NOTICE TO MARINERS.

(No. 27.)—SOUTH ATLANTIC OCEAN.

Shoal off Coast of Brazil.

INFORMATION has been received from the Peruvian Legation of a declaration having been made before the Maritime Authorities at Callao, by the Master of the English barque "Professor Airy," of the existence of a shoal, on which that vessel grounded near the 17th parallel of south latitude, and about 180 miles from the coast of Brazil: similar information has also been obtained from the owner of the ship, Mr. James Burgess, of Swansea.

When on a voyage from Cardiff to Callao, on the evening of the 4th October, 1875, in lat. 17° 9' S., long. 36° 4' W., with a light S.S.E. wind and clear weather, the Barque "Professor Airy," going at the rate of 4 knots, suddenly scraped the bottom and remained aground for nearly an hour.

Mr. Morgan, commanding the vessel, considers the shoal to be of coral formation. Whilst aground, the depth alongside was 17½ feet: when the vessel floated, no bottom could be found with 25 fathoms; and during the night soundings were several times tried for with 40 fathoms, but no bottom obtained.

The position assigned to the shoal ground (presumably by observation, as the ship had two chronometers on board), is about 10 miles S.S.E. from the southern part of a bank on which, in the year 1823, soundings, varying from 31 to 70 fathoms, were obtained by H.M.S. "Fly." It is also about 40 miles northward of the Hotspur Bank, on which the soundings vary from 25 to 34 fathoms.

Until this region of irregular soundings has been more fully examined, navigators should, in the neighbourhood of these banks, proceed with
