TUESDAY, JUNE 21, 1892.

India Office, June 17, 1892.

THE following General Order regarding the operations of the Hunza-Nagar Field Force has been received from the Government of India:—

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Simla, the 29th of April, 1892.

FIELD OPERATIONS.—HUNZA.

HIS Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the subjoined letter from the Adjutant-General in India, submitting a Despatch from Lieutenant-Colonel A. G. A. Durand, British Agent in Gilgit, commanding the Hunza-Nagar Field Force, in which are described the operations of the force between the 30th November, 1891, and 10th January, 1892.

2. The object of the expedition was to disperse the gatherings of Hunza and Nagar tribesmen which were threatening the Kashmir Fort of Chalt and the road between Chalt and Gilgit, and generally to bring under control the Hunza and Nagar chiefs, who had broken their engagements with the British Agent, and had long acted in open defiance of their nominal superior, the Maharaja of Kashmir. These objects have been fully attained.

3. The Governor-General in Council cordially endorses the approval expressed by the Commander-in-Chief in India of the energy displayed in carrying out the operations in this exceptionally mountainous and difficult region; and of the gallantry shown both in the attack on the fort of Nilt, and subsequently on the 20th December in storming the almost inaccessible position held by the enemy. The greater part of the troops engaged in this thoroughly successful expedition were supplied by those corps of the Kashmir army which His Highness the Maharaja has loyally reorganized for Imperial Service, and it is with special gratification that the Governor-General in Council has observed the good spirit displayed by these troops on this the first occasion of their employment against an enemy for an object of Imperial interest.

4. His Excellency in Council desires to convey to Lieutenant-Colonel Durand, and to all the officers and troops employed, the acknowledgments of the Government of India for the excellent service rendered by them on this occasion.

No. 2130-A.—FIELD OPERATIONS.—Dated Fort William, 24th March, 1892.

From — Major-General W. Galbraith, C.B., Adjutant-General in India.—To—The Secretary to Government of India, Military Department.

I HAVE the honour, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to submit, for the information of the Government of India, a despatch, with enclosures, from Brevet-Major and local Lieutenant-Colonel A. G. A. Durand, Indian Staff Corps, British Agent in Gilgit, describing the operations of the Hunza-Nagar Force between 30th November, 1891, and 10th January, 1892, and to express His Excellency's warm approbation of the manner in which the expedition was conducted.

2. In assembling and providing his troops in a thinly populated region of mountains and glaciers devoid of supplies, Lieutenant-Colonel Durand had to encounter very great difficulties, augmented by an unusually early winter, which closed many of the passes, and, but for his energy and resource, would have involved the postponement of all movements for several months. He was further deprived at the outset of the services of his second-in-command, Captain Barrett, 1st Battalion, 5th Gurkha Rifles, and a number of his men, who were disabled by frost-bite. By the 29th November, however, all arrangements were completed, and on the 1st December he entered Nagar territory, and the next day captured the strong fort of Nilt, as more fully described in the enclosures to my No. 279-F-C of the 13th January, 1892. In this brilliant affair he was severely wounded, and obliged to make over command to Captain Bradshaw, 35th (Sikh) Bengal Infantry.

3. For some days the obstacles to a further advance proved insurmountable, but a practicable path was at length discovered by Sepoy Nagdu, of the Kashmir Body-Guard Regiment, and on the 20th December the position was carried by Captain (now local Major) Colin Mackenzie, Seaforth Highlanders, with a loss of only two men wounded, the enemy suffering severely. This success was promptly followed up, and Major Mackenzie occupied Nagar on the 21st and Hunza on the 22nd, when all opposition ceased.

4. Despite the inclemency of the season the health of the troops was excellent, and their conduct all that could be desired.

His Excellency notices with satisfaction the good services rendered by the soldiers of the Kashmir regiments, who, on this, the first, occasion of the employment of Imperial Service troops in the field, gained the confidence of the officers and men of the Indian Army with whom they were associated.

