

Of Lorrains. A great many Women and Children, and 4 or 500 Jews were likewise saved. These are commended to bury the Turks that were slain, and to clean the Streets we found in the Place above 4000 Sets of Cannon and Mortars, of the first 178 are fit for Service, but most of them dismounted) with a great quantity of Arms, Cannon-Bullets, Bombs, Grenadoes, and Carcasses, and other sorts of Ammunition. Of the Christians they were not killed in the Assault above 100 of the Duke of Lorraine's Attack, among which were the Marquis Simeon, and the Lieutenant-Colonel of the Regiment of Sirembert; But at the Bavarian Attack the Loss was greater, 300 being killed, and about 800 wounded. The Grand Viceroy, who encamped within a Mile of Buda, and had possessed himself of a Hill from whence he pretended to command the whole Army, being understanding the Town was taken, fled towards the River, and retired towards Alba Regalis, about which, the Duke of Lorraine sent out 6000 Hungarians, commanded by the Count de Lusitain, and 9000 Imperial Horse, under the Command of Generall Caprara; to attack their Rear. And it was ordered for a Council of War that 10000 Foot should be sent down the Danube with several pieces of Cannon towards the Bridge of Esseeke, and that Orders should be sent to the Forces of Croatia to join them, and to march towards the said Body of Foot, while the rest of the Imperial and Auxiliary Forces (except 6000 which appeared at a Garrison in Buda, under the Command of Major-General Beck) should march after the Grand Viceroy.

Munburgh, Sept. 17. The Collation is prolonged till the 20th Instant. The 5th Instant here 2000 Brandenburgers, and with these and the other Auxiliary Troops we have now a Garrison of 9000 Men. The Brandenburg and Lüneburgh Troops, as well as those of the Landgrave of Hesse, continue their march, and will together make an Army of 20000 Men. A Camp has been marked out for them by some of the Brandenburg and Lüneburgh Generals near Fuchs-Büttel. On Saturday last arrived here the Duke of Holftein. Upon the Conductions of Festrin and Schnitzer, several others have been apprehended, and among the rest the old Bughermaster Schüver. The Sieur Fugier, the Franckenburgh Minister, returned hither yesterday from the Camp, having, as we are told, obtained a Promise from the King of Denmark, to withdraw his Forces to a greater distance from this place, upon his representing that it would very much contribute to the success of the Treaty, for accommodation of the Difference between His Majesty and this City. The Works begin to carry off their Artillery, Haghe, Sept. 20. An Envoy who arriv'd here some days ago from the Emperor of Morocco, had yesterday Audience upon the States General; His Business is to make a Compliment of Friendship from his Mother; and to offer an Exchange of Slaves for so many Guns. The Letters from Munburgh give great hopes of an Accommodation. Those from Vienna of the 8th Instant say, That about 3000 Turks had been killed at the taking of Buda; That the Vicer Bassa was of the Number who was slain, after having received divers wounds upon the Beach; That the Vice-Bassa, the Aga of the Janizaries, the Mussi, and several Officers of Note, and about 1500 Soldiers and 500 Jews were Prisoners; That there was in the Town at the beginning of the Siege a Garrison of 10000 Men, besides the Lobachians that bore Arms; That the Christians had found a great deal of rich Plunder; That many of the common soldiers got 2000 Ducats; and a Servant of the Duke de Croÿ is said to have made a Robbery of 3000 Ducats; That the Grand Viceroy, as soon as he knew the Town was taken, retired towards Alba Regalis, and leaving a sufficient Garrison in that place, continued his Retreat towards the Bridge of Esseeke; That the Duke of Lorraine had sent out great Detachments to attack his Rear, and intended to march after him with the whole Army, and in ment of 8000 Horse, under the Command of General Caprara, to pursue the Grand Viceroy, who retired with all the diligence he could towards the Bridge of Esseeke; and that his Highness was preparing to follow with the whole Army. These Letters say, that the most considerable Jews of Budahad, during the Assault, gotten into Boats, hoping to escape with their Riches down the Danube, but that they were discovered, and taken by the Hungarians, who got a Booty of unestimable value.

