*Board of Trade, Whitehall,
December 22, 1862.*

THE Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade have received from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs the following translation of the articles of a decree regulating the entry, &c., of vessels, at the Island of Saint Croix, received from Her Majesty's Minister at Copenhagen:—

1.

No ship or vessel arriving from or bound to any place beyond the Customs' District of St. Croix, or which departs from one Customs' District on the island to another, shall be allowed to communicate with its coasts, except at the public loading or discharging places in the harbour of Christiansted, and in the roadstead of Fredericksted, save when permission to do so, in accordance with section 5, has been obtained, or in cases of distress as mentioned in section 2. Neither shall it be permitted for any ship or vessel, on such a voyage, to enter any bay of the island, lie to, or keep off or on, or anchor off these coasts, except with permission, or in cases of distress, as before stated.

Communication with the coast of the island shall not only be considered to have taken place, when landing has been effected direct from the ship or by the assistance of boats or other craft belonging to her, or, when persons or goods have been landed from the ship, or when persons or goods have been taken on board from the coast, but also when any vessel or other craft from the coast runs alongside the ship, or any boat or craft belonging to her.

If any ship or vessel, in consequence of distress, or being short of provisions, or under other extraordinary circumstances, shall be obliged to enter any bay of the island, or to lie to, or keep off or on, or anchor off the coast, the master of such ship is bound to make a report on the subject, setting forth the cause of such proceeding, to the Inspector of Customs, at the first Danish Custom-house he touches at, in order that further inquiry may be instituted.

If, in the event of such distress, it should prove necessary to communicate with the shore, a signal of distress must be hoisted on board as early as possible, and such communication, by boats from the shore or by landing from the ship, must be confined to what is absolutely necessary, and evidence to this effect must be produced by witnesses, as far as circumstances will admit. If the vessel arrive from a place infected by or suspected as infected by contagious disease, or, if suspicious cases of illness have occurred on board during the voyage, the quarantine laws are to be strictly observed.

3.

No boat, lighter, or other craft used on the island of St. Croix for pleasure, for fishing purposes, for collecting ballast or limestone, or for discharging or loading ships, or for other similar purposes, shall be allowed to have communication with the ships or vessels referred to in section 1, while they are under sail or at anchor outside the harbour of Christiansted, or the roadstead of Fredericksted, or with any ship or vessel sailing past the island, unless permission to do so shall have been obtained in conformity with section 5; or in cases of distress as stated in section 2. In the last mentioned case the person in charge of the boat or lighter shall as early as possible state what has occurred to the nearest quarantine officer or inspector of customs, without reference to the duty imposed by section 2 on the master, to make a report on the subject.

On the coast, beyond the towns, it is the duty of the quarantine officers to enforce the observance of this decree; and, as soon as an infringement of its clauses or anything causing suspicion comes to their knowledge, they shall take such steps and precautions as circumstances may permit, until the arrival of the proper customs or police authority, to whom they have to make an immediate report on the subject. The proprietors and superintendents of estates on the coast are also required to report to the quarantine officer or to the customs or police authority, nearest at hand, as early as possible, any breach of the regulations laid down in sections 1, 2, 3, which may come to their knowledge.

When, in cases as those mentioned in section 2, communication between a vessel and the coast becomes necessary, all persons concerned shall, until it has been ascertained that the ship does not come from a place infected by or suspected as infected by contagious disease, and has had no suspicious case of illness on board during the voyage, use every precaution provided by the laws of quarantine, and more especially by the ordinance of February 8th, 1805, paragraphs 32 to 37.

5.

As this decree makes no alterations in the regulations laid down in the ordinance of April 9th, 1764, cap. 4, section 5, and cap. 7, section 1; and in the law of June 30th, 1850, sections 1 to 15, nor imposes any restrictions on the rules now in force with reference to the superintendence of such ships by the quarantine, customs, or police authorities, so also shall the rules and regulations issued by, or that may be issued by, the Government of the Danish West India Islands, especially as regards the maintenance of order in the harbour of Christiansted, and the roadstead of Fredericksted, in future have full force. The said government are authorised, when circumstances may require it, to allow exceptions to be made in the regulations stipulated in sections 1, 2, 3, and to permit customs' authorities, on the spot, to sanction such exceptions, in accordance with rules to be stipulated.

6.