5. The conspicuous gallantry displayed by Captain Aylmer, Royal Engineers, and Lieutenants Boisragon and Badcock, 1st Battalion, 5th Gurkha Rifles, at the storming of Nilt, and by Lieutenant J. Manners Smith in leading the advance on the 20th December, has already been reported,* and separate recommendations will hereafter be submitted in regard to other officers; but I am desirous by the Commander-in-Chief to bring more particularly to the favourable notice of the Government of India the services of Lieutenant-Colonel Durand, Indian Staff Corps; Surgeon-Major Robertson, Indian Medical Service; and Major C. J. Mackenzie, Seaforth Highlanders.

6. The despatches having been so long delayed it seems necessary to point out that in consequence of the difficulty of communication between Hunza, Gilgit, and India, they only reached the British Resident in Kashmir on the 17th instant, and were forwarded by him the same day to the Secretary to the Government of India, Foreign Department.

No. 249, dated Gilgit, 27th January and 6th February, 1892.

From Lieutenant-Colonel A. G. A. Durand, Commanding Hunza-Nagar Field Force. To the Adjutant-General in India (through the Resident in Kashmir).

I HAVE the honour to submit the following despatch on the Hunza-Nagar Expedition for the information of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

2. The Hunza-Nagar Field Force was embodied on the 30th November at Chalt, the fort at the boundary of Kashmir, territory to the north of Gilgit.

The force was composed as under:—

Section of No. 4 (Hazara), Mountain Battery—British officers, 2; native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 76. 1-5th Gurkha Rifles—British officers, 2; native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 188. Bengal sappers and miners—British officer, 1; native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 7. 20th (Punjab) Bengal Infantry—native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 18. Gatling gun detachment, 20th (Punjab) Bengal infantry—British officer, 1; native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 10. Signallers—native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 12. 1st Kashmir infantry—British officers, 2; native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 377. 2nd Kashmir Rifles, British officers, 3; native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 484. Punial levy—British officer, 1; native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 159. Total—British officers, 12; native officers, non-commissioned officers and men, 1,031.

3. Accompanying the force were 200 Pathan road coolies under Mr. Charles Spedding, with a strong European staff placed at the disposal of Government by Mr. Spedding to make roads.

4. The staff consisted of Lieut.-Colonel A. G. A. Durand, Commanding; Captain R. H. Twigg, 12th (Khelat-i-Ghilzai) Bengal Infantry, Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General; Captain C. J. Mackenzie, Seaforth Highlanders, Aide-de-Camp to His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief; Deputy Assistant Quarter-Master-General; Captain E. J. Aylmer, R.E., Commanding Royal Engineers; Lieutenant J. Manners Smith, Political Officer; Captain W. H. M. Stewart, Political Officer; Lieutenant F. Duncan, 23rd Bengal Infantry (Pioneers), Transport Officer; Lieutenant C. S. Williams, 43rd Bengal Infantry (Gurkha Rifles), Commissariat Officer; Surgeon-Captain J. R. Roberts, Indian Medical Service, Principal Medical Officer; General Suram Chand, Commanding Kashmir Troops at Gilgit; Kashmiru, Brigade-Major, Gilgit.

4. On the 1st December the force, strength as below, crossed the Hunza river into Nagar territory:—

Section of Hazara Mountain Battery—British officers, 2; fighting men, 76. 1-5th Gurkha Rifles—British officers, 2; fighting men, 188. Bengal Sappers and Miners—British officer, 1; fighting men, 7. 20th (Punjab) Bengal Infantry—fighting men, 18. Gatling gun detachment, 20th (Punjab) Bengal Infantry—British officer, 1; fighting men, 10. Signallers—fighting men, 12. 1st Kashmir Infantry—British officers, 2; fighting men, 257. 2nd Kashmir Rifles—British officers, 3; fighting men, 404. Punial levy—British officer, 1; fighting men, 159. Total British officers, 12; total fighting men, 1,031.

