Whitehaven.

Limits of Port and Legal Quays.

We the undersigned, being two of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, do hereby, under the authority of an Act passed in the session of Parliament holden in the ninth and tenth years of the reign of Her present Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act to amend the Laws relating to the Customs," appoint Whitehaven to be a port in that part of the United Kingdom called England; and we do hereby declare that the limits of the said port shall commence at the south side of Dudden Bridge, over the River Dudden, and so continue down the river along the midstream thereof, and thence along the sea coast to a stream called Lowca Beck, which stream separates the two parishes of Moresby and Harrington; and also that the limits of the said port shall extend to a distance of three miles from low-water mark out to sea, and include all islands, bays, rivers, harbours, and creeks within the same respectively

And we, the said Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, do hereby appoint the following places within the said port of Whitehaven to be legal quays, for the lading and unlading of goods; and we do hereby declare the bounds and limits of the said quays to be as follow; that is to say:

All that open place, quay, or wharf, on the east side of the north harbour of Whitehaven, leading to the north pier, being in length two hundred and ten yards, and in breadth thirty-one feet.

Also all that open place, quay, or wharf, at the north end of the said harbour, being in length ninety yards, and in breadth thirty-three feet.

Also all that open place, quay, or wharf, called the Jetty, on the east side of the said harbour, which said quay or wharf extends in length sixty yards, and in breadth forty-six feet.

Also all that open place, quay, or wharf, on the western side of the said harbour, called the Bulwark, being in length two hundred and ten yards, and in breadth thirty-one feet.

Also all that open place, quay, or wharf, at the south end of the south harbour, called the Old Quay, being in length, from the corner opposite to the baths to the eastern extremity thereof, two hundred and forty yards, and in breadth twenty-six feet.

Also all that open place, quay, or wharf, called West Strand Quay, commencing at the west end of the last-mentioned quay, and thence along the West Strand till it adjoins the Custom-house Quay, and being in length two hundred and ten yards, and in breadth thirty-seven feet.

Also all that open place, quay, or wharf, called Custom-house Quay, being in length one hundred and fifteen yards, and in breadth forty-three feet.

Also all those two open places, quays, or wharves, enclosing the Custom-house Dock, called the Old Tongue and New Tongue, and of the respective lengths and breadths following; that is to say: the Old Tongue, being two hundred yards in length, and fifty feet in breadth, and the New Tongue, being two hundred yards in length, and twenty-six feet in breadth.

Also all that open place, quay, or wharf, at the east end of the Custom-house Quay, called the Timber Slip, being in length forty yards, and in breadth forty-seven feet.

And we, the said Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, do hereby annul all former limits of the said port of Whitehaven, and all former legal quays set out and appointed within the same.
