*Marine Department, Board of Trade,
Whitehall Gardens, February 15, 1873.*

THE Board of Trade have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a Despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Madrid, inclosing the following translation of Regulations which have been drawn up by the Spanish Government for the guidance of captains of vessels proceeding to Cuba and Puerto Rico.

(Translation.)

RULES for the guidance of Captains and Supercargoes of Vessels, Spanish or belonging to other Nations, engaged in the Import Trade from Foreign Ports to the Ports of Cuba and Puerto Rico.

1. The captains of vessels going from foreign ports to those of Cuba and Puerto Rico shall present to the Spanish Consul or Vice-Consul a loading note (johordo), in duplicate and without emendation, setting forth:—

1st. The class, nationality, and name of the vessel, and the exact number of Spanish tons she measures. In the first voyage made by each vessel to those islands, the number of tons she measures according to the building measurement shall be declared, even though those tons be not Spanish; and in following voyages, they shall be obliged to show a certificate of the measurement made on first arrival by order of the Administration of Customs for the exaction of tonnage dues.

2nd. The name of the captain or master.

3rd. The port or ports from which they came.

4th. The names of the shippers and of the owners or consignees to whom the cargo is addressed.

5th. The bundles, packages, barrels, boxes, &c., with their corresponding marks and numbers, setting forth in figures and words the number of each kind.

6th. The generic nomenclature of the goods or of the contents of the packages, and their gross weight. The words "merchandise," "victuals,"

"provisions," or others of the same vague nature, will not be allowed as generic nomenclature.

7th. The same account of goods intended for deposit or transit.

8th. The note shall conclude by stating that the vessel carries no other goods.

2. If the whole or part of the cargo be iron in bars or plates, metals in pigs (en galápagos o lingotes), wood, salt beef (tasajo), salt, cocoa, or other effects that go unpacked, they shall be set forth in decimal weight or measure, according to their class, in the aforesaid duplicate loading note.

3. The loading notes shall be certified by the Spanish Consul or Vice-Consul, who shall hand one copy to the captain of the vessel, keeping back the other, which he shall send directly to the "Intendente" of the island to which the vessel is going, to serve as a voucher in the examination of the cargo by the respective Custom-house.

4. The captain, on concluding his voyage, shall place a note on his copy of the loading note, stating:—

1st. The goods carried by the crew, and not noted in the document, up to the value of 200 escudos per individual.

2nd. The unconsumed ship's provisions.

3rd. The provisions of war and spare stores, and the coal for the ship's consumption, if she be a steamer.

5. The captain, on arrival at the port of destination, shall, when the health visit is being made, hand the loading note certified by the Consul and the general manifest of the cargo to the Chief of the Custom-house men or of the Coast Guard.

6. Should a vessel sail in ballast, the captain shall present to the Consul or Vice-Consul a duplicate note stating that fact; and the same form shall be gone through as with the loading note, i.e., the Consul shall certify both documents, handing one copy to the captain, and keeping the other to send to the "Intendente" of the island to which the ship is going.

7. Should the captain or supercargo not present the loading or ballast note when the visit is being made, which act will be performed on the vessel's casting anchor in the port of her destination, they shall be subject to a fine of 400 escudos for the want of that document; should the note not contain the Consular certificate or attestation, they shall be fined 200 escudos; and should it not be drawn up according to Rule I, they shall be fined 50 escudos for each circumstance omitted or falsely expressed, in which case the total amount of the fines shall not exceed 400 escudos.

The captain or supercargo who, on being asked by the Chief of the Coast Guard or his representative, does not present, when the visit is being made, the loading note and manifest of the cargo, shall be liable to a fine of 1,000 escudos, unless accidents at sea shall have obliged him suddenly to come into port, which fact shall be justified by an "Informacion Sumaria."

8. Should emendation or alteration be observed in the said documents, the captains or masters shall be liable to be tried for falsification, and their responsibility shall be the same whether the vessels come in ballast or with cargo.

9. The presentation of the loading note shall be obligatory, and shall take place in all the ports, bays, and anchorage ground of the Island to which the vessels may come, even, although by reason of "force majeure," the administrators keeping a copy and returning the original to the captain, that he may hand it over at the port of his destination.

10. The Coast Guard Vessels may demand the loading note of the captain or master within 23 kilometres of the port of destination.

11. The captains themselves are obliged to present to the Spanish Consul or Vice-Consul at the starting point a note of the approximate value of the cargo, to serve as data for the commercial statistics to be drawn up by those officers.

12. A captain not declaring the exact number of Spanish tons that the vessel measures, shall pay the expenses of measurement, if the excess should turn out to be more than 10 per cent.

