Foreign-Office, November 13, 1860.

A DESPATCH, dated Tien-tsin, September 8, 1860, of which the following is an extract, has, with its enclosures, been this day received at the Foreign-Office from the Earl of Elgin, Her Majesty's High Commissioner and Plenipotentiary in China :

"In pursuance of an arrangement previously made Messrs. Wade and Parkes waited, by my desire, on the Imperial Commissioners, on the 6th inst., with a draft of the Convention which it was understood was to have been signed on the 8th. The Commissioners, who had already been unofficially apprised of its terms, made little objection to any portion of it, except the clause providing that of the total indemnity of eight million taels declared to be due by China to Great Britain, one million should be paid before Tient-sin was evacuated by the British troops. After some conversation, however, in which they betrayed manifest signs of uneasiness, they announced to my Secretaries that they could not stipulate that the Convention should take effect without previous ratification, and that so far from being ready to sign it on the 8th inst., they could not do so at all until it had been submitted to the Emperor for his approval.

This intimation led to a discussion respecting the extent of the powers held by Kweiliang and his colleagues.

It is not very easy to apprehend the precise import of the phraseology employed in Imperial Decrees on subjects of this nature. It was very obvious, however, from what passed during the course of this discussion, that Kweiliang either had not, or did not, at this particular moment wish it to be supposed, that he had powers equal to those, which he held when he made a Treaty with me here in 1858 ; although in the first communication which I received from him announcing his appointment, the title which he assumed, and the language which he employed, were calculated to convey the opposite impression.

It was impossible to attribute this departure from a precedent so recently established, and established in the person of Kweiliang himself, to anything but a deliberate design to create delay which might throw us into the winter, and thereby extricate the Pekin Government from its present embarrassments. To check this policy by an act of vigour was manifestly indispensable, unless we intended to forfeit all the advantages secured by our advance to this point ; and I accordingly resolved, with Baron Gros' concurrence, to intimate to the Imperial Commissioners, that, in consequence of the want of good faith exhibited by them in assuming the title of Plenipotentiaries, when they could not exercise the authority which it implied, and of the delays which the alleged necessity of constant reference to Pekin would occasion, I had determined to proceed at once to Tang-chou, and to enter into no further communications with them until I should have reached that place.

Inclosure No. 2 in this despatch is a copy of the letter in which I conveyed to them this determination, and inclosure No. 1 is a copy of the report in which Messrs. Wade and Parkes narrate what passed at the interview to which I have been referring.

My letter to the Imperial Commissioners produced a reply, of which inclosure No. 3 is a copy. But, although civilly worded and abounding in promise, their reply was, in fact, an admission of the charge that they had been hitherto negotiating under false pretences. Inclosure No. 4 is a copy of my answer, and simply states that I adhere to the resolution communicated to them in my former despatch.

With the infelicity which so often characterizes the proceedings of Chinese negotiators in such cases, the Imperial Commissioners betrayed their want of candour in this matter, on the day succeeding that on which Major-General Sir R. Napier reached this place with the 2nd division of the force under Sir Hope Grant's command. The army was therefore in the best possible condition for a movement in advance, and I officially apprized the Commander-in-Chief, who has been throughout fully cognizant of the course of the negotiations in which I have been engaged, of the cause of my desire to proceed to Tangchou, in a letter of which the copy forms inclosure No 5 of this despatch.

MEMORANDUM of an interview between the Assistant Imperial Commissioners, Hangki, and Messrs. Wade and Parkes.

Tientsin, September 7, 1860.

UNDER instructions from his Excellency the Earl of Elgin, who had communicated his wishes to that effect to the Commissioners in a despatch of the same date, we proceeded about half-past four, on the afternoon of the 6th instant to the yamun of the Salt Commissioner, in which the Imperial Commissioner Kweiliang is staying, and at which it had been arranged we should meet the Assistant Commissioner Hangki, to deliver to the latter the draft of a Convention, on signature of which Lord Elgin promised in his earlier despatch of the 29th of August, to call on the Commanders-in-Chief to desist from further hostilities.

