

all, and here lies their superiority, it is because they are in the van of all generous and enlightened ideas; the eyes of all who suffer instinctively turn to the west;—thus our two nations are even more powerful from the opinions they represent, than by the armies and fleets they have at their command.

I am deeply grateful to your Queen for affording me this solemn opportunity of expressing to you my own sentiments and those of France, of which I am the interpreter; I thank you in my own name, and in that of the Empress, for the frank and hearty cordiality with which you have received us; we shall take back with us to France the lasting impression made on minds thoroughly able to appreciate it of the imposing spectacle which England presents, where virtue on the throne directs the destinies of a country under the empire of a liberty without danger to its grandeur.