5. On the 2nd December the force advanced and captured the fort of Nilt, the first in Nagar territory. The fort was one of great strength, placed at the junction of two precipitous cliffs several hundred feet high, which form the banks of the Hunza river, and of a great ravine which here runs into it. Owing to the configuration of the ground, the fort could not be properly seen till the force was within 300 yards of it. The walls of the fort were of solid stone, cemented by mud and strengthened by large timbers. In front of the main wall ran a loopholed wall completely hiding the gateway; before this again was a very deep ditch encumbered with abattis, and a broad band of abattis filled the space intervening between the ditch and a precipitous spur projecting from the mountain above into the narrow strip of cultivated land before the fort. Although this hill was crowned with infantry, guns could not be taken up, and the fire of the infantry could not touch the defenders of the fort, who were under perfect cover. The attack had therefore to be delivered straight to the front over a space, narrowing to a width of about sixty yards. The guns, though admirably served, could make no impression on the walls, and the fort was assaulted by the detachment of the 1-5th Gurkha Rifles, and carried after Captain Aylmer, Royal Engineers, had blown in the main gate. The gallantry of this officer and of Lieutenants Boisragon and Badcock, of the 1-5th Gurkha Rifles has been made the subject of separate representation. The brunt of the fighting fell on the detachment 5th Gurkha Rifles, for, from the nature of the ground, the troops in support could be of little use. The Gurkhas behaved with their usual gallantry and dash, and the Kashmir Imperial Service Troops, showed remarkable coolness in this their first action. The casualties amounted to three British officers, wounded, three men killed, three mortally wounded, and one Native officer and twenty-two non-commissioned officers and men wounded. Eleven men of the Gurkhas and Sappers, who displayed particular bravery, have been recommended for the Order of Merit. The enemy's loss was over 80 killed and many wounded.

6. I had given orders that Captain C. J. Mackenzie, who with 20 men of the 20th Bengal Infantry and the Punial Levy, under their own Rajas, directed by Lieutenant J. Manners Smith, should, after seizing the heights above the fort, attempt to cross the great ravine and turn the enemy's position, and that the moment the fort fell, the Body-Guard Regiment of the Imperial Service Troops, who were in reserve, should follow the flying enemy and carry any defences on the opposite bank of the nala. The precipitous sides of the ravine, the paths in which had been destroyed by the enemy, prevented Captain Mackenzie from carrying out my intention; while Captain Bradshaw, who succeeded to the command when I was wounded, came to the conclusion that any forward move was that day impossible.

7. The force was, therefore, halted for the night at Nilt. In front of it was the great ravine running from the river-bed to the glaciers some thousands of feet above. The far bank was lined with sangars, which commanded every possible track up it. Its height varies from six hundred feet, where it joins the river bank, to twelve hundred feet, and it is absolutely precipitous. To the left of the force ran the Hunza river, on the opposite bank of which was the strongly fortified place of Mayun, standing on the high cliff of the river, and full of men. Half a mile up the river, on the left bank, was a strongly fortified ziarat, from which to the junction of the great ravine ran one continuous line of sangars. During the night all the sangars were strongly reinforced, and those exposed to shell fire were provided with such heavy roofs as to defy the seven-pounders.

On our side the edge of the ravine was held by a line of picquets up to the snow-line, the Punial Levy holding the upper positions.

8. On the morning of the 3rd December an advance was attempted, but after a loss of one man killed and seven wounded, including Lieutenant Gorton, Royal Artillery, was abandoned. Every sangar on the opposite hill was held in great force; the path leading down from the fort was precipitous, impassable for mules, and swept from end to end by a searching fire; while the path by which the enemy had fled the day before, and which ran up a cliff on to the cultivated land above the river, had been broken away and encumbered with abattis. It was, moreover, barred by a large sangar, holding about a hundred men, which during the night had been so strengthened as to be bomb-proof.

9. The position was one of great difficulty. The force was very small, and before it was an enemy many times more numerous than itself, holding a position of enormous natural strength and heavily entrenched. To attack the lower sangar with any chance of success seemed impossible, while an advance up the river-bed against the strongly fortified ziarat position under a raking cross fire from both banks of the river, though feasible with a large force, must have led to very heavy loss; and a very heavy loss, which would necessarily have involved many casualties amongst the British officers, already none too many, was not to be faced, except as the last resource.