The substance of this Convention had been made fully known to the Commissioners so early, as the 3rd instant, and a draft of the whole Convention, with the exception of one article, was non-officially handed to Hangki on the evening of the 5th instant; and it was then distinctly understood, after he had read it over, that the preliminary interview with the Ambassador should take place on the 7th, and the Convention be signed on the 8th instant. The single article to be added, as we then told Hangki, concerned the troops, the distribution of which, in the south, was not yet absolutely decided; but we repeated what he already knew, that the moment the one million taels, stipulated for in the Convention, was paid, the force would be withdrawn from Tien-tsin. The article, as it now stands, was of course added to the draft officially handed to him last evening.

The condition affecting the movements of the troops, however, seemed comparatively of little interest. His grand difficulty, to all appearance, was the payment of the money demanded. He had suggested some verbal changes and omissions in the despatch already in his hands, but nothing that would not have admitted of modification, without compromising any principle.

When now reading over the preamble, however, he was reminded that, before signature, the powers of the Plenipotentiaries would have to be produced, that is to say, on the part of the Chinese. The imperial decree, describing more or less the nature of the case requiring the appointment of imperial commissioners, and defining their authority to deal with such case. He did not seem much disturbed by this remark, but presently, on coming to the article which provides for the immediate operativeness of the Convention, "without the formality of a ratification," he said that these words could not be inserted by any Chinese in a Treaty, and that, in fact, without first receiving the approval of the Emperor, the Commissioners could not sign the Convention at all.

This induced us to remark that the two Commissioners, Kweiliang and Hang-Fuh, have each of them in their titles the words pien-i-hing-sz, implying power to act as the occasion shall demand, and we went on to inquire what words describing the question they were charged to dispose of had accompanied such other words as invested them with the pien-i-hing-sz powers, in the imperial decree which we never doubted they had received.

Hangki then said that they had not received any other decree than that already communicated to Lord Elgin in Hang-Fuh's and Hangki's despatch, without date of the day (received 25th instant), and of this Tsunghan, the Commissioner of the Salt "Gabelle," who, partly as host and partly in satisfaction of Chinese usage, was assisting at our conference, went to procure a copy. He returned presently with one which he subsequently admitted had been made from a Pekin Gazette, which he also produced. The decree is identically the same with that recited in the above despatch. It does not state what the Commissioners are to discuss or dispose of, nor does it state that they are invested with pien-i-hing-sz powers. It makes no allusion even to foreign affairs.

We continued to press Hangki regarding this decree, firmly persuaded that, as in 1858, the Emperor had issued one, declaratory of the nature of Kweiliang's mission, and his authority to deal with us. Hangki suggested that Kweiliang must have got his orders at his last audience of the Emperor, but that such a decree, as we spoke of, might possibly be in the possession of Hang-Fuh, who was at his own residence, but as Tsung-han continued to pass back and forward between Hangki and Kweiliang, it was deemed advisable to request an interview with the latter. This after a little delay was acceded to. Kweiliang informed us that he was very seriously indisposed. He looked so, and appeared at the same time rather to exaggerate his infirmity. He seemed at the same time fully conscious, as did the other two mandarins, that there was something wrong.

It was explained to him, that our Commission had been simply to confer with Hang-ki, with a view to putting the Convention, the terms of which he was already aware, into shape, and that one of the first points to which we had naturally come, was the exhibition of the powers referred to in the preamble, which would have to precede the signature of the Convention itself; that understanding from Hang-ki that there was no decree on the subject, except that short one of the 24th ultimo, we had deemed it advisable to hear this from his Excellency Kweiliang's own lips, as we thought it useless to proceed with the further consideration of the draft we had brought, until we had informed Lord Elgin of the fact. Kweiliang as Tsung-han had done previously, fell back upon his first interview with Lord Elgin, in 1858. He said he had then produced a decree which was rejected as insufficient, because he was not furnished with a Kwan-fang, and that he had now brought a Kwan-fang without a special decree. He was reminded that the former decree was objected to as being in itself incomplete, even had he possessed a Kwan-fang, but that that decree did at least declare that he was armed with the Plenipotentiary powers he assumed in his title, and he was again urged to say when, or by what decree, he was now invested with the same title, to his employment of which alone was to be attributed Lord Elgin's acceptance of him as a Minister qualified to treat of the matter in hand.

Kweiliang endeavoured to impress upon us that he was sure to be regarded at Pekin as possessing the necessary powers, as in Lord Elgin's letters to him, which he had forwarded to the capital, he had always been addressed by Lord Elgin as Plenipotentiary Minister. After some beating about the bush, however, he admitted that he had no decree save the one before us, but would immediately write to Pekin for the powers required.

