War-Department, February 19, 1856.

LORD PANMURE has received a Despatch, of which the following is a copy, addressed to his Lordship by General Sir William Codrington, K.C.B.

Sevastopol, February 4, 1856.

MY LORD,

MARSHAL PELISSIER informed me a few days ago that this day Fort Nicholas would be destroyed; and he sent again to say that at one o'clock P.M. the mines for this purpose would be fired.

The view over the whole harbour is well obtained from the interior slope of the Redan Hill, and from other points within the Russian lines.

The day was magnificently clear; every sentry on the opposite side could be seen, every working party watched, every soldier that was lounging in the sun; occasional shot and shell were sent from the enemy to the Karabelnaia and the town, but otherwise nothing disturbed the usual appearance of quiet, almost of desolation.

On our (the south) side, we looked down on the large ruined barracks in front, on the inner creek of the Dockyard, the Quay, and the remains of Fort Paul, the spacious inlet from the harbour on our left, beyond which stand the roofless buildings of Sevastopol itself. There also is the well-remembered long line of pointed arches, the casemates of the interior of Fort Nicholas, of which the embrasures in double tier pointed to seaward and away from us.

It juts out into the harbour built on an inner tongue of land; Fort Constantine forming a similar but more outward defence for the sea approach on the north.

The scene and feeling of expectation were of great interest, for another tangible proof of power and success was to take place, and 106,000 lbs. of powder were in the several mines.

At the hour named a burst of smoke, dark and thick, rolled from our left of the building; it was followed by another; the heavy sound arrived, the stones were shot into the air and to the sea; the explosions of the extreme right and the centre mingled at little interval into one drifting cloud, which veiled the destruction below.

The light of the sun played beautifully on the mass of smoke, of which the lower part lay long and heavily on its victim. The breeze passing it away over the remains of the town, showed that a low line of ruin was all that remained of the pride of Fort Nicholas, and one standing menace of the harbour lay buried under its waters.

The state of the docks has been given in detail in my letters. They are all destroyed, whilst the earth surrounding them is shaken into cracks; basin, docks, masses of broken granite, capstans, gates, beams of iron, and of timber are tumbled into one mass of destruction.

I have, &c.,

W. J. CODRINGTON,
General Commanding.

The Lord Panmure, &c. &c. &c.

*Board of Trade, Whitehall,
February 15, 1856.*

THE Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of a Despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Athens, enclosing copy of a law (of which the following is a translation), authorizing the Greek Government to grant to any Company powers to establish a railway from Athens to the Piræus.

ART. I.—The Government is authorized to concede by royal ordinance the right of establishing a railway from Athens to the Piræus, agreeably to the provisions of the present law.

ART. II.—The duration of the right aforesaid shall be limited to 55 years at the maximum, to date from the promulgation of the royal ordinance conceding such right.

The party to whom such right shall be granted shall be held liable to pay into the National Bank, before the promulgation of the ordinance conceding such right, the sum of 30,000 drachmas, or to deposit Stock of this Bank to the same amount, as guarantee for the complete fulfilment of the obligation imposed by the following Article.

ART. III.—In the year following the one in which the right to establish the railroad is confirmed to any party, such party shall commence constructing such railroad, which he shall be required to finish within two years from the date of the confirmation of the concession of the right. In the event of the party to whom the right may be conceded not having commenced the works, or in case he shall not have finished them and put the railway in full operation at the periods above-mentioned, the right granted shall, by the decision of the Prefect of Attica and Beotia, be held forfeited. In the first case, the sum deposited in the Bank as security shall be held as lawfully acquired by the Treasury; in the second case, the Government, in addition to becoming possessed of the above sum, shall submit for disposal by public auction the lands acquired by such party, and the buildings and other works which he may have constructed, on the express condition that the purchaser shall be held liable to continue and complete the works commenced of the railway.

During the period of construction, the party to whom the right of establishing the railway shall be granted, will be entitled to draw the interest on the amount deposited by him in the Bank as security.

ART. IV.—The railway from Athens to the Piræus is hereby declared a work of public utility, consequently, the party to whom the right shall be conceded, shall be authorized to take forcible possession of such lands as shall be regarded as necessary :

- 1st. For establishing and closing in the line, and for the houses of the guardians and keepers of the line.
- 2nd. For erecting buildings, sheds, and other establishments at the stations.
- 3rd. For procuring the materials for banking and ballasting the line, in the event of the temporary use of land for this purpose being insufficient.
- 4th. For the establishment of roads necessary to bring other places into connection with the railway, such building-ground and other lands belonging to the public domain, as shall be enclosed by the railway, are hereby and gratuitously conceded to the undertaker, who will however be liable for the value of the buildings and plantations which may be found upon such lands.

ART. V.—Matters in dispute which may arise from the right of forcibly taking possession of land, referred to in the last Article, are to be decided by the Nomarch, after having heard the evidence of a commission of five members named by him, and consisting of an engineer, a lawyer, a proprietor, a merchant, and a mayor of the commune in which may be situated the property which it is required to take possession of.

The decisions of the Nomarch can be appealed against before the Minister of the Interior.

The proprietor or his authorized representative will only have the right of appeal during eight days from the date of the notification of the decision of the Nomarch.

ART. VI.—An indemnity, fixed by mutual agreement, must be paid previously to taking possession, but, in case of dispute, the amount of indemnity will be settled by a commission under the presidency of the Nomarch, and composed of the Nomarch, the President of the Tribunal of Première Instance, the mayor, and two skilled persons, one to be chosen by each of the litigating parties. The Commission, whose decisions will be governed by a majority of votes, will take no account of any increased value that the property may have acquired on account of the establishment of the railway, or of any appurtenance thereunto, but will determine the value as it was before the publication of this project.

