Port of Irvine.

Limits of Port and Legal Quay.

WE, the undersigned, Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, do hereby, under the authority of an Act passed in the Session of Parliament holden in the ninth and tenth years of the reign of Her present Majesty, Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act to amend the Laws relating to the Customs," appoint Irvine to be a port in that part of the United Kingdom called Scotland, and we do hereby declare that the limits of the said port shall extend along the shore, from the town of Irvine inclusive, to the water or burn called the New Burn, lying about a mile to the southward of Troon Point, from thence, in a supposed line westward, to the southermost point of the island of Pladda, from thence in a supposed line to the southermost point of the island of Arran, from thence westward and northward along the coast of the said island of Arran, to the north-easternmost point thereof, from thence, in a supposed line eastward, to the promontory or point of land called Porting-cross, or Port Crawford, on the coast of Ayrshire, from thence along the coast southward and eastward to the town of Irvine aforesaid, including the Horse and Lady Isles, the islands of Arran, Pladda, and Lamlash, and extending seaward three miles from the coasts of the said islands and mainland, and including all coasts and all roadsteads, bays, rivers, waters, and channels, and ports of the sea lying within the said bounds.

And we, the said Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, do hereby appoint the following place within the said port of Irvine to be a legal quay for the lading and unloading of goods, and do hereby declare the bounds and limits of the said quay to be respectively as follows; that is to say: all that open place, quay, or wharf, called the Quay of Irvine, lying along the south side of the River Irvine, and extending from the eastern or highest extremity thereof to the lower or western extremity thereof, eight hundred and forty feet in length, and being from twenty-one to twenty-six feet in breadth.

And we, the said Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, do hereby annul all former limits of the said port of Irvine, and all former legal quays already set out and appointed within the same.