We then took our leave.

HARRY S. PARKES,
Joint Chinese Secretaries.

(Inclosure No. 2, in the Earl of Elgin's despatch of the 8th September, 1860.)

THE undersigned, Earl of Elgin, &c., has the honour to acknowledge the note of their Excellencies the Imperial Commissioners, proposing an interview with him this day.

The undersigned has since received the report of his Secretaries, Mr. Wade and Mr. Parkes, who were yesterday sent to deliver officially to the Assistant-Commissioner Hangki, the draft of the Convention which, as stated by the undersigned in his despatch of the 29th August, it was necessary should be signed before he could apply to the Commanders-in-Chief to desist from offensive operations.

Independently of the plain language used in the undersigned's despatch above referred to, the nature of the stipulations to be entered into by this Convention having been communicated in various conversations, dating so far back as the 3rd instant, and a draft of almost the whole Convention placed in their hands on the 5th instant, it is with no little surprise that the undersigned has learnt that their Excellencies declare that they have no authority to sign the Convention until it shall have been submitted to His Majesty the Emperor, and that they are unable to produce any decree investing them with the powers implied by certain words forming part of their official titles, and their assumption of which alone induced the undersigned to regard their Excellencies as competent to the negotiations which their despatches of the 23rd August and 25th of August declared them qualified to undertake. The undersigned will not dwell on the want of good faith indicated by this proceeding. It is enough for him to observe that the alleged necessity of reference to Peking, from a point so distant as this involves delays to which he will not submit. He has accordingly called upon His Excellency the General Commanding Her Britannick Majesty's Army in China, to provide him with such a force as will enable him to proceed, without loss of time, to Tung Chan, and he has further to intimate to the Imperial Commissioners that he can neither receive their visit nor enter into any convention with them, for the re-establishment of peace, till he shall have reached that city.

(Signed) ELGIN & KINCARDINE.

(Inclosure 3 in the Earl of Elgin's Despatch of September 8, 1860, received 7th September, 1860.)

Kweiliang and Hang-Fuh, Imperial Commissioners, and Hangki, Assistant-Commissioner, make a communication in reply.

THE Commissioners have this instant received the letter of His Excellency the British Minister, and having thoroughly acquainted themselves with its contents, would urge that a representation has been made to the Throne regarding the question raised at their interview of yesterday with His Excellency's secretaries, Messrs. Wade and Parkes, and that His Majesty's decree may be expected in a day or two. Peace between the two countries having become matter of negotiation (or negotiations being already on foot) a certain amount of indulgence, they think, may be allowed in all deliberations. It is their duty to state this to His Excellency the British Minister, and to request him notwithstanding what has happened, at least to wait three days or so at Tien-tsin, so as to enable everything to be settled satisfactorily; to the more perfect re-establishment of friendly relations. This will be best. They accordingly address this communication to him.

A necessary communication, &c.

(Inclosure 4 in the Earl of Elgin's Despatch of September 8, 1860.)

THE undersigned has the honour to acknowledge the communication received last evening from their Excellencies the Imperial Commissioners, Kweiliang, Hang-Fuh, Hangki, urging him to delay his departure from Tien-tsin for a few days.

The undersigned begs to state, in reply, that he has nothing to add to the despatch which he had the honour to address yesterday to the Commissioners.

(Inclosure 5 in the Earl of Elgin's Despatch, of the 8th of September, 1860.)

SIR, Tien-tsin, September 8, 1860.

I regret to say that I have been compelled to break off, for the moment, negotiations for the re-establishment of peace with China, in consequence of its having been unexpectedly intimated to my secretaries, Messrs. Parkes and Wade, by the Imperial Commissioners, that they have not the requisite authority to treat with me.

As this is evidently a device to gain time, I have thought it my duty to inform them that negotiations are closed for the present, and that they cannot be resumed until I shall have reached Tang-Chan.

(Signed) ELGIN and KINCARDINE.