10. For seventeen days the little force therefore remained stationary. It was evident that only two courses remained:—the first to transfer the force to the right bank of the river and storm Mayun; the second to storm the opposite bank of the ravine. A force was crossed on the night of the 12th December to capture Mayun, but the attempt offered such difficulties in the darkness that it was given up. Night after night a few men of the Body-Guard Regiment, who volunteered for the dangerous service, explored the precipice for a road. The task was one of great danger, for at the least noise a heavy fire was opened; and, what was far more dangerous, avalanches of rock, started by the holders of the sangars above, thundered down the cliff into the ravine below.

11. During this enforced inactivity the conduct of the troops was all that could be desired; and, despite the depressing effect which a check in the face of the enemy must exercise, they showed the most soldierly spirit, the Gurkhas, Raghu Pertab and Body-Guard all claiming to share the dangers of exploring the cliff face.

12. After many nights of patient searching, a Dogra sepoy, of the Body-Guard Regiment named Nagdu, whose bravery and perseverance deserve special mention, discovered a practicable path, and an assault was resolved on. The command had devolved on Captain Colin J. Mackenzie, Seaforth Highlanders, in the temporary absence of Captain Bradshaw, who had come to Gilgit to see me on the question of supply.

13. During the night of the 19th December a hundred men of the Body-Guard were moved silently into the ravine, accompanied by Lieutenants J. Manners Smith and Taylor, the former of whom was to lead the assault. Captain Mackenzie's report on the operations of the 20th and subsequent days is attached, and gives an excellent description of the operation. On the morning of the 20th four parties of picked shots were moved on to our bank of the ravine, and with the guns opened such a well-aimed fire on the four sangars guarding the path by which the storming party was to ascend, that not a man could show himself. Shortly after the fire was opened, Lieutenant Smith led off his party of 50 men, followed by Lieutenant Taylor with the rest. At first a wrong direction was taken, and after an arduous climb Lieutenant Smith found his way barred by a sheer precipice absolutely impassable for his men; descending several hundred feet, he again led his men up, and after another hour of hard climbing neared the top. The fire had been so well directed that the holders of the sangars were unaware of the danger which threatened them until the small party was observed from Mayun, and word was passed across the river and up the mountain side. Showers of stones were then thrown from the inside of the sangars, and crashed down over the storming party; but it had by this time passed the most dangerous points on the cliff, and was in safety. Lieutenant Smith, collecting a handful of his men, dashed forward, carried the nearest sangar, and in so doing assured the success of the expedition; for, as more men arrived at the top of the cliff, sangar after sangar was carried, and the roof set fire to. The rising smoke was the signal for a general saue qui peut; the defenders of Mayun streamed away in hundreds. Wazir Dadu and Raja Uzz Khan, the leaders of the Hunza and Nagar forces, fled from the ziarat, and did not halt till they had put the passes of the Hindu Kush between them and our troops; and the defenders of the positions on the Nagar bank broke up and fled for their homes. Our loss in this brilliant attack, led up a precipice, at this point 1,200 feet in height, with consummate skill and daring by Lieutenant Smith, amounted to only two men wounded. The enemy's loss was heavy, and amounted to over 100 men killed and wounded, with 118 prisoners. A separate representation was forwarded by Captain Mackenzie while in command with reference to Lieutenant Smith's gallantry.

14. An immediate advance was made by the force, and receiving on the way the complete submission of the Raja of Nagar, Captain Mackenzie occupied Nagar on the 21st, and on the 22nd December, the Raja of Húnza having fled, the Húnza people made submission, and surrendered the Fort of Húnza into our hands.

15. All resistance being broken down, active operations ceased on the 22nd December, 1891. The direction of affairs then passed to Mr. G. S. Robertson, Surgeon-Major, Indian Medical Department, the Chief Political Officer. Under his instructions a flying column followed the fugitives as far as Mi-gar, six marches up the valley.