13. Captains who, forced by bad weather or any other fortuitous circumstances, may throw into the sea part of the cargo, shall also note the fact in the manifest, stating, even although en gros, the quantities, packages, and class of the goods; and they shall be obliged to make the proper declaration at the Custom-house, and to exhibit the log-book in proof of their assertions.

14. Passengers' luggage shall be presented at the Customs Warehouse for examination. If there should be found, in the same, trade goods up to the value of 200 escudos, they shall pay the tariff duty, in view of the note or minute list which the parties interested shall present to the Administrator of the Custom-house. If the value of the goods should exceed 200 escudos and not exceed 400, they shall pay double duty; but, should they be worth more, they shall be liable to confiscation, except in either case the parties shall have previously presented a note of the goods, for then they shall only be subject to the payment of the consumption dues set forth in the tariff.

15. Any improvement of, addition to, or alteration in the manifest or loading note and the statements to order (manifestaciones a' la orden) is absolutely prohibited, the differences which may result between (entre) those documents being furnished according to the instructions.

16. When cargoes come from a port where there is no Consul nor Vice-Consuls, and those Agents reside at a distance exceeding 30 kilometres from the place of embarkation, the captains and supercargoes may be excused from the formality of the loading notes; but in order to enjoy this exemption the cargo must be all of the same nature, and necessarily composed, in its entirety, of any of the following effects: hides, timber, staves for casks, wood for dyeing, coal, or bullocks' horns, with the understanding that those articles be the produce of the country of the national starting point of the vessel, that the voyage be direct, and that the payment of duty be made for the whole of the goods.

17. All packages omitted from the loading note or manifest shall be liable to confiscation, and the captain shall also be fined to the amount of the value thereof (otro tanto de su valor), if the amount of the duty on the goods does not exceed 800 escudos; for should it exceed that sum, and should the articles belong or be consigned to the owner, captain, or supercargo of the vessel, the fine shall not be levied, and in place thereof the vessel shall be confiscated with her freights and every other profit.

18. If on the conclusion of the unloading of the vessel, any manifested package or packages should be wanting, without due presentation of the invoice of the contents, it shall be understood that the captain or supercargo has committed a fraud against the revenue, and he shall be fined 400 escudos for every package missing.

19. Should the owner or consignee of goods not manifested by the captain, present to the administration within forty-eight hours the invoice thereof, no accusation shall be made against him, and the effects shall be handed over to him, but in such a case the captain or supercargo shall be liable to a fine equal to the total value of the goods or effects not manifested.

20. Without permission of the administrator and examination of the Chief of the Coast Guard nothing can be landed. For the mere fact of landing articles, even if of small importance or free of duty, the captain or supercargo shall pay a fine of 2,000 escudos, and all the effects taken, and the boat carrying them, shall be confiscated if the sum to be paid on such effects does not exceed 400 escudos, for if it exceeds that sum the fine shall not be levied, and the ship shall be confiscated.

21. Nor can effects be transhipped in bay in large or small quantities without the requirements of the instructions; if this be done, the captains or supercargoes shall be liable to the punishments established in those instructions.

22. Should effects of much or little importance be unloaded in a part not habilitated, the vessel bringing them shall be confiscated with all her fittings.

23. If in consequence of the visit (visita de fondo) which is made to every vessel before issuing to her the register with which she is to sail, excess should appear in the cargo, the excess shall be confiscated and the captain shall pay a fine equal to the value thereof.

24. Seizures of goods, produce, or effects attempted to be fraudently embarked are subject to the confiscation and fine mentioned in the previous article.

25. Should captains and supercargoes not have wherewith to pay their fines, the ships they command shall be used for the payment thereof and of the costs, unless their consignees voluntarily come forward to pay.

26. No translation and despatch of manifest or loading note shall be proceeded to until the captain or consignee of the vessel shall have presented at the Custom-house the corresponding bill of health.

27. The captains or supercargoes of steam mail packets (in which class will be included only those which, besides carrying correspondence with a patent from their Government, have periodically fixed days of sailing from the respective ports) may bring as much as ten tons of cargo without the requirements of the consular certificate, but they are, notwithstanding, obliged to present a manifest of the cargo in the time and form laid down in these rules.

28. Should the cargo brought by steam mail packets exceed ten tons, the presentation of a loading note registered by the Spanish Consul at the ports from which they come shall be obligatory; and in this case the captains or supercargoes may be permitted to manifest as much as six tons more without the consular requirement; should it exceed this amount the manifest shall be considered as not having been presented, and the proceedings to be adopted shall be in conformity with these rules.

29. The masters of fishing vessels which, coming from the neighbouring coasts, enter with fish (dead or alive) or in ballast the ports of the Antilles, are excused from presenting the consular certificates.