Brussels, Sept. 20. We have received by an Extraordinary Courier Letters from Vienna of the 12th Instant, which give us to understand, that the Duke of Lorraine having detached 12000 Imperial Horse, Hussars, Dragoons, and Croats, under the Command of the Counts de Caprara and Buchani, to attack the Turkish Army in their march, followed the 6th Instant with 20000 Horse, 6000 Hungarians, and 12000 Foot, with several Field pieces and Provisions for 13 days, reaching a Garrison of 6000 Men in Buda, under the Command of Major-General Becke; That the day before 14000 Foot, with 30 pieces of Cannon, several Mortars, and the necessary Ammunition and Provisions, parted from Buda, passing down the Danube in large Boats, with Orders to post themselves in some convenient Post near the Bridge of Esseeke, to hinder the Enemies passing in, till such time as the Elector of Bavaria and Duke of Lorraine arrived there with the main Body of the Imperial Army; And that Orders were given to the Forces in Croatia, to march towards the Bridge of Esseeke, to join the said Body of Foot, single Officers add, That the Turkish Prisoners, which were about 3000 besides the principal Officers who were sent to Vienna, were employed in emptying the Ditches, and repairing the Ramparts of Buda, and in levelling the Lines and other Works made during the Siege.

Advertisemens.

Little Londoners: On The London Pills; May be had of the Author at his house in Winchester Street, London, upon the Left hand of the Arch that turns into Little Winchester Street.

WHEREAS Joseph Loq a middle-sized Man, full, pale, thin dark brown hair, with a small voice, Shoemaker, George Hornly a tall, thin Man, long, black, a Hawk Nose, a squeaking voice, long brown curled hair, a scrawny William Harris an indifferent tall Man a thin, fresh colour'd face, dark curl'd hair, with some few gray hairs, about 40 years of age, Shoemaker. Stephen Frankes, a short broad Man, broad faced, full of Pockholes, black curling hair, with an impediment in his speech almost to uttering, Shoemaker. Jonathan Seaborn, Servant to Lieutenant Moorhill, a fireable Man, large Legs, with some Pockholes in his Face, inclining to ruddy, with a large scar thwart the forehead of his Head, wears a Periwig, a Shropshire Man, Barber. All Soldiers in Colonel Herbert's Regiment; and in Captain William Stok's Company, have detected their Colours. Whosoever shall give Notice of them, or any of them, so as they may be apprehended, to Mr. Thomas Pelling at the Cock and Crown near Kingsgate in High-Holbourn, shall have a very considerable Reward.

TH E Children of Richard Woolfe of Elbing near Godsteman in the County of Surrey, who with their Father and Mother went thence into Kent about 16 years past; If any of those Children are now living, they are desired to go to Mr. Nicholas Gifford in Augustin Fryers, where they will have an account of an Estate that hath been recovered by Captain Richard Beale of South-Stoneham in Hampshire, where they have an Interest.

CHARLES Whitwood, middle sized, round visaged, with short black hair, having on a gray Coat, the Sleeves faced with black Velvet, blue Breeches and blue Stockens, Run from his Colours the 11th Instant, in His Majesties Fifth Regiment of Guards. Whoever gives Notice, of him to Captain Saudys at his Lodging in Downing Street, Westminster, shall be well rewarded.

A Black Boy, about 15 years old, supposed to have Run away from his Master, having been found at Tunbridge, is now at Sir Thomas Jafson's House at the Wells, where the Owner may have him on demand.

TAken away the 10th Instant by two Men at Bosthill near Darking in Surrey, a bay Mare, a hands high, 7 years old, a large Star in her Forehead, two small white spots in the spurting place, 110s all, Also a Dun Nag, pace all, Navel gail'd, 12 hands high. Whoever gives Notice of the said Mare to Mr. John Arthur at the Chequer Inn in Darking, or to Mr. William Barton's Coffee house in Walbrook, London, shall have Two Guinea's Reward.

LOST or stolen near Marden in the County of Hereford, a bright bay Mare 4 years old, with a white fleck in his Forehead, black Mane, her Tail Dockt, some white specks on the saddle-place, about 13 hands high. Whoever gives Notice of the said Mare unto Mr. John Whiteing at the Crown in Lawrence-lane, Eldhoth, or to Mr. Hugh Todd Mercer in Hereford, shall have 40s Reward.