16. I resumed command of the force on the 7th January, 1892, and on the 10th January the Húnza-Nagar Field Force was broken up; and a sufficient garrison being left in the country, the head quarters, with the section of the Hazara Mountain Battery and a detachment of the 1-5th Gurkhas, returned to Gilgit.

17. The conduct and discipline of the troops had throughout been admirable. As the officer to whom has fallen the honour of commanding a body of the Imperial Service Troops on the first occasion in which they have been called upon to fight in the interests of the Empire, side by side with our own troops, it is with pride and pleasure that I would wish to draw special attention of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief to the conduct of the Body-Guard and Ragu Pertab Regiments.

18. I have had these regiments under my orders for two years, and have seen them grow in efficiency under the careful instruction of Captain Twigg and Lieutenant Townshend, and the steady efforts of some of their own officers. The result has been most satisfactory, and they have proved themselves fit to take their place in line with our own regiments in frontier warfare.

19. They have shown coolness under fire, and discipline in camp. The attack by the detachment of the Body-Guard Regiment on the sangars crowning the side of the ravine was a task to try the best regiment; and if the Ragu Pertab Regiment had not the opportunity of showing such high qualities, yet they showed no lack of keenness when they had a chance of meeting the enemy.

20. I had under my orders a picked body of officers, and they showed that they had not been selected for nothing.

Captain R. H. Twigg, 12th (Khelat-i-Ghilzai) Bengal Infantry, Staff Officer at Gilgit, was appointed Deputy-Assistant Adjutant-General to the force. The whole of the preparations for the expedition, involving, in the absence of all departmental officers, the consideration of all transport, commissariat and ordnance details, passed through his hands. It is not too much to say that much of the success of the expedition was due to his untiring energy and tacit management previous to the opening of the expedition; while the manner in which he discharged his duties during the expedition met with the entire approval of the officers commanding. I wish to bring this officer most prominently to the notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

Captain C. J. Mackenzie, Seaforth Highlanders, Aide-de-Camp to His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, was appointed Deputy-Assistant Quartermaster-General to the force. He gave me and Captain Bradshaw, during the command of the latter, much valuable assistance in this capacity from his thorough knowledge of his duties. His determination and energy were of much value during the enforced inactivity of the force at Nilt. His brilliantly successful fight on the 20th December, which terminated the expedition, speaks for itself.

Captain F. J. Aylmer, Royal Engineers, did excellent work. His practical knowledge on an expedition where all scientific appliances were wanting was invaluable to the force. His gallantry in blowing open the gate of the Nilt Fort has been the subject of a separate recommendation.

Surgeon-Major G. S. Robertson, Indian Medical Department, succeeded me in the chief political charge. His intimate knowledge of the country and acquaintance with the people rendered his services extremely valuable. His refusal to treat with the Raja of Húnza, except after the latter's complete submission, did much during the halt of the force at Nilt to impress the rebellious chiefs and their followers with the hopelessness of continuing the struggle; while his judicious treatment of rajas and people when opposition ceased facilitated the subsequent pacification of the country.

Captain W. H. M. Stewart, Political Officer, acted as my galloper, and after I was wounded was employed in superintending the forwarding of supplies from Gilgit, which important work was executed most satisfactorily.

Lieutenant J. Manners Smith, Political Officer, was at first attached to the Puniali Levy. After the capture of Nilt, when the detachment of the 1-5th Gurkha Rifles had but one officer, he was attached to that corps, to which he had belonged. His gallantry in leading the attack on the heights on the 20th December has been reported on separately. In my opinion his leading the detachment of the Body-Guard Regiment on the 20th in the attack up the cliff deserves as great credit as the storming of the gate at Nilt. Indeed, until successful, it must have seemed more dangerous and difficult, and there are but few officers who would have been capable of finding a path and of rapidly leading men over such terrible ground.

Surgeon-Captain J. R. Roberts carried out the duties of Principal Medical Officer to my entire satisfaction. In the absence of many medical stores, &c., applied for from Kashmir for the use of the Imperial Service Troops, he improvised sick transport-appliances for carrying stores, &c. His arrangements left nothing to be desired, and his medical skill and care for the wounded was shown by the success of his efforts.

