Whitehall, October 24, 1890.

THE following Address was presented to His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, K.G., &c., &c., who, on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen, unveiled the National Armada Tercentenary Memorial on Plymouth Hoe, on the 21st day of October, 1890:—

May it please Your Royal Highness,

WE desire, on behalf of the Corporation of the loyal and Ancient Borough of Plymouth, and of the National Armada Commemoration Joint Committees, to give Your Royal Highness a cordial welcome to this historic spot on so interesting an occasion.

We further loyally address Your Royal Highness as the representative of Her Majesty the Queen, who has from the first graciously given Her patronage to this movement, and has approved our patriotic endeavours to worthily perpetuate a great event in the history of our nation.

It will be known to Your Royal Highness that near this spot were assembled, on the 19th day of July, 1588, the Admirals and Captains of the English Fleet then anchored in Plymouth Sound, to await the coming of the "Invincible Armada" of Spain. On that day the Spanish ships were first sighted, and from this port sailed the fleet, under Howard, Drake, Hawkins, and others, which was destined to be the means under Providence of defeating the enemy and saving the Country from invasion.

Three hundred years later, on the 19th day of July, 1888, the first stone of this noble column, raised to perpetuate the memory of our great deliverance was laid; this monument we have caused to be surmounted by a figure of Britannia, which we now ask Your Royal Highness to unveil in the name and on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen.

We would point out to Your Royal Highness that this Memorial is designed to illustrate the men and the deeds of that eventful period, and to that end the portraits of the chief Admirals, with their respective coats of arms, together with other devices, will appear on the column. Further, the inscriptions cut in the stone, namely, the Elizabethan motto, "He blew with his winds and they were scattered," and the historical signal of Nelson, "England expects that every man will do his duty," connect the two chief eras in the naval annals of our country.

All classes and sections of society, men of all creeds and shades of politics, have contributed with loyal and patriotic liberality to this commemoration, and we, on their behalf, humbly express our gratification that Your Royal Highness has accepted the duty which this day devolves upon you.

Be pleased to convey to Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, our united, most humble and hearty thanks for Her favours, and our continued loyal prayers for Her welfare.

Henry J. Waring, Mayor.

Dated at Plymouth, in the county of Devon, this "Trafalgar Day," October 21st, 1890.

To which His Royal Highness, by command of the Queen, gave the following most gracious Answer:—

"IT gives me much pleasure to be permitted to represent the Queen, my dear Mother, on an occasion of such great national interest.

"Her Majesty authorizes me to express Her cordial approval of the patriotic endeavours of the Corporation of the loyal and Ancient Borough of Plymouth and of the National Armada Commemoration Joint Committees to worthily perpetuate so great an event in the history of our nation, and She has learnt with satisfaction that men of all creeds and shades of politics have contributed, with loyal and patriotic liberality, to the commemoration of the national deliverance achieved by the courage and skill of British Seamen.

"I thank you for the kindness with which you have received me here to-day, and I will not fail to communicate to the Queen your expression of loyal attachment to Her Throne and Person."
