Venice, December 4.

WE have Advice by a Vessel which arrived here yesterday from Dalmatia, that the Chevalier Janco being informed that a Party of Turks were on their march to Ispo with 30 Wagons laden with Provisions, he advanced towards them with the Morlaques under his Command, and falling upon the Enemy, put them to flight, and took all the Wagons. The new raised Men which lately arrived at the Lido, will embark the next week, to be transported to the Morea. The Sieur de Lovelfeldt, who has already raised a Regiment of 1000 Men for the Service of this Republick, has made an Agreement with the Senate to raise another, and has accordingly sent his Officers to make their Levies in Germany. There are now finished in the Arsenal ten new Gallies, and a Ship of above 60 Guns, which will be launched in few days. A great many Vessels are hired, by Order of the Senate, to carry Provisions and Ammunition to the Morea.

Stry in Poland, Nov. 18. The King's stay here was longer than he intended, by reason of his being taken ill with the Gout, which obliged him to keep his Bed eight days; but the 12th Instant his Majesty parted from hence with the whole Court for Zolkien, to be so much nearer to Lembergh, whither he had sent the Bishop of Luceria, and the great Chancellor of Lithuania to confer with the Ambassadors from the Czars of Moscovy, upon some Points which the Moscovites have started since the Conclusion of the late League at Moscom. These new difficulties do somewhat perplex this Court, who begin to have a great Jealousie that the Czars do not mean to enter into the War, in which they are confirmed by the Advices that come from several hands of the good Correspondence there is at present between the Sieur Samulowitz, General of the Cossacks, in the Service of the Czars, and the King of Tartary. Here is a discourse, that the King intends to send an Embassy to the Sophy of Persia, to invite him into the League against the Turks; And that the Pope will bear the Expence of it.

Buda, Nov. 28. A Party of 200 Janisaries on Horseback, of the Garison of Alba Regalis, being abroad the last week, were met by a Party of this Garison, of about the same number; They charged very bravely on both sides, and the Skirmish lasted above an Hour, but at last the Turks fled, leaving behind them 21 of their Company slain, and 15 Prisoners, who being brought thither, reported, that there is at present a very good Garison in Alba Regalis; And that the Bassa is making several new Works to add to the Strength of the place. We have advice, that the Grand Visier is retired with 5000 Men to Belgrade, having before his departure from Essecke, reinforced that, and some other neighbouring Garisons. We are told from Zolnock; that the Fortresses of Agria and Mongatz are now so closely blockt up, that those Garisons cannot make any more Excursions. That General Caraffa had likewise resolved to block up Great Waradin this Winter, for which purpose Major-General Heusser had Orders to post himself in the Neighborhood of that place with 6 German Regiments, and 2500 Hussars and Hoydukes commanded by the Count de Bargotzi. The same Letters farther tell us, That the Count de Veterani was marching with four Regiments towards the Frontiers of Transilvania, to take their Winter-quarters in that Country. The Ramparts of this City, which were ruined during the late Siege, are as much repaired as the Season will permit. The Streets are all cleansed, and the number of Inhabitants encreases every day.

Vienna, Decemb. 5. They write from Upper Hungary, that General Caraffa was not yet agreed with Prince Abafsi concerning the Winter-quarters; That the greatest difficulty was about the Counties of Zobolci, Bishovi, Czonograd and Ordantz, which depended formerly on the Kingdom of Hungary; To free these from Winter-quarters Prince Abafsi offered a Sum of Money, but General Caraffa suspecting that his design was to amuse him with a Negotiation, till such time as the Turks had lodged themselves there, has sent Four Regiments, to possess themselves of the Passages and most considerable Posts in those Counties. We are told, that the Grand Visier intends to have his Head Quarter this Winter at Temeswaer; And that Sultan Galga is on his march with a considerable Body of Tartars towards the Frontiers of Transilvania; where he will take his Winter-quarters. A Letter has been intercepted from Count Teckley to the Princess Ragotzi his Wife, written the 26th of October at Great Waradin, in which, among other things, he acquaints her, that he was going to Constantinople, where his presence was very necessary, to negotiate several matters of great importance to him; And advises her to remove with her Plate, Jewels, and best Goods from Mongatz, to some secure place in Transilvania, for that he very much feared Mongatz would be attackt this Winter by the Imperialists. The last Letters from Upper Hungary said, That she was still at Mongatz, and that she had caused all the Villages thereabouts to be burnt, that the Imperialists might not lodge themselves in them. The Deputies that are
