War-Department, December 20, 1855.

LORD PANMURE has received from the Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, the reports, of which the following are copies, addressed by Lieutenant-General Sir Harry D. Jones to General Sir James Simpson, K.C.B.

Head Quarters, Sevastopol,
September 9, 1855.

SIR

THE long and eventful siege of Sevastopol having been brought to a successful termination, I beg leave to draw your Excellency's attention to the services of the Officers of Royal Engineers who have been employed in carrying on the siege works.

Many of these Officers have been continuously on duty since 8th October last, and have been in the trenches 76, 97, and 108 days and nights.

I beg leave to mention the name of Lieutenant-Colonel Chapman, C.B., who has been employed with the army since the arrival of the first detachment at Gallipoli ; and since March last, when Colonel Gordon was wounded, and unable to perform the duties of the siege as Senior Officer of Engineers, he has had to make all the necessary arrangements for the daily carrying on of the duties : this has been performed by him in the most zealous and energetic manner, under great exposure to fire, to my entire satisfaction. Major Bent has been doing the duty of Director of the Left Attack since March last ; the duties of that Officer are very onerous, and these he has performed in a most zealous and praiseworthy manner. During the above period Major Bent must have been under fire twice, if not thrice, in every twenty-four hours. Captain Brown, who was recently severely wounded, performed for some time the office of Director of the Right Attack, and so has also Captain Cooke.

Captain Ewart, the Adjutant to the Sappers and Miners, has carried on the duties of the parks, which are extremely troublesome, and requiring great attention, in the most zealous and satisfactory manner.

I do not trouble your Excellency with the names of the Subalterns of Engineers, as they are not eligible for promotion under the existing regulations.

Nothing could exceed the zealous and praiseworthy manner in which they have invariably performed their duties.

Several have been more than once wounded, and many have died from wounds, or from sickness caused by exposure to the great heat in the trenches.

I wish to bring prominently under your notice Major Bouchier, my Brigade-Major, who has rendered me very great assistance throughout the whole siege, and Lieutenant Cowell, my Aide-de-Camp, who has, during the siege, proved himself most useful by his professional knowledge as an Officer of Royal Engineers, and by his general military acquirements. Of the Assistant Engineers, I cannot speak too highly in praise of the zeal and intelligence they have displayed, and I beg leave to enclose the names of those who, from their long service at this siege, I consider deserving of promotion.

I have, &c.,

(Signed) HARRY D. JONES.

Lieutenant-General, Commanding
Royal Engineers.

His Excellency General Simpson,
Commander-in-Chief.

Extract from Lieutenant-General Sir Harry Jones,
K.C.B., report to General Simpson.

*Head Quarters, Sevastopol,
September 20, 1855.*

SIR,

THIS long siege of 337 days having been brought to a successful termination, I am extremely desirous to bring under your Excellency's notice the services of a most gallant and zealous body of Officers. I allude to the Subalterns of the Royal Engineers, who, from the constitution of their corps, in which promotion goes by seniority, are never promoted into other branches of the service, which was the reason why I did not include in my recommendatory list the names of those individuals who have particularly distinguished themselves, trusting to the opportunity which would be afforded me of bringing their names forward specially.

During the recent siege the duties of the trenches fell very severely on the Subalterns of Engineers; throughout the whole of the winter they were constantly on duty, and as their numbers were small, the tour of each individual returned at short intervals—nothing but great zeal and spirits carried them through the severe work they had to perform.

The following short statement will enable your Excellency to see how a Subaltern of Engineers was called upon to do duty in the trenches, several more than once wounded and others contused; the following figures refer to some of the survivors :

	33 days or nights.
108	" "
32	" "
46	" "
97	" "
62	" "
65	" "
78	" "

It must be borne in mind that these tours of duty always brought the individual under fire, and in the winter months they were exposed to all the severities of the season.

Several of the Subalterns distinguished themselves on several occasions in the attacks upon rifle pits, quarries, &c. Such services, I trust, will not be allowed to pass without reward.

(Signed) HARRY D. JONES,
Lieutenant-General Commanding
Royal Engineers.

The following are the names of the Officers who particularly distinguished themselves :

ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Lieutenant H. De Vere.
A. A. C. Fisher.
H. C. Elphinstone.
G. Neville.
W. O. Lennox.
W. C. Anderson.
G. Graham.
G. Phillips.
C. N. Martin.
C. G. Gordon.
J. F. Donnelly.

Minute of Inspector-General of Fortifications.

I would strongly recommend
Lieutenant Stopford,
Cowell,
Pratt,
Drake,

being added to this list.

(Signed) J. F. BURGOYNE,
Lieutenant-General, I.G.F.

17th November.

*General Simpson, &c., &c., &c.,
Commander-in-Chief.*

I CAN most conscientiously corroborate every word expressed by Sir Harry Jones in this letter. The arduous and always dangerous duties in which the Engineer Officers were continually employed have all along, during this siege, been deserving of my praise and admiration. Their untiring perseverance and frequent acts of gallant conduct are beyond all praise; and I here desire to record my high approbation of these Officers named by Sir Harry D. Jones, and my strong recommendation of them to Viscount Hardinge's favour.

(Signed) JAS. SIMPSON,
General Commanding.

NOTICE is hereby given, to Navy Agents and all other persons interested therein, that no share or shares of any prize money, bounty, salvage, or other moneys payable and distributable to and amongst the officers and crews of Her Majesty's ships and vessels of war, will be paid under any power of attorney, now or hereafter, executed by any two or more of the officers and crews of any of Her Majesty's ships and vessels of war, unless the persons who shall have executed the said power are the executors or administrators of some deceased person entitled in distribution.

The above-mentioned regulations, established by the Lords of the Admiralty for the purpose of preventing an individual's share of prize or other moneys, as aforesaid, being paid in distribution under a power of attorney made by two or more persons, having been referred to Her Majesty in Council, in accordance with the directions contained in the Act of the 17th of Victoria, cap. 19, section 13, Her Majesty was pleased to approve and give her sanction to the same by her Order in Council, bearing date on the 7th December, 1855.

Agents and others claiming to receive, by virtue of a power of attorney, the share of prize or other moneys of any individual entitled in distribution, are hereby informed that payment will be refused unless such power of attorney shall have been executed by that individual alone, or by the executors or administrators of some deceased person entitled in distribution; in conformity with the existing practice, now sanctioned by Her Majesty in Council.