21. The following officers attached to the Imperial Service Troops deserve mention:

Captain L. J. E. Bradshaw, 35th (Sikh) Bengal Infantry, on my being wounded, took command of the force, and remained in command till the 7th December.

Lieutenant C. V. F. Townshend, who for some months had superintended the drill and discipline of the Ragu Pertab Regiment, had brought them to a creditable degree of efficiency, as was shown by their good conduct and discipline in the field.

Lieutenant F. Duncan, 23rd Bengal Infantry (Pioneers), was attached to the Ragu Pertab Regiment on the forward movement of the troops. Previous to this, and during the expedition, he was in charge of the transport and commissariat. In addition to this, at Nilt, and subsequently owing to Captain Aylmer's being incapacitated by wounds, he performed the duties of field engineer very satisfactorily. He is most energetic and untiring in his exertions.

Lieutenant J. M'D. Baird, 24th Bengal Infantry, was attached to the Body-Guard Regiment. He was posted at Bunji in November, and had the whole responsibility of forwarding grain for the use of the force. Owing to the complete breakdown of the Kashmir contractors' arrangements, very little of the grain required for the troops had passed Búnji by the middle of November. In ten days Lieutenant Baird put the whole of the grain required by me previous to advancing over the Indus, which enabled me later to make a forward move. The excellent manner in which the Body-Guard Regiment was handled in the advance to Nagar from Nilt was largely due to his presence.

Lieutenant C. S. Williams, 43rd Bengal Infantry (Gurkha Rifles), attached to the Ragu Pertab Regiment, after the fight at Nilt, was given the important command of the advanced base at Chalt, where he did uncommonly well. I have formed a very high opinion of his professional capacity.

Lieutenant G. T. Widdicombe, 9th Bengal Infantry, attached to the Ragu Pertab Regiment, was put in command of Nilt Fort from the date of its capture to the 26th December. He is very hard-working and capable.

Lieutenant F. H. Taylor, 3rd Sikh Infantry, attached to the Body-Guard Regiment, led his men well in the fight of the 20th, and showed himself a cool-headed and reliable officer.

Lieutenant C. A. Molony, Royal Artillery, had been attached to the Kashmir Mountain Battery, and during the expedition, in which it did not at first take part, was in charge of the Gatling gun. After Lieutenant Gorton was wounded, he took charge of the section of the Hazara Mountain Battery. During the action at Nilt he brought the gatling into action under a smart fire within 200 yards of the fort, and subsequently did good work with the guns.

Lieutenant G. H. Boisragon commanded the detachment of the 1-5th Gurkha Rifles, and showed himself a model regimental officer. His gallantry and that of Lieutenant Badcock has been made the subject of a special recommendation.

Lieutenant R. St. G. Gorton, commanding the section of the Hazara Mountain Battery, brought his guns into action against Nilt Fort at a distance of 250 yards. He showed marked coolness, and fought his guns as if on parade, his example being naturally followed by his men.

Surgeon-Captain H. B. Luard's skill and care will be remembered by all who passed under his hands.

22. Mr. E. F. Knight, who had accompanied the force in a private capacity, volunteered his services after the actions of the 2nd and 3rd December. They were gladly accepted, owing to so many officers having been wounded. He proved a most valuable acquisition to the force, and is spoken of in high terms of praise by all the officers with whom he was associated.

23. General Suram Chand, who commands the Gilgit Brigade of Kashmir, was with the Imperial Service Troops, and gave every assistance in his power.

Major Kalé Khan, the Acting Wazir Wizarat of Gilgit, has rendered much valuable service in arranging for and forwarding supplies.

Major Makhan, Body-Guard Regiment, Commandant at Nomal, had incessant work in connection with the passage of stores to the front, and carried it out satisfactorily.

In the Ragu Pertab Regiment, Subadar Gulabú and Jemadar Kishan Singh were prominent, showing activity and efficiency in carrying out orders. I should strongly recommend these officers for promotion.

In the Body-Guard Regiment, Adjutant Nain Singh, in the frequent absence of the officer commanding owing to indisposition, practically commanded the regiment. He is most efficient, and I should strongly recommend him for the command.