The value of the property being estimated, and the price paid, the proprietor will yield possession to the undertaker of the railway. The administration, in the event of refusal on the part of the proprietor, will oblige him to yield possession.

ART. VII.—In addition to the right of taking possession of lands, the undertaker of the railway will have the right of using the lands bordering the railway, and thence to take earth, gravel, sand, and stones; he will also be able to make upon these lands, temporary roads for transport of materials.

The indemnity which proprietors can claim for the use, as above, of their lands, is to be regulated entirely in the same manner as in the case of lands taken possession of. The amount of compensation will be fixed proportionately to the lowest value of the land.

ART. VIII.—Wood, iron, carriages, waggons, machines, stationary or moveable, tools of all kinds necessary for the construction of the railway and for first putting it in operation, will be exempt from all customs and other duties on entering the kingdom.

ART. IX.—The undertaker will not be allowed, without first obtaining the sanction of the Minister of the Interior, to dispose of lands or buildings belonging to the railway or its appurtenances.

ART. X.—The motive power for effecting the transport of persons and merchandize by the railway, must be steam; no other power can be adopted without the sanction of the Government.

ART. XI.—Authority is conceded to the undertaker to levy such rates for carriage, as may be fixed at the time of the confirmation of the right to establish the railway.

The maximum price for the carriage of one passenger, is fixed at 75 lepta ($67\frac{1}{2}$ centimes) in the first class, and at 50 lepta in the second class.

The tolls for the carriage of merchandize will be fixed with reference to the character of the articles, divided into three classes, of which the first will pay at the maximum 50 lepta the 100 okes (about 128 kilograms), the second 40 lepta, and the third 30 lepta.

These tolls are not applicable to any indivisible mass of merchandize weighing more than 200 okes, nor to any article the contents of which being less than half a cubic metre, weighs under 100 okes. The cost of the transport in such cases must be fixed by the undertakers of the railway and the person desirous of having the goods conveyed, between themselves.

ART. XII.—To the carriage of all merchandize, except such objects, the carriage of which may be specially prohibited by the bye laws of the railway, or by the regulation of the police, every facility must be given by the undertaker of the railway, without distinction of persons, and without prejudice to the concessions made to the Government in favour of the army, the navy, and the postal service (Art. 20, § 6).

ART. XIII.—Any disputes arising between the undertaker of the railway and any private individual with regard to rates and tolls, will be adjudicated upon by the prefect, with appeal to the Minister of the Interior.

ART. XIV.—The undertaker is authorized to exercise by his own agents, under the supervision of the Government, the police regulations of the railway, which must be made conformably to the regulations of public administration made by the Minister of the Interior.

The parties appointed for this purpose (railway police) will be assimilated as regards their functions with the public police officers.

ART. XV.—The undertaker is held responsible that the railway and rolling stock shall be kept in proper working order; in order that the traffic may be carried on with security, agreeably with the object of the enterprise; in the event of failure in this respect, the obligation will be enforced by the administration.

ART. XVI.—No other line of railway uniting the two towns will be allowed to be established, within the duration of the privilege.

ART. XVII.—The undertaker in the meantime may be authorized by a royal ordinance to extend the railway from Athens to the Piræus, and to construct branch lines; in such case the provisions of the present law shall be applicable to such new lines, with the exception of that with regard to the duration of the concession, which will terminate with the privilege conceded in respect of the main line, and cannot be prolonged except by law.

ART. XVIII.—If the undertaker of the railway from Athens to the Piræus, having, other conditions being equal, the right of preference, should decline to take upon himself the extension of the railway, or to construct branches, this right may be accorded to other undertakers; in this case the former, inasmuch as the traffic on the main line will permit, and where no mutual agreement would have been come to with the undertakers of the new railways, will be held liable to concede to the latter, the right of also using the rails for transport, and in addition, the latter will be allowed to erect upon the same line and at their own cost, such buildings and works as may be necessary.

ART. XIX.—In the case in question, the privileged party (cessionnaire privilégié) receives from the said undertaker, a complete indemnification for any damage or loss which this obligation may occasion him; in default of mutual arrangement, the amount this indemnification will be determined by the prefect and four arbitrators of whom two are to be named by the party to whom the establishment of the line from Athens to the Piræus may be conceded; the other by the undertaker of the new line.

The term of the concession expired, the railway with all its fixed appurtenances and adjuncts, all being put in good order by the party to whom the railway is conceded, will become the lawful property of the Government, which will itself immediately take charge of the working of it, or grant a lease of it for the profit of the State.

The Government may acquire the rolling stock by private agreement with the said undertaker of the line.

ART. XX.—The Government and the undertaker will mutually determine:

- 1st. The line of the railway and the points by which it shall pass.

2nd. The mode of construction of the railway and the means of transport.

3rd. The period of duration of the privilege.

4th. The rates and tolls to be charged.

5th. The minimum of departures of trains daily and the speed of the trains.

6th. The relations between the railway and the postal authorities, the army, and navy.

7th. The amount of compensation to which the administration shall be liable in the event of merchandize carried, being lost or damaged.

8th. The consequence attaching to the undertaker in the case of failure on his part to perform any general or particular obligations.

9th. Everything relating to the shares and the obligations of shareholders, in the case of the enterprise being conceded to a Company, and the relations of these towards the Government and the public.

10th. The exercise of the right of supervision by the Government.

Athens, 4th December, 1855.
