*Board of Trade, Whitehall,
August 7, 1860.*

THE Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations have received from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of a Despatch from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at St. Petersburg, enclosing a copy of an Ukase issued by the Emperor of Russia, authorizing foreigners to enter the Russian commercial guilds, upon the same footing as native subjects, and conceding to them all the rights conferred by the guilds upon Russian merchants.

The ukase further grants to foreigners the right to acquire, by purchase, succession, legacy, gift, or imperial concession, all kinds of property, both real and personal, excepting always such property as the Russian hereditary nobility, and foreigners possessing equal rights, are alone able to obtain by virtue of existing laws.

Foreigners are further allowed to act as agents for occupied estates, provided the consent of the proprietors has been obtained. It is also lawful for them to farm real property under the conditions prescribed by law.

The above concessions do not apply to foreign Jews, who are subject to a special treatment.
