Whitehall Gardens, S.W., January 2, 1874.*

The Board of Trade have received through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs a Despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Athens, containing a translation, into French, of a Royal Decree regarding Quarantine in Greek Ports.

An English translation of the Decree is subjoined:—

GEORGE I.

King of the Greeks.

WISHING to grant to Commerce and International Communication all facilities compatible with the interest of the public health;

On the proposition of our Minister, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, and with the advice of the Medical Council,

We have ordained and do ordain that Articles 5 and 7, of our Ordinance of the 19th July, 1866, shall be modified as follows:

ARTICLE 5.

Sec. 1. Vessels of war generally, and packet boats belonging to Companies with which the State has made and maintains postal or steam navigation arrangements, shall, if arriving from countries infected with cholera, be subjected to an effective quarantine of five days in cases where their passage has occupied fifteen entire days. If the passage has occupied more than twenty days, they shall only be subjected to a quarantine of observation for twenty-four hours. If the passage has occupied more than fifteen and less than twenty days, the said ships shall be kept in quarantine for a sufficient number of days to make up twenty-one days since their departure from the infected country.

If the passage has occupied less than twenty but more than seventeen days, the Health Office, taking into account the following points, viz., the size and accommodation of the port where it is established, and the comparative violence of the epidemic at the port of departure, the number of passengers and crew of the vessel arriving, the provisions for ventilation on board, and the state of health of the crew and passengers during the voyage, as shown by their declarations made in conformity with Articles 19-31, of the Sanitary Regulation, may, after taking the advice of the Sanitary Commission, either send the vessel to the proper lazaretto or authorize her to enter the port under surveillance during the days of quarantine which have still to be undergone.

Sec. 2. Steamers and sailing vessels belonging to the mercantile marine shall, every time they arrive from countries infected with cholera, be subjected to an effective quarantine of five days, if they have been at sea more than twenty, but not more than twenty-five days. If they have been out more than twenty-five days they will only require a quarantine of observation lasting twenty-four hours. If their voyage has occupied more than twenty, but not more than twenty-five days, they shall be detained until twenty-five days have elapsed since their leaving an infected country.

Sec. 3. In all the cases specified in the two sections above, it must be clearly understood that the steamers or other vessels have had during their voyage no communication with infected places or ships, and that the persons on board have not been attacked by epidemic disease en route, and that they are in good health at the time of their arrival.

Sec. 4. Steamers and other vessels arriving from infected countries cannot under any circumstances pass their quarantine except in the lazarettos set apart for the purpose, or in ports where Health Offices are established with lazarettos under their jurisdiction.

ARTICLE 7.

Sec. 1. If the steamers or other vessels mentioned in Article 5 of the present Ordinance arrive from countries under suspicion of choleraic infection, then those specified in Sec. 1 shall be admitted to free pratique in case they shall have been fifteen entire days at sea, and shall besides be in the favourable conditions mentioned in Sec. 3; but in case they have been on the voyage more than ten and less than fifteen days they shall be kept in quarantine until fifteen days have elapsed since their leaving the suspected country. As for the steamers and other vessels mentioned in Sec. 2, they shall be admitted to free pratique if they have been more than twenty days at sea, and are in the favourable conditions above-mentioned. If their voyage has lasted more than fifteen, but less than twenty days, they shall be kept in quarantine until twenty days have elapsed since their departure from the suspected country.

Sec. 2. Steamers and other vessels of war arriving from suspected countries may, at the first port of call where there is a Health Office, take on board quarantine officers (gardes sanitaires), and can then go on to any other port in the kingdom where there is a Health Office in order to pass their quarantine.

The Office of Health shall supply the officers asked for, after having made the necessary enquiries in conformity with Arts. 19-31 of the Sanitary Regulation, and the medical visit required by Art. 81 of that regulation, in case the said vessels have not on board a proper medical man. In these cases the quarantine shall be reckoned from the day the Health Officers came on board.

Sec. 3. Merchandise coming from suspected countries shall not be subject to quarantine, but shall be landed under the surveillance of the Sanitary Authority, who will prevent the receivers of the goods from communicating with the ship in quarantine or with those on board, and who will be held responsible for any neglect of this precaution.

The Royal Ordinance of December the 20th, 1866, and all other regulations which are inconsistent with the present Ordinance shall be revoked from the date of the publication of the present Ordinance.

Our Minister, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, shall provide for the publication and execution of this present Ordinance.
