, mews, court, alley, passage, way, or place, to be effectually cleansed, and all nuisances to be removed therefrom, and to do all acts, matters, and things necessary for that purpose.

V. We also direct as follows :—

That,

When and so often as any dwelling-house, in any part or place to which these directions and regulations extend, is in such a filthy and unwholesome condition as to be a nuisance to or injurious to the health of any person, or,

Where upon any premises, or any part or place as aforesaid, there is any foul and offensive drain, ditch, gutter, privy, cesspool, or ashpit, or any drain, ditch, gutter, privy, cesspool, or ashpit, kept or constructed so as to be a nuisance to or injurious to the health of any person, or,

Where upon any such premises, swine, or any accumulation of dung, manure, offal, filth, refuse, or other matter or thing, is kept, so as to be a nuisance to or injurious to the health of any person, or,

Where upon any such premises (being a building used wholly or in part as a dwelling-house) or being premises underneath any such building any animal is kept so as to be a nuisance or injurious to the health of any person,

In each of the above recited cases, the owner or occupier, and persons having the care or ordering of such dwelling-house, or of the premises where the nuisance or matter injurious to health may be, shall cleanse, whitewash, or otherwise purify, as the case may require, such dwelling-house or building, or abate or remove the nuisance or matter injurious to health as aforesaid, with all reasonable speed, after the publication of these our directions and regulations, or after the nuisance or matter injurious to health shall have arisen.

VI. In case, by reason of poverty or otherwise, the occupier of any such dwelling-house or premises is unable to perform any works required by these directions or regulations, such occupier shall give notice of such his inability to the Guardians or others having the management of the relief of the poor for the parish or union comprising the place wherein the premises shall be situated.

VII. We authorize and require the Guardians, Directors, Wardens, Governors, and others having the management of the poor for the unions and parishes aforesaid, by themselves or by officers by them authorized in this behalf,

To see to the execution of the direction hereinbefore contained for the cleansing and and purifying of dwelling-houses, and for the abatement and removal of nuisances and matters injurious to health; and for that purpose,

To visit, from time to time, or cause to be visited the several dwellings and places where there may be ground for believing that necessity will arise for executing such directions.

VIII. And in every case in which from the poverty of occupiers or otherwise there may be default or delay in the cleansing or purifying of any such dwelling-house, or in the abatement or removal of any such nuisance or matter injurious to health, and the Medical Officer, or other person duly authorized as aforesaid, shall certify that the same requires immediate attention; and in every case in which from want of co-operation of the owners or occupiers there is any default or delay in cleansing any such drain, ditch, watercourse, or gutter into which several dwellings or tenements may drain;

We authorize and require such Guardians and others, having the management of the relief of the poor for the parish or union, to cause such dwelling-houses to be cleansed or purified, and such drain, ditch, watercourse, or gutter, to be frequently and effectually cleansed, and such nuisance or matter injurious to health to be abated and removed respectively, and to do all acts and provide all matters and things necessary for that purpose.

IX. And we do further authorize and require the Guardians to direct their Clerk of the said unions to make out from the Register of Deaths, or from the District Medical Relief Books, and from any public books or other sources from which information may be obtained within the union or parish, a list of places where epidemic, endemic, and contagious diseases have of late been frequent.

X. And we authorize and require such Guardians and others, having the management of the relief of the poor for each union or parish, to cause the Medical Officers employed by them, or specially appointed for the purpose, to visit the places, of which a list shall be made out as aforesaid, and all such neighbouring and other places within such union or parish as shall appear to such Medical Officers (from being under like circumstances with the places included in such list or otherwise) to require visitation or examination.

XI. And each such Medical Officer shall, where it may be necessary, certify in writing to the Board of Guardians, and to the Surveyors, Trustees, occupiers, or others required to execute these directions and regulations, all such places as are in a state dangerous to health, or need frequent and effectual cleansing by way of preservation against disease, and such dwelling-houses as are in a filthy and unwholesome condition, and all such nuisances and matters injurious to health as ought to be abated, cleansed, and removed under these regulations.

XII. And each such Medical Officer shall forthwith upon any case of cholera, or of typhus, or other epidemic, endemic, and contagious disease becoming known to him within the parish, union, or district under his visitation, report the same to the Guardians or others having the management of the poor for the union or parish.

XIII. And where it shall be certified to the Guardians or others having the management of the relief of the poor for any union or parish, by their Medical Officer or Officers, or where it shall otherwise sufficiently appear to such Guardians or others, that extraordinary medical aid is required for persons attacked or threatened by cholera or epidemic, endemic, or contagious disease, we authorize and require such Guardians and others to provide sufficient medical aid, and, in suitable places, such medicines as may be required in their respective parishes for necessitous persons attacked by cholera or by premonitory symptoms, and to make arrangements for the distribution of notices, stating the places where aid and medicines shall have been provided.