NOTICE is hereby given, that application is intended to be made to Parliament in the ensuing session for leave to bring in a Bill to repeal, alter, amend, extend, and enlarge some of the powers and provisions of "The Sittingbourne and Sheerness Railway Act, 1856;" "The Sittingbourne and Sheerness Railway Act, 1857;" and "The Sittingbourne and Sheerness Railway (Increase of Capital) Act, 1859;" or of some or one of the said Acts, or otherwise wholly to repeal the said Acts, and to consolidate all or some of the provisions thereof, and of the said intended Bill, into one Act, and to confer upon the Sittingbourne and Sheerness Railway Company (herein called the Company) further and additional powers and authorities, and particularly powers and authorities for all or some of the several objects and purposes hereinafter mentioned and incident thereto, that is to say:

To raise additional capital by the creation of new shares or stock, and by borrowing on mortgage or bond, or by all or any or either of those modes, and to make such shares or stock either of one class or of different classes, and either ordinary, guaranteed, or preference shares or stock, and to make such new preference shares part of the same class, and to rank pari passu with the existing and authorized preference shares of the Company, or to make such new preference shares a separate class of preference shares, to rank after the existing and authorized preference shares, and before the original shares of the Company.

To authorize the Company to increase the rate of dividend attached to the preference shares issued and authorized to be issued by the Company, and to attach to all or any of the shares or stock to be created under the proposed Bill such and the same rate of dividend, or such other rate of interest or dividend, either in perpetuity or for a term of years, and either with or without any other privileges, rights, and advantages, and either subject to or not subject to any rights of redemption or repayment, or other conditions and stipulations, and in all respects upon such terms as the Company shall think fit.

To confer on the Company the most ample powers in respect of the increase, issue, application, distribution, and regulation of their existing authorized and proposed capital.

To enable the Company to provide ballast for ships and vessels discharging their cargoes at the pier of the Company, and to purchase and sell ballast for such purposes, and provide trucks and other rolling stock for the conveyance of such ballast, and for the other traffic to and from the said pier, and to make and enter into arrangements with the owners of passenger and other steam vessels, and other vessels frequenting the said pier, or engaging to perform regular service to and from the said pier, for the use of the said pier and for the performance of services by the Company, and as to the tolls, rates, and charges to be paid in respect of such steam-vessels and other vessels, and of the passengers, animals, goods, minerals, and other traffic landed or embarked by them at the said pier.

To enable the Company to let on lease, either for any term of years or in perpetuity, the pier undertaking of the Company, and any property, plant, estate, and effects belonging thereto, and the tolls, rates, and duties demandable in respect of the said undertaking, or the said tolls, rates, and duties only, and in either case all or any of the powers of the Company in connection with the subjects so leased or in relation thereto, to any person or persons whomsoever, at such rent or rents, and subject to such terms and conditions either as to the completion and maintenance of the said pier and works, by the lessee or lessees thereof, or otherwise as the Company shall think fit, and to enable such lessee or lessees to make the rent or rents payable under such lease to the Company a first charge on the tolls, rates, and duties of the said pier undertaking so leased, in preference to all other claims thereon.

To enable the Company and the owners and lessees or occupiers of lands in the Isle of Sheppy, whether capacitated or incapacitated, to agree for the redemption and discharge of such lands from the ferry or bridge rate of one penny in the year now payable to the Company, in respect of every acre of fresh marsh and upland, and of one penny in the year in respect of every ten acres of salt marsh, in consideration of the payment to the Company of such gross sum of money as may be agreed upon, and to vest in the Company and such owners and lessees or occupiers respectively, all necessary powers for the purpose, and to enable the Company to apply the compensation or purchase money for such redemption and discharge to the general purposes of the Company.

the bridge over the Swale, for such sums of money and upon such terms and conditions as the Company shall think fit, and to apply the proceeds of such sale to the general purposes of the Company, and to confer upon the Company and other persons all necessary powers for those purposes. And it is intended by the said Bill to repeal, alter, amend, and extend the provisions contained in sections 25 and 26 of "The Sittingbourne and Sheerness Railway Act, 1856," respecting the opening and shutting the bridge over the Swale, and to extend the time during which vessels may be detained to allow the said bridge to be opened and shut, or shut and opened, or shut only, to allow trains or carriages, animals or passengers, and other road traffic to cross the same, and to make other provisions in lieu thereof, and to exonerate and relieve the Company from all liability to open the said bridge for the passage of vessels with masts capable of being lowered, and to make other provisions with respect to such vessels and to the said bridge.

And notice is hereby also given, that on or before the 22nd day of December next, printed copies of the said Bill will be deposited in the Private Bill Office of the House of Commons.
