ANTISCORBUTICS TO BE CARRIED BY MERCHANT SHIPS.

Exemption.

WHEREAS by "The Merchant Shipping Act, 1867," it is enacted that the following rule shall be observed respecting lime or lemon juice, and other antiscorbutics to be carried by foreign-going ships navigating between the United Kingdom and any place out of the same, viz:—

"(4.) The master or owner of every such foreign-going ship (except those bound to European ports or to ports in the Mediterranean Sea, and also except such ships or classes of ships bound to ports on the Eastern Coast of America, north of the thirty-fifth degree of north latitude, and to any islands or places in the Atlantic Ocean north of the same limit, as the Board of Trade may from time to time exempt from this enactment), shall provide and cause to be kept on board such ship a sufficient quantity of lime or lemon juice from the warehouse, duly labelled as aforesaid" (that is to say, from a bonded warehouse, and labelled as required by the preceding paragraph), "such labels to remain intact until twenty-four hours at least after such ship shall have left her port of departure on her foreign voyage, or a sufficient quantity of such other antiscorbutics, if any, of such quality, and composed of such materials, and packed and kept in such manner as Her Majesty by Order in Council may from time to time direct."

Now, therefore, the Board of Trade, in exercise of the powers vested in them by the said recited Act, hereby exempt from the enactment above quoted, all ships bound from any port in the United Kingdom to ports on the Eastern Coast of America, situate between the 35th and 60th degrees of north latitude; and also all ships bound to any islands or places in the Atlantic Ocean, situate within those limits.

Provided always,—first, that this exemption shall not extend or apply to ships which, being bound to any place within the limits aforesaid, are or may by the terms of their agreements be also bound to any place out of those limits; and, secondly, that this exemption shall not extend or apply to ships bound to any part of the coast or islands of Greenland, situate within the limits aforesaid.