Violations of the regulations laid down in sections 1, 2, 3, of this decree, shall be punishable with fines varying from 10 to 100 West India dollars, and any infringement of section 4, with fines varying from 2 to 20 West India dollars, provided no breach of the quarantine laws, liable to severer punishment, shall have been committed.

The ship, with reference to which the offence has been committed, shall be held responsible for the fine and the expenses incurred in consequence, unless it be proved that it has been used for such purpose without the knowledge and against the will of the owner or the master.

Questions respecting violations of this decree, are to be tried and judged as public police cases; but the master of police shall, before judgment is passed, submit a report of the enquiry held, and of the facts brought forward to the government, who have to decide whether the case shall go to judgment or be abandoned.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

(No. 40.)—NEW ZEALAND.

Fixed Light at Nelson Harbour.

The Colonial Government at New Zealand has given notice, that on and after the 4th day of August, 1862, a light would be exhibited from a lighthouse recently erected at Nelson harbour, Blind bay, on the north coast of Middle island.

The light is a fixed white light, visible from seaward through an arc of 120° or when bearing from S. by W.  $\frac{3}{4}$  W. round by East to E. by N. easterly. It is placed at an elevation of about 60 feet above the level of high water springs, and should be seen in clear weather from a distance of 12 miles.

The illuminating apparatus is dioptric or by lenses, of the fourth order.

The tower is of iron, octagonal, and painted white. It stands on the south-west part of the Boulder bank which forms the breakwater to the anchorage at about 10 miles south-westward of Pepin island, and half a mile N. by E. of the powder magazine, in lat. 41° 15' 5" S., long. 173° 17' 7" East of Greenwich. It bears from the extreme of Cape Farewell sand pit S.S.E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  E. easterly; and from the west entrance to Waimea river E. by N. easterly.

The outer anchorage is in 6 fathoms water with the light bearing E.S.E.

Caution.—Mariners are cautioned not to shut the light in, nor to approach within the distance of one mile of the lighthouse.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

(No. 41.)—CHANNEL ISLANDS—GUERNSEY.

Revolving Red Light on Hanois Rocks.

The Corporation of the Trinity House, London, has given notice, that on and after the 8th day of December, 1862, a light would be exhibited from a lighthouse recently erected on the Hanois rocks, off the west end of Guernsey.

The light is a quick revolving red light, attaining its greatest brilliancy every forty-five seconds. It is placed at an elevation of 100 feet above high water springs, and should be seen in clear weather from a distance of 12 to 14 miles.

The illuminating apparatus is dioptric or by lenses, of the first order.

The tower is round, of gray granite, and is 117 feet high from base to vane. It stands on the south-western rock of the Hanois group, with Pleinmont point bearing E.S.E., distant one mile; the Casquets N.E. by E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  E., 21  $\frac{1}{2}$  miles; Corbiere rocks, Jersey, S.S.E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  E., 23  $\frac{1}{2}$  miles; and Roches Douvres S.W.  $\frac{3}{4}$  S., 20 miles; in lat. 49° 26' 2" N., long. 2° 42' 10" West of Greenwich.

The water is deep to a quarter of a mile of the west side of the lighthouse, but dangerous rocks extend in a S. by W. direction to the distance of a third of a mile, also to the N.N.W. for three-quarters of a mile, and to the northward for one mile. Les Grunes du Bois, a rock that dries 10 feet at low water springs, and which has hitherto been considered the northernmost danger off Guernsey, bears E. by N.  $\frac{1}{4}$  N. nearly 5 miles from the lighthouse; but as several dangerous sunken rocks have lately been discovered outside it (one of which, Boue Blondel, has only 5 fathoms on it at low water, and bears from the lighthouse N.N.E., distant 3  $\frac{1}{2}$  miles), vessels passing westward of Guernsey at night, to clear all dangers, should not bring the Hanois light to bear westward of South until the Casquets lights bear E.N.E. Caution is also necessary during light winds to avoid being set towards the island by the flood stream.

The light is visible all round the western horizon, and obscured only to the eastward by the Island of Guernsey, from its north point bearing E. by N. to the southward, as far as Pleinmont point. The line of eclipse in this latter direction is S.E. from the light, passing 3  $\frac{1}{4}$  miles to the south-westward of L'Etac de Serk, and over the Pierres de Lecq rocks.

[All bearings are magnetic. Variation 22° 0' West in 1862.]