XIV. Whereas it has heretofore been found impracticable to ensure proper treatment in their own houses to many of the poorer classes, we authorize and require the said Guardians or others, where it shall appear that such extraordinary aid is required, to provide suitable rooms or places, capable of accommodating necessitous cases, to which persons attacked by cholera, who cannot be properly treated in their own houses, may be conveyed.

XV. And we also authorize and require the said Guardians or others, where it shall appear needful, to provide rooms or places of refuge to which may be removed the families of such necessitous persons as have been attacked with cholera, and also such necessitous persons living under the same roof with, or in the vicinity of, persons so attacked, as the Medical Officers acting under the authority of the said Guardians or others may deem it necessary to remove; and the houses, rooms, or dwellings, from which persons may have been so removed to the houses of refuge, shall be cleansed and purified by the owners or persons having the care or ordering thereof, or in their default, by the said Guardians, or others.

XVI. And on the occurrence of any case of cholera, or other epidemic, endemic, or contagious disease, in any room occupied by one family or more, we hereby authorize and require the Medical Officer to remove, or cause to be removed, either the patient, or so many of the occupants of such room as he shall consider would, unless removed, tend to prevent the recovery of the patient, or endanger the spreading of the disease.

XVII. And in case of death by cholera, or any other epidemic, endemic, or contagious disease, we hereby authorize and require the last medical attendant upon the person of the deceased, or in case of there having been no medical attendant, the housekeeper or person present at the death, or who is in charge of the body, forthwith to notify the fact of the death, to the Medical Officer of the district, who is charged with the execution of these orders for the prevention of the spread of such disease.

And we do hereby authorize such Medical Officer to give such directions as may appear to him to be needful, in respect to the care, removal, and the time of interment of the body for preventing the communication or spread of disease.

And we hereby authorize and require all persons to give such information or such assistance to such Medical Officer, and to be otherwise aiding him as he may need in the execution of these orders.

XVIII. And in the event of the fatal termination of any case of cholera, or of epidemic, endemic, or contagious disease, in any room occupied as a living or sleeping room by one family or more, or by numerous persons, we hereby authorize and require the Medical Officer to remove, or cause to be removed as speedily as may be, either the corpse, or the persons occupying such rooms, until the corpse can be conveniently removed and properly interred.

XIX. And we do authorize and direct the said Guardians or others to make arrangements for obtaining daily lists of persons attacked by cholera or other epidemic disease within their respective parishes or unions, with the particulars of their cases and treatment, and for communicating the same daily to the General Board of Health.

XX. And we do hereby authorize and direct the said Guardians or others, where it may appear needful, to appoint such additional Medical Officers, and also to appoint such other officers as may be necessary to execute and superintend the execution of these regulations, and to publish and circulate by printed hand bills, or other means, notices of the provisions of the said Act for the prevention of nuisances, and of our regulations and instructions, or of such part of any of them, as it may appear desirable to make publicly known.

Given under our hands and under the seal of the General Board of Health this twentieth day of October, one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight.

II. IN RESPECT TO INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO ORDERS AND REGULATIONS.

General Board of Health, Gwydyr-House, 31st October 1848.

The special object of those provisions of the Act 11th and 12th Vict. c. 123, which are brought into operation by the Order in Council, appears to the General Board of Health to be, that measures of precaution may be taken "with promptitude, according to the exigency of the case."

It was clearly within the view of Parliament, that other and more summary measures for cleansing, and the removal of nuisances than those contained in the first and second sections of the Act might be required, when the provisions for the prevention of epidemic and contagious diseases should be called into operation; and it has appeared to the Board to be requisite that the duties which, in ordinary times, devolve upon the owners and occupiers of dwellings, where an order of Justices has been obtained, should, under the threatened visitation of pestilence, be performed by the owners or occupiers, without the previous complaint and adjudication; and when the poverty of the occupiers or any other cause may delay the cleansing or the removal of the nuisance, that the Guardians should at once perform the necessary work.

Among the results of the sanitary inquiry, one of the most important was that which established the identity of the track of cholera with the track of typhus and other epidemic diseases: and as some, who will be called upon to carry into effect the orders and regulations of the General Board of Health, may not have read the statements on this point contained in the reports of the Sanitary Commissioners, it may be desirable to display the nature of the evidence on which this conclusion and the general course of action deduced from it are founded, and to show not only what are the true measures of prevention, but where those measures should be specially applied.