Subadar Man Singh commanded the fifty men led by Lieutenant Smith in the attack of the 20th. He was frequently selected to command parties where courage and steadiness were likely to be required. He is an officer whom I desire to recommend.

24. The following papers are attached :

- (1) Captain Mackenzie's report on the action of the 20th December, and on the movements of the force from 18th to 21st December.
- (2) List of killed and wounded in the Hunza-Nagar Field Force.

No. 1, dated Camp Hunza, 28th December, 1891. From Captain C. J. Mackenzie, Seaforth Highlanders, Deputy - Assistant Quarter-master-General, Hunza-Nagar Field Force, to the Officer Commanding Hunza-Nagar Field Force.

I HAVE the honour to report, as under, the operations of the Hunza-Nagar Field Force from the 18th to the 21st December, inclusive, while acting under my command.

During the 18th and 19th instant the force remained in camp, and the usual routine was observed. A parade of all the troops was held on the 19th instant, and a telegram from His Highness the Maharajah of Kashmir read out, conveying his congratulations on the success obtained on the 2nd instant, when the fort of Nilt was taken by assault.

On the 19th December, at 7 P.M., 100 rifles of the Body Guard Regiment (2nd Kashmir Rifles) paraded under Lieutenants J. Manners Smith and F. H. Taylor, and under cover of darkness moved across the exposed ground to the north of the fort and up into the nala beyond. This movement was performed so silently that the enemy were unaware of its having taken place. The party took their greatcoats and blankets, and remained in the nala all night, and when daylight broke, owing to their position and the precipitous slopes on each side, they were still effectually concealed from the enemy's view. Cooked rations for the 20th instant were carried in the haversacks. Of this detachment of 100 rifles Lieutenant Smith, with 50 rifles, was to form the advance of the storming party, and Lieutenant Taylor, with the remaining 50 rifles, to support. Each of these officers was furnished with written orders, detailing the course of action to be pursued by them. The portion of the enemy's position which had been selected for attack was towards their extreme left and on the summit of a precipitous declivity, which, without a break, descended some 1,500 feet to the water in the bed of the ravine.

The whole of the force was directed to hold itself in readiness for a forward movement by 10 A.M. on the 20th instant, and orders issued regarding the storage and protection of tents and supplies remaining behind, supply of ammunition and rations to accompany the column, and guards for the line of communication and convoys.

At 6 A.M., on the 20th instant, the following details paraded and took up a position on our side of the ravine, facing the enemy's sangars,—viz., 25 rifles of the 20th Bengal Infantry, under Mr. E. F. Knight (a volunteer accompanying the force); 50 rifles of the 1-5th Gurkha Rifles, under Lieutenant Boisragon; 30 rifles of the Ragu Pertab Regiment (1st Jammu and Kashmir Infantry), under Lieutenant Townshend; 30 rifles of the Body-Guard Regiment, under Lieutenant Baird; and two guns of No. 4 (Hazara) Mountain Battery, under Lieutenant Molony. The above were all selected shots, and, with the guns, were in position before daylight. It was considered necessary to keep all movements as secret as possible, to prevent the enemy placing more than their ordinary garrison at the point to be attacked.

The sangars, which commanded the line of advance of the storming party, were four in number, and the covering party on the ridge were told off into four parties, whose fire was directed on these sangars. The distance was 400 to 600 yards, and the fire was so steady and well aimed that almost every shot hit the particular sangar it was directed at, and prevented to a great extent any return fire; while it was equally impossible for any of the enemy to leave a sangar to hurl down stones, though, in fact, a considerable number were thrown from inside these sangars from those parts of them which were not roofed over. The fire of the guns was also directed on these four sangars.

The loopholes of Nilt Fort were lined at 7.45 A.M., and the dispositions generally were such as to prevent the enemy retiring from or reinforcing any particular sangar.

At 7.55 A.M. fire was opened on the sangars. Lieutenant Smith, after ascending the precipice half-way, was obliged to return to where he originally started from, having accidentally