

venting the letting or occupation of houses and premises requiring disinfection; for prohibiting the retention of dead bodies; for compelling the speedy and proper interment of persons who have died of infectious and other like diseases, and the removal or non-removal and conveyance of corpses, and to prohibit the removal of corpses and persons suffering from infectious diseases in public conveyances.

16. To make provision as to the sale of coals, weighing of coals (including coke) and the carrying of weighing machines, or weights and scales in carts, wagons, or other vehicles and to inflict penalties for the breach of such provisions, and to make all necessary provision for the control of coal dealers within the city.

17. To make further and better provision with respect to the sale or possession of unwholesome food and to provide that Sections 116 to 119 (both inclusive) of the "Public Health Act, 1875," shall extend and apply to all articles intended for the food of man, sold or exposed, deposited or prepared for sale within the city (including in this expression where used in this Notice "the extended City") and that the medical or other officers of the Corporation may inspect and examine all such articles, and for that purpose open any box or other receptacle containing any such articles, and to empower justices to order such articles, when condemned by the medical or other officer of the Corporation, to be destroyed, and to make all other necessary provisions in that behalf.

18. To make provisions with respect to the employment of children for the sale of newspapers in the streets, and other casual employments.

19. To regulate the size, construction, and use of advertising vans and other vehicles of the like description, and to prohibit the use of any such vans or vehicles not made or used in conformity with such regulations.

20. To make provision and confer powers on the Corporation and their officers, police constables and others, for regulating the use of bicycles, tricycles, velocipedes, and other similar machines in the public streets and places in the city; for licensing and regulating places for public dancing, music, theatrical, or other entertainments or resort, for the regulation and keeping of good order therein and otherwise, and to provide for the entry thereof of police constables at all times for inspection and enforcing obedience to the law; for licensing and regulating the conduct and duties of luggage porters, light porters, messengers, and commissionaires, and for charging a fee for such licenses; to empower the Corporation to charge all expenses incurred by them or by the fire brigade in connection with any fire, within or beyond the city, including the use of fire engines or other appliances, fire brigade, services of constables and others from the individual company or body for whose benefit the service was rendered, or from any insurance company in whose office the property may be insured; to authorise and empower police constables and others to enter and, if necessary, break open any houses or premises supposed to be on fire, or which from proximity to houses or premises on fire or other sufficient reason it may be deemed necessary or expedient to enter or break open for the purpose of extinguishing or preventing the spread of fire, and to give the control and sole charge of operations at fires to the chief constable, or to the captain, or superintendent of the fire brigade; and to empower the corporation to charge for special services of constables.

21. To confer powers upon Justices of the Peace and all courts of summary jurisdiction to proceed against offenders refusing to disclose their names for any offences for which they may stand charged, and to order the delivery of goods wrongfully detained, or supposed to have been stolen, or unlawfully obtained, to the persons appearing to be entitled thereto or otherwise as they may think fit.

22. To make further or better provision for maintaining order and preventing offences, nuisances, and indecencies in the streets and other public places; for the regulation of bathing, the prohibition of bathing in forbidden places, and indecency whilst bathing or otherwise; for regulating the speed and conduct of the traffic and preventing obstruction and inconveniences, and the placing or exposure of goods and wares for sale or any other purpose in the public streets and footways; with respect to stray dogs; with respect to the pulling down and defacing of notice boards and the numbers and names of houses and streets, and the prohibition of obscene bills; for the regulation or prohibition of street processions, and the sounding or playing of musical instruments, singing or making any disturbance in the public streets and places; and the prevention of street cries; for the control of street musicians; for the prevention of persons assembling in streets and public places for purpose of gambling or betting, or annoyance of passengers; for the suppression of brothels, and for preventing prostitutes from loitering or importuning persons in the public streets and places; to compel the fencing off of roundabouts, whirligigs, and swings, and to control the speed of and otherwise to regulate the same, and to prohibit or control the use of swings and dangerous amusements; to regulate shows, caravans, and other exhibitions during fair time and at other times, and to prescribe the periods during which they may be kept open, and to prevent their opening or exhibition on Sundays.

23. To make provision for the good rule and government of the city, and especially with respect to the following matters, viz.: with respect to the laying out and numbering of any streets or roads (public or private), and for prescribing the line, direction, width, levels, and construction of any such streets and roads, and any extensions thereof, and for the sewerage thereof, and making communications therewith; the erection, rebuilding, and alteration of buildings, and the additions thereto, and the materials to be used in, and mode of construction of buildings, and the inspection and inhabitation thereof, and dealing therewith; prohibiting the erection of buildings until the formation of new streets; ventilation of open spaces around buildings, and the sanitary and structural arrangements thereof; prohibiting use of rooms and buildings over privies, cesspools, and middens, or other places unfit to be used for dwelling-places; the material on which and mode in which plans of new streets and buildings submitted for approval of the Corporation are to be prepared, and prohibiting the commencement of new streets and buildings before such approval has been given thereto; certificates of fitness on completion of new streets and buildings; definition of "new streets" and "new buildings;" removal of wooden buildings; empowering Corporation to execute or order execution of temporary repairs, and the lighting, cleansing, and watering of private streets; dealing with or removal of dangerous structures, and projections over streets, prohibiting or regulating the construction of any vaults, cellars, arches, or openings in or under any