'It is now universally known,' say the Commissioners, 'that in the metropolis, as in every town and city, the places in which typhus is to be found, from which it is rarely if ever absent, and which it occasionally decimates, are the neglected and filthy parts of it; the parts unvisited by the scavenger; the parts which are without sewers, or which if provided with sewers are without drains into them; or which, if they have both sewers and house drains, are without a due and regulated supply of water for washing away their filth and for the purposes of surface cleansing and domestic use. The track of typhus is everywhere marked by the extent of this domain of filth,' and in illustration of the fact, that in 1822, this was equally the domain of cholera, the following, among other instances, are given,

"(cholera," says Mr. Bowie, "first appears in those localities in which typhus was accustomed to prevail, taking the place of typhus, afflicting the same persons and being influenced by the same circumstances."

"Cholera raged," says Dr. Murdoch, describing the manner in which it spread in Rotherhithe, "in the filthy places in which typhus fever is always prevalent, and were cholera again to re-appear, it would follow the law of typhus and typhoid fever, and first visit such neighbourhoods."

Of Southwark, Mr. Leadam says, "This was certainly one of the districts the most severely visited by cholera in the metropolis. The disease prevailed chiefly in the filthy dens which we have about us in the courts and alleys. The cholera track and the typhus track in this district were identical."

Mr. Hooper, describing such places as Three Tun-court, where there are 150 inhabitants with only one privy, and that without a covering, the fluid soil running down the court in front of all the houses, says, "these are the constant abodes of fever, and these are the places where cholera prevailed."

"The localities in which typhus is constantly present," says Mr. Wagstaff, "are the very localities in which cholera chiefly raged. I have at the present moment many cases of fever in the very places in which cholera was most prevalent."

Observations carefully made of the condition of the localities in which Asiatic cholera has again broken out in the metropolis, afford a striking corroboration of the evidence which, in 1832, established the identity of its track with that of fever.

The places in which the pestilence is now numbering its first victims, are the very spots which are known to be the filthiest in their respective districts, and to be the constant seats of typhus and other epidemic diseases. In tracing the individual cases reported to the General Board of Health, the medical inquirers, who, under the direction of the Board, have made a special investigation of the circumstances connected with the earliest attacks of the disease during its present visitation, have been led not only to the streets, courts, and alleys, but sometimes even to the very houses that are notorious as "fever nests."

As early as the middle of September, the attention of the Board was called to a case which proved fatal in eight hours, with the characteristic symptoms of Asiatic cholera prominently marked. On examining the surgeon, Mr. William Mutrie Fairbrother, 64, London-road, Southwark, who attended the case, it appeared that though the street and house in which the individual lived was not more filthy than the neighbouring streets and houses, yet that the whole district is in a wretched condition as to want of drainage and cleanliness. After describing the symptoms which induced him to believe that this man died of Asiatic cholera, in its intense form, Mr. Fairbrother gives the following evidence:—"I wish particularly to call your attention to another case of cholera which has come under my care in the same neighbourhood—the case of a woman, who was in extreme danger many hours, being speechless, pulseless, and affected with severer cramp than I had ever before witnessed. This woman lived within ten yards of an open ditch, in a horrible condition, in one of a row of houses called Pleasant-place, from which typhus is never absent in any part of the year; and I have at this time two very bad cases of this disease within thirty yards of this same ditch. Close to my own residence there is a court within a court, from which, ever since I have resided here, I have never known typhus fever absent. A family still residing in one of the houses in this court has lost four children by typhus fever within the last nine months, and the inhabitants of the place in general are very unhealthy. I may add, that diarrhoea has recently been general, both among children and adults; small pox, also, has been prevalent; scarlatina has been raging, and I have never witnessed so severe a form of this disease, which has proved unusually and very rapidly fatal, and great numbers, who have struggled through the stage of fever, have died of the dropsy that has supervened upon it. In one district, in the immediate neighbourhood of Uxbridge-street, Newington-causeway, there is scarcely a child in any house that has escaped an attack of this disease. In one of the houses, the father, mother, and child, that is to say, the whole of the family, were all attacked with it on the same day. Close to the houses thus affected there is an open drain, in a most filthy condition, concealed from the view of the passers-by by a wooden paling. On looking over this paling, which I have sometimes done, to see the condition of the drain, I have been seized with the feeling of suffocation, and have been unable to bear the odour arising from it for a moment."

