TUESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1861.

EARL RUSSELL, Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, has received a Despatch from Mr. McCoskry, Acting British Consul at Lagos, dated July 2, 1861, of which the following is an extract :

" I HAVE the honour to inform your Lordship that, notwithstanding the signature of the Treaty by the King of Porto Novo, I found so many obstacles to trade, arising chiefly from old native custom, as to deter most merchants from settling there. I therefore thought necessary to go to Porto Novo in Her Majesty's ship Brune, in order to have them removed, where we arrived at 4 P.M. on the 14th. The next day I went on shore to the King, and after a lengthened interview of four hours, occupied in pointing out that our measures for opening his country for free legitimate trade would result as beneficially to him as to us, I left him, he having promised to lay the matter before his Chiefs and Head Men next day.

" Accordingly, next day they met, and consented to the terms I had drawn up.

" On the 17th, accompanied by several Europeans as witnesses, I again visited the King, when the Treaty, of which the inclosed is a copy, was signed, the King himself pointedly asking his Chiefs if they had well considered the matter before signing.

" On my return I called a meeting of the Chiefs of Badagry, and explained the terms of a Mercantile Treaty I drew up for their signature. They, with two exceptions, consented at once, and subsequently the whole of them signed the Treaty, of which a copy is herewith transmitted."

" Inclosure 1, in Mr. McCoskry's Despatch of July 2nd, 1861.

" Copy of the Treaty signed by the King and Chiefs of Porto Novo, June 17, 1861.

" WHEREAS, there being at present no known and recognised regulations with special reference to trading transactions between British subjects, and others under British protection, and the subjects of the King of Porto Novo,

" William McCoskry, Her Britannic Majesty's Acting Consul, on behalf of British subjects, Africans under British protection, and all legal traders, subjects of countries in amity with Great Britain, and the King of Porto Novo on behalf of his subjects, have agreed to the following articles:

" Art. I. British subjects and other legal traders shall be allowed to go and come freely, to and from Porto Novo and any town within the territories of the King of Porto Novo, and to erect houses or factories for the collection and purchase of palm oil and other produce.

" Art. II. Legal traders shall be allowed to acquire, either by grant or purchase, land in any part of the town or territory of Porto Novo, for the erection of houses or factories for the purpose of trade, or for the cultivation of cotton or any other produce, the said houses or factories to be of whatever construction may be considered best adapted to the business of the owner and the security of his property.

" Art. III. All classes of the people, subjects of Porto Novo or residing therein, shall be allowed at all times to enter the houses of legal traders established in the territories of the King of Porto Novo, there to sell and barter the produce of the country; the natives so trading to be subject to no imposts more than when trading one with another.

" Art. IV. The King of Porto Novo shall punish, upon conviction, any of his subjects who commit theft, robbery, or incendiarism, affecting the property of British subjects and any other legal trader, and will use every means to bring such offenders to speedy justice.

" Art. V. The King of Porto Novo shall cause any of his subjects or other natives residing in his territories under his protection, who may be indebted to traders, to pay such debts within reasonable time, and if not paid within the time so fixed, the property belonging to such person so owing, shall be sold, and applied to the liquidation of the claims against him.

" Art. VI. British subjects and other legal traders shall be allowed to employ in their business, within the territories of Porto Novo, the natives of any other country, either on shore, in their houses and factories, or on the lagoon, in the transport of goods or produce.

" Art. VII. Any quarrel or dispute that may arise between legal traders or their employes and natives of Porto Novo, shall be referred to the British Consular Agent, if there is one, or if not, to the British Consul at Lagos, who shall, in conjunction with the King of Porto Novo, decide the matter.

"In consideration of the due fulfilment of the foregoing articles, a payment of two heads of cowries shall be paid by all legal traders on every cask containing 150 gallons of palm oil, and two strings of cowries for each pound of ivory exported from Porto Novo; it being understood that no other duty, direct or indirect, be levied on the same produce, and the King do no trade.

"It is further agreed that a payment of 15 heads of cowries be paid for making public the readiness of any merchant to trade.

Signed at Porto Novo, this 17th day of June, 1861.

"Inclosure 2, in Mr. McCoskry's Despatch of July 2nd, 1861.

"Copy of the Treaty signed by the Chiefs of Badagry, June 19, 1861.

"WHEREAS, the legitimate trade of Badagry has hitherto been greatly obstructed by certain native regulations.

"William McCoskry, Her Britannic Majesty's Acting Consul, on behalf of British subjects, others under British protection, and all legal traders, subjects of countries in amity with Great Britain, and the Chiefs of Badagry, on behalf of themselves and their people.

"Art. I. The people of Badagry and others, natives of the neighbouring countries, trading in or to Badagry, shall be allowed to trade freely and directly with the merchants trading at Badagry in their own establishments, and none shall, on that account, be subject to any impost more than when trading one with another.

"Art. II. No native nor Chief of Badagry shall control in any way the trading transactions of any merchant by fixing the price at which any article is to be sold, but shall leave that to be settled between the buyer and seller themselves.

"Art. III. The Chiefs of Badagry shall cause their subjects to pay their just debts to traders within reasonable time, and, if not paid within the time fixed, shall cause the property of the person so owing, to be sold to liquidate the debt.

"Act. IV. Any person subject to the Chiefs of Badagry that may be convicted of theft, robbery, incendiarism, or any other offence, shall be punished by the Chiefs, and they shall use proper means to bring any person accused of any offence, to justice.

"Art. V. Traders at Badagry shall be allowed to employ in any legal work any person they may choose, whether a native of Badagry or not, and no native nor Chief of Badagry shall obstruct persons so employed, in the performance of their work.

"Art. VI. In consideration of the due fulfilment of the foregoing Articles, the traders at Badagry shall pay a duty of 1½ heads of cowries on every 150 gallons of palm oil, or nut oil, and 2 strings of cowries on every pound of ivory exported from Badagry, the amount arising from such duty shall be divided quarterly, by Her Britannic Majesty's Consul amongst the Chiefs of Badagry, according to their conduct and capabilities in furthering the interests of commerce and civilization.

"It is clearly understood that the payment of one head per 30 gallons hitherto charged by Badagry people on palm oil coming from Porto Novo, and all other such charges and imposts on produce, cease when this agreement comes in force.
