WE, whose names are hereunder written, having been sworn this tenth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, before the Queen's Remembrancer, at Goldsmith's Hall, in the city of London, have made the Assays and Trials of Her Majesty's Gold and Silver Coins in the Pyx of the Mint, and which, according to accounts produced by the officers of the Mint, were coined in the said Mint from the first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, to the thirtieth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, both days inclusive. We ascertained that the number of coins, both of gold and silver, in each packet produced to us, corresponded with the number which the officers of the Mint represented it to contain, and we took a coin or coins from each of such packets of Gold coins, making altogether twenty-six sovereigns or twenty shilling pieces, and fifty-six half-sovereigns or ten shilling pieces, and we weighed each of the said coins separately, so as to ascertain whether they were within the remedy prescribed in the First Schedule of the Coinage Act, 1870. We found that the amount of variation from the standard of weight specified in the said First Schedule of the said Act was minus a five thousandth part of an ounce (or .005) on the whole of such coins, and that, therefore, they were within the prescribed remedy as to weight. We then melted the said Gold coins so taken out and weighed, into an ingot, and assayed such ingot, comparing it with the Standard Gold Trial Plate produced by the Board of Trade, so as to ascertain whether the metal was within the remedy as to fineness prescribed in the said First Schedule to the said Act, and we found that there was no variation thereof from the Standard of Fineness specified in the said First Schedule to the said Act. We weighed the residue of the said Gold coins in bulk, and we ascertained that they were within the remedy as to weight. We then took from such residue five sovereigns and four half-sovereigns, and weighed and assayed them separately, and we found that such sovereigns weighed respectively,—the first 123.279, the second 123.272, the third 123.281, the fourth 123.304, the fifth 123.174, and that such half-sovereigns weighed respectively,—the first 61.587, the second 61.617, the third 61.637, and the fourth 61.567. We then assayed the said five sovereigns and four half-sovereigns separately, and we found the millesimal fineness of such sovereigns to be 916.8, 916.8, 916.8, 916.8, and 916.8 respectively, and the millesimal fineness of such half-sovereigns to be 916.5, 916.7, 916.8, and 916.6 respectively. We also took a coin from each of such packets of Silver coins, making altogether ten half-crowns, nine florins, six shillings, eight sixpences, and nine threepences, and weighed each of the said Silver coins separately, so as to ascertain whether they were within the remedy of the said First Schedule of the said Coinage Act, 1870. We found that the amount of variation from the Standard of Weight specified in the said First Schedule of the said Act was minus a seven thousandth part of an ounce (or .007) on the whole of such coins, and that, therefore, they were within the prescribed remedy as to weight. We then melted the said Silver coins, so taken out and weighed, into an ingot, and assayed such ingot, comparing it with the Standard Silver Trial Plate produced by the Board of Trade, so as to ascertain whether the metal was within the remedy as to fineness prescribed in the said First Schedule to the said Act, and we found that the amount of variation from the Standard of Fineness specified in the said First Schedule to the said

Act, was minus fifteen ten-thousandths (or .0015), and, therefore, that the said metal was within the prescribed remedy as to fineness. We weighed the residue of the said Silver coins in bulk, and we ascertained that they were within the remedy as to weight. We then took from such residue one half-crown, one florin, one shilling, and one sixpence, and weighed and assayed them separately, and we found that such half-crown weighed 218.381, that such florin weighed 174.745, and that such shilling weighed 87.572, and that such sixpence weighed 43.656. We then assayed the said half-crown, the said florin, the said shilling, and the said sixpence separately, and we found the millesimal fineness of such half-crown to be 924.8, of such florin to be 923.8, of such shilling to be 924.2, and of such sixpence to be 924.9.