One of the Assistant Surveyors of the Metropolitan Sewers Commission, Mr. Donaldson, being officially engaged at Lambeth on the 28th and 29th September, was informed of the prevalence and malignity of fever, and particularly scarlet fever, in several houses in Fore-street, and in King's Head-court, Lower Fore-street. "Four cases," he states, "were children under twelve years of age: the mother of two of them, residing in house No. 23, showed me one of her children, a girl, apparently of six or seven years of age, just recovering from fever, and she said, 'the doctor had remarked to her, that there seemed to be something particular about that immediate neighbourhood, as the fever was worse there than any where else.'" In the First Report of the Metropolitan Sanitary Commission, Mr. Wagstaffe, examined October 1847, gives the following evidence, "I have myself passed through two feet of water to get to the houses, being obliged to walk along the planks; the door ways of the houses at the time of high tide in Fore-street, Lambeth, being blocked up with boards and plaister to prevent the water from getting into the dwellings. I have often seen the soil from the cesspools swimming about in the water. Whenever typhus is prevalent in the metropolis it is invariably found in these localities, and common fever is very apt, in these places, to assume a typhoid type. This is the case at the present time with several cases now under my care."

Scarlet fever, measles, and small pox also are very apt to become malignant here under certain atmospheric conditions. These localities, in which typhus is constantly present, are the very localities in which cholera chiefly raged; and if cholera were again to re-appear, these would be the places which it would first visit, and in which it would be most prevalent and fatal." Accordingly, on the 1st October 1848, two days after Mr. Donaldson's visit, the occurrence of a fatal case of Asiatic cholera is reported on this very spot; namely, in Lower Fore-street (No. 26); a few days later another fatal case occurred in the same house; on the 4th October, a third fatal case occurred at No. 29 in the same street, and a fourth in that same house on the same day.

About the same time, namely, on the 30th September, four fatal cases of cholera occurred in rapid succession in White Horse-court, Chelsea; "one of the most filthy localities," says Mr. Keen, who attended the cases, "in the neighbourhood: the water foul; the drains all untrapped; the privies common to all the inhabitants;" "and at the entrance to the Court," says Dr. Parkes, "there are large dunghills where offal is thrown, and the effluvia from these and the drains are most offensive."

Two fatal cases of cholera have occurred in a court in Pitt-street, Old Kent-road, to which the officers had previously called the attention of the Sewers Commission, on account of its inhabitants having lately suffered severely from scarlet fever. "In three of the houses," says Dr. Parkes, who was requested to make an examination of the place, "every child and one of the adults have been ill with it; one child has died of dropsy following scarlatina, and this sequence has indeed been almost universal. All the inhabitants to whom I spoke complained of the place being unhealthy on account of the damp, and the effluvia from the cesspools; both adults and children have a pallid sickly hue."

The first decided case of cholera in the city of London, which occurred as early as the 2d of October, at No. 2, Harp-court, broke out close to one of the alleys which was reported some time ago to the Sanitary Commissioners as an example of the wretched condition of the habitations of the poorer classes; the court itself being described by Dr. Parkes as one of the dirtiest and most miserable places in the district of Saint Bride's.

Mr. Bowie states, "that the cases of cholera recently attended by him have occurred in the usual abodes of fever, and in the very places in which cholera formerly prevailed; and that the merchant vessels and colliers in the river, in which it has broken out, have been moored close to the openings of sewer mouths, while the ships themselves have been dirty and unventilated."

Where the chief conditions of disease are present, they operate alike in the village, the town, and the city. In the early part of October, four rapidly fatal cases occurred in the town of Uxbridge, three marked by the unequivocal characters of Asiatic cholera, and the fourth with symptoms nearly approaching it. One of these persons, attacked on the 5th of October, lived in a house notoriously insalubrious, in which three cases of malignant fever had already proved fatal; and so convinced was the surgeon who attended these fever cases that this spot presented all the conditions favourable to the origin and spread of epidemic disease, that he publicly stated his belief, that if cholera should visit Uxbridge, the first case would occur in this house; a prediction which has unfortunately been but too speedily verified. "Since I inspected the house," says Dr. Parkes, "another case of cholera has been reported as having occurred in it."

The conditions under which the pestilence is extending in Scotland are exactly similar. Closeness and filth are there also the cradle of the disease, and numerous instances have already occurred in which two, three, or even more persons have been either at the same time or in rapid succession seized in the same locality, and even in the same house.

The filthiest parts of Edinburgh are the Grass-market and West Port, and the closes and wynds running out of them, where tan-yards, manure manufactories, stables, piggeries, and all kinds of nameless abominations are permitted to exist in the closest proximity to human habitations. Next in order stands the Cowgate, with the various closes and wynds adjacent, and also the wynds of the High-street and Canongate. In Leith there is a similar district, composed of a collection of narrow filthy wynds, crowded by a wretched population. These are the perennial abodes of the epidemic diseases that afflict Edinburgh and Leith, and to these localities chiefly the cholera of 1832 confined its ravages. Since that visitation they have been often scourged by typhus fever and other epidemics; and here, with a few exceptional cases in equally bad localities, cholera has now again found its first and, hitherto indeed, its only victims. There are instances in which it has returned to the very same house which it ravaged on its former visitation. The first case of cholera, which occurred in Leith in 1832, was in a house in a narrow, filthy cul-de-sac behind King-street; and the spot where it broke out in Leith, for the first time at the beginning of the present month, was in the same lane, in a wretched lodging-house, a few feet from the dwelling whence it formerly commenced its career. Four cases of cholera have already occurred in that house.

