2. The same vessels when they call at ports where the epidemic has terminated will be received with quarantine of observation, and previous disinfection, providing that during the voyage there has been no case of cholera on board.

3. Vessels proceeding from Chilian ports in which the epidemic has not existed, and which before undertaking the voyage have not traded at infected ports, will be also received in the same

4. Vessels coming from Chilian ports at which the epidemic has been extinguished, but which had been under its influence for some time, can only be admitted on the Peruvian coast when they have been disinfected, before starting, which act must be verified by a certificate by the Medical Officer on board, having likewise to submit on their arrival to a quarantine of (5) five days at the least and undergo another disinfection before being placed in free pratique.

5. Passengers and European merchandize coming from Africa and Chilian ports not infected, will be received freely.

6. Passengers and goods proceeding from Chilian ports in which the cholera has been recently extinguished, must be subject in Peruvian ports to the same regulations as applicable to ships referred to in Art. IV.

7. Vessels proceeding from infected Chilian ports will not at present be received at ports of the Republic; the ships comprised in this disposition being those proceeding from the zone situated to the north of Valparaiso as far as Antofagasta, excluding those two ports.