This evidence, as to the influence of certain conditions of place, on the first outbreak and the rapid spread of cholera and other epidemic diseases, appears to indicate courses of action of primary importance with reference to the objects both of prevention and mitigation.

Operations of cleansing, both external and internal, are the primary means of prevention; and the places where the first measures of cleansing should be carried into effect, are indicated in the registers of death, in the case-books of the Medical Officers, and in the lists of the Relieving Officers, which shew the streets, courts, alleys, and the very houses in which sickness from epidemic disease has been prevalent, in many instances pauperizing the inhabitants, and in all increasing the necessity for parochial relief.

From these sources, therefore, as full a list as may be practicable should be made out of the places in which the measures of cleansing are the most urgently needed, and those lists should be completed by the aid of the reports of the Physicians and Surgeons having charge of dispensaries and hospitals.

As these lists are completed, copies of them should be forwarded as directories to the parochial Clergy and other members of the district committees, who will aid the local authorities in their examination from house to house of these epidemic localities. Not only should the particular houses in which epidemic disease has been prevalent be examined, but also the adjacent houses which will generally be found to be in the like unhealthy condition.

The police force, under the direction of the Watch Committees of the Town Councils, have been usefully employed in seeing that the cleansing operations are regularly and completely performed, in conveying informations, and in aiding local investigation; but the general direction of the measures of cleansing should be charged upon the Medical Officer, whose duty it will be to see that the owners and occupiers promptly carry those measures into effect. If, however, on account of sickness or poverty, or any other cause, the Medical Officer see reason to apprehend neglect or delay in the execution of those measures, then, he must immediately report such cases to the Board of Guardians, or to persons authorized by them to act in this behalf, who should forthwith direct able-bodied paupers to perform the work.

Where circumstances will not admit of the employment of able-bodied paupers, or where the assistance of paupers would be less efficient than the services of persons accustomed to the work, a sufficient number of men should be engaged for the special purpose of lime-washing and purifying the houses and apartments that may stand in need of such cleansing. Ample experience has shewn the efficiency and economy with which operations of this kind may be carried on. By the aid of two men, and with no other implements than a common pail and a painter's white-washing brush, Mr. Ramsay, Inspector of the Edinburgh Cleansing Committee, has shown that a second or third rate tenement, containing two or three apartments, may be effectually lime-washed at an expense not exceeding from 9d. to 1s. per tenement. "The solution of lime in water," says Mr. Ramsay, "is very quickly applied, and when the workmen become accustomed to it, which they soon do, they put the inmates to very little trouble, and do not occasion the usual splashing about of the material, the fear of which creates an aversion to the operation in the minds of indolent and infirm persons, not always to be overcome. When one or two houses have been cleansed and lime-washed, many of the neighbours, gratified with the fresh smell of the lime, and its light and agreeable effect on the black and dirty walls, apply to have their houses also washed; and others, seeing with how little inconvenience to themselves it is accomplished and its agreeable effects, on their permission being asked, very rarely refuse."

Fumigation with chlorine gas, under the eye of a medical man, this being a process which cannot be safely conducted except under medical inspection, is performed at an expense of less than 2d. for each room.

All the streets, courts, and alleys, the atmosphere of which is shown to be in a state of pollution by the presence of epidemic disease, should be thoroughly scoured out daily, and the dung-heaps of mews and stables also should be removed daily.

Where water is not laid on at high pressure but can be otherwise obtained, the most efficient means of cleansing will be by the use of a small fire or garden engine; but wherever water is laid on at high pressure, advantage should be taken of the hose and jet, which removes the dirt from the carriage-way much more effectually than the street sweeping machine; gives to the pavement the appearance of having been as thoroughly cleansed as the stone steps in front of private houses, and when properly applied in close and dirty courts and alleys, rapidly carries off the filth, destroys offensive smells, and by suddenly changing the temperature and so causing a current of air, produces a sense of coolness and refreshment.

Cesspools may be cleansed in one-third of the usual time, and at one-third of the usual cost, by means of a two-handled pump and hose, wherever there is a sewer within reach into which the contents may be discharged.

With reference to the larger works of cleansing, such as the cleaning out of long lines of ditches, or the removal of large masses of decomposing refuse, much mischief has sometimes been occasioned, when the operation has been so ignorantly and unskillfully conducted, as to increase the extent of the evaporating surface; as, when the contents of foul ditches have been spread out on the banks and allowed to remain there; and when cesspools have been emptied into drains or sewers having no proper fall, or no run for the discharge of the contents from beneath inhabited houses. Works of this kind should be conducted under the superintendence of a person who possesses some knowledge of the nature of the gases evolved; the atmospheric and other conditions that promote their copious evolution; their probable effects on susceptible persons; and the mode of diminishing or averting them, either by the proper use of deodorizing fluids or by other means. The medical officer, who may be expected to be the best informed in these respects, should therefore be required to take the general superintendence of such operations.

The removal or distribution of large masses of decomposing refuse cannot be expected to be effected without some danger; on the other hand there is a certainty of evil, if such matter is allowed to remain permanently near human habitations, while the risk from the act of removal, if it be tolerably well conducted, is but slight, and at all events can only be temporary.

In following the track of fever, the inquirer will soon be led to the low lodging houses, in which the conditions most favourable to the generation and spread of every form of epidemic disease, will be found to be the most intense and constant. The over-crowding and the neglect of ventilation produce in these places an insufferable closeness, which cannot be endured by a person unaccustomed to the pestilential atmosphere. "At night," says Dr. Duncan, "the floor of these dark and miserable abodes, often the bare earth is covered with straw, and there the lodgers, all who can afford to pay a penny for the accommodation, arrange themselves as best they may, until scarcely a single available inch of space is left unoccupied; and in this way as many as thirty human beings or more are sometimes packed together, each inhaling the poison which his neighbour generates." Even in lodging houses of a somewhat better class, "the beds and bedding," says Dr. Howard, "are seldom washed or changed, and are generally in the most filthy condition; even if a bed has been occupied by a fever patient who has died, it is often immediately used by fresh lodgers." "In one room, containing seven beds," says Dr. Lyon Playfair, "each occupied by two persons, I found a young sailor, of about twenty-five years of age, suffering from synochus (common continued fever); his sister, a girl of twenty, occupied the same bed. In another house, I found a little girl suffering from scarlatina, and in the same bed slept her father, and, as the keeper of the house said, 'any other lodger that might come:'" so literally true is it, that keepers of these lodging-houses are, as Dr. Ferriar calls them, "keepers of fever-beds." And, in some places, these "fever-beds" produce on a large scale their natural results. "The lodging-houses," says Dr. Cowan, of Glasgow, "are the media through which the newly-arrived immigrants find their way to the fever hospital; and it is remarkable how many of the inmates of that hospital, coming from lodging-houses, have not been six months in the city."

Under the authority conferred upon the Guardians, their Medical Officer may enter these lodging-houses and require them to be duly ventilated and cleansed, and where he finds a dangerous overcrowding, he may order the parties to be removed.*

Having thus denoted, more fully than they were enabled to do in their first notification, some of the most important measures of prevention, the General Board of Health would now advert to the measures of alleviation that may be found available, should the disease, which has broken out nearly at the same time in many widely distant parts of the country, unhappily prevail as an epidemic.

The importance of the precaution already given in the notification, as to the urgent necessity of the earliest attention to the premonitory symptom, is confirmed by every day's experience. Opportunities have been recently afforded for carefully observing the circumstances connected with the first outbreak of this disease, both in this country and abroad, and the clear result of such observation is, that some of its earliest victims are seized without warning, but that this is the case with comparatively few. In the great majority of instances, even in the early days of its invasion, and almost universally after the violence of its first blow has been spent, distinct warning of its approach is given. That warning, as has been explained, is a relaxed state of the bowels, and whoever has that complaint, in however slight a degree, should, during the present season of danger, place himself immediately under medical care. The medicines recommended in the first notification were intended to be placed in the custody of the heads of families, the masters of schools and workhouses, the owners or agents of large establishments, clergymen, and other intelligent persons, for administration only at times and under circumstances, when medical assistance could not be promptly procured. With such a disease as cholera impending, a due regard to his own safety and to the safety of those who are naturally dependent on his care, should induce every one to avail himself without delay of the best assistance within his reach. And for those who cannot afford to pay for medical attendance, or who would not be likely to incur the expense of it, for a complaint apparently so trifling, dispensaries must be opened in convenient situations, with proper medical attendance, if practicable, day and night, where medical advice and medicine may be procured.

* Indian experience as to the influence of over-crowding in promoting the spread of cholera, is in perfect accordance with our own. "The disease commits its greatest ravages," says Mr. Samuel Rogers, Surgeon of the Madras Army, "in crowded ill-ventilated barracks, bazaars, densely populated towns, particularly such as are surrounded by walls, preventing the ingress of pure air; and in that portion of them, where carbonic acid gas is by the decomposition of animal and vegetable refuse being evolved, crowded school-rooms, the inhabitants of a portion of a barrack in the vicinity of an open drain, native huts into which there is but one opening and that closed at night, whole families are frequently swept away from their exposure to this existing cause; but when cholera appears in a family occupying a superior station in life, and in whose house pure air always exists, the disease is almost invariably confined to the individual first attacked, and which in most instances is to be attributed to an accidental exposure to a poisoned atmosphere beyond the walls of his own dwelling. Cholera," continues Mr. Rogers, "is a usual attendant at native festivals, where crowds of people are collected. At Juggernaut it is an annual visitant." "The town of Pooree," writes Dr. Cumberland, "contains 35,000 inhabitants, and the number of pilgrims sometimes amount to 150,000. The inhabitants are usually quite healthy before the occurrence of the festival, which takes place in June or July; but immediately on the arrival of the pilgrims, and when the lodging-houses are literally crammed with inmates, cholera suddenly breaks out, and in the space of a few days hundreds are cut off by it. This is not an occasional or accidental occurrence, it is an invariable one; and the disease which had thus been generated, as suddenly disappears on the dispersion of the crowd, a few isolated cases only occurring for two or three days after the departure of the pilgrims."

It is of great importance that the local authorities and others should be satisfied as to the measures which it will be expedient to adopt, promptly and thoroughly, when, notwithstanding all the means of precaution and prevention that may have been taken, this disease actually breaks out in any place.

The main object of the recital of much of the preceding evidence has been to fix attention on the influence of place in promoting the spread of this pestilence; but the conditions of place which so powerfully predispose to it, in the great majority of instances, cannot be immediately changed. Under circumstances in which no material improvement can be at once effected in the house or locality, the most simple and effectual remedy would be removal from the neighbourhood, and temporary change of habitation; and where, as is commonly the case, the susceptibility is increased by errors in diet, the security would be increased by an immediate change to a suitable regimen.

Hitherto the proportion of attacks to the population has nowhere in this country been so large as to render it impracticable, or even difficult, to make provision for the temporary removal of such indigent persons as have appeared to be in imminent danger; and it is a subject deserving consideration, whether, instead of the indiscriminate removal of the sick, it would not be more effectual, as well as less expensive, while provision is made for the proper treatment of the sick, to take some care of those who, in all probability will be the next victims of the disease, though the blow may not yet have actually fallen on them.

As an extensive trial of this plan of removal was made in Edinburgh, during the prevalence of the pestilence in that city in 1832, the General Board of Health have endeavoured to ascertain the result of that experience. On consulting Professor Dr. W. Pultney Alison, who took a principal part in this matter, he has made the following statement:—"As the system of taking the inmates of the houses, and in cases of much crowding, the next door neighbours of cholera patients, into houses prepared for their reception, called Houses of Refuge, and keeping them there in comfort and under observation, at least until their rooms had been thoroughly fumigated and cleansed, appeared to work well, it was continued whenever the prejudices of the people did not violently oppose it, so long as the cholera continued to show itself distinctly in Edinburgh. In most places after the first day or two of successive cases occurring in one stair or close, the people were very glad to avail themselves of it, and almost all the places where any considerable succession of fatal cases occurred, were places where the people refused to avail themselves of this method of protection. After the cholera was first seen in Edinburgh, on the 27th January 1832, eighteen houses or rooms in which it had appeared, were evacuated before the 5th April, after the death, or the removal to hospital of the persons who had taken the disease; and their inhabitants, in number 105, all of whom had had close intercourse with the sick, were placed in houses of refuge, from periods varying from a week to a fortnight, during which time the rooms they had left were fumigated and thoroughly cleansed. In nine of these cases, one individual only had been affected when this operation was commenced; in four, two had been affected; in four, three; and in one, four had been affected. In no one of these instances was there a single fresh case in any of the adjoining rooms. There were several attacks, and five deaths in the persons thus received into the houses of refuge; but there was no case of any person who had been in these houses and returned home, being subsequently affected. I remember perfectly, that in a small district round the College and the Infirmary, of which I took personal charge, the cholera broke out seven times at different points; that we had the inhabitants of the rooms in which it appeared, and, in some instances of the rooms immediately adjoining, placed in Houses of Refuge directly, and that we saw no more of it at any of those places. Of course we cannot speak with absolute confidence as to what would have been the course of disease in Edinburgh and its neighbourhood at that time, if no such measure had been adopted; but I think we had such evidence of its probable efficiency as fully justifies our wishing to try the same system again here, and recommend it to others."

Recent observers have borne testimony to the efficacy of the principle on which this recommendation is founded, after large experience in India. "As certainly," says Mr. Samuel Rogers, "as cholera is, in many instances, induced by the congregation of large bodies of them, so will the converse be found to hold true. The disease which was generated by the assemblage will be destroyed by their separation, and the scourge would be arrested by the adoption of those means of precaution which are acknowledged to protect the frame against injurious impressions. The disease would thus be nipped in the bud, instead of pursuing for an indefinite period, as it hitherto has done, its desolating career."

On this general experience, so strongly corroborated by the particular experience of Edinburgh, and with the advice of the Edinburgh College of Physicians, the General Board of Health have authorized the re-adoption of this measure in Scotland, and have deemed it their duty to confer by their regulations, the requisite authority for carrying it into effect in England, in all cases where occasion may appear to require it, as one important means of meeting the present visitation.

But while the General Board of Health have thought it needful to make this provision for the greater security of the poor and destitute, they cannot too earnestly impress upon those in better circumstances, and who can consult their own safety, the importance, on the first outbreak of this disease, of immediate removal from a low, damp, dirty, and confined situation, to one that is high, dry, and open; and of the adoption at the same time of a careful regimen.

Though the General Board of Health have expressed their decided conviction that cholera is not contagious, in the common sense of that term, yet neither they, nor those who coincide in their opinion, consider that there is no danger in over-crowding, or that the disease is not "catching" in ill-ventilated and ill-conditioned places. The Metropolitan Sanitary Commissioners have observed:—"The result of recent inquiries has been, a progressive approach to the conclusion that the injurious effects produced by the exhalations from the living body, whether in health or disease, are confined within much narrower limits than was formerly supposed. The rapidity and completeness with which such exhalations are diluted and rendered innocuous by free admixture with pure atmospheric air, is now better understood than at any former period: concentrated in confined and crowded apartments, they exercise a most injurious influence on the progress of disease in the sick; concentrated still more, they affect the healthy, and under circumstances in which ventilation is neglected, or cannot be efficiently applied and maintained, first the nurses, then the members of the family who may have been occasionally in the sick chamber, and last of all the medical attendants suffer; at the same time, casual visitors are liable to be attacked, in proportion to the concentration of the poison and the weakness and susceptibility of the constitution; and persons so attacked and going to ill-conditioned and confined places, may form new centres of disease. It is the occurrence of such facts that gives countenance to the opinion of the contagiousness of the disease."—Vide Prefatory Observations, No. 14, of the Commissioners' Second Report.

It is in the belief that such facts should be regarded as true lessons of experience, that the General Board of Health attach great importance to the prevention of over-crowding, to the removal of the weak and susceptible from the vitiated air of the apartments of the sick, and to the maintenance in sick chambers of the freest ventilation.

Many cases having occurred in which the long retention of the dead body in living or sleeping rooms has greatly promoted the spread of disease, the Act has called special attention to the need of regulations for the early removal and the proper interment of the corpse; and the General Board of Health have authorized the Medical Officer, after having ascertained the true cause of death, to give such directions as may appear to him to be required, for the due observance of the regulation relative to this highly important subject.

It appears to the General Board of Health to be absolutely necessary, in the present emergency, to concentrate responsibility on the Medical Officers, and to entrust them with discretionary powers, because the rapidity of the course of cholera will not allow them to wait for direction from the Guardians at their weekly meetings; and seeing the many and arduous duties that devolve upon the Medical Officers, the General Board of Health cannot but express a hope that the remuneration of these officers will be more proportionate to the value of the services required than it was upon the former occasion.

The law having vested the general management of medical relief to the destitute in the Boards of Guardians, and having made them the authorized channels for the expenditure of the rates raised for the benefit of the poor, the instructions and regulations of the Board of Health have been mainly directed to them. They are aware, however, of the important exertions which in many instances have been made by Town Councils and Local Commissioners for the improvement of the public health, and where any of the functions herein prescribed are either by law or practice exercised by such Town Councils and Local Boards or Commissioners, they would by no means wish to take them out of their hands; these bodies will have the best means of considering how far they can act by their own powers, or concurrently with the Boards of Guardians, and it is only in the absence of any such powers, or in default of their effectual exercise, that the Board of Health would call upon the Boards of Guardians to take the duties on themselves.

The Board of Health will, from time to time, communicate to the local authorities such additional information, as circumstances may appear to render necessary, on matters relating to the removal of nuisances, and the prevention and mitigation of disease, in their official circular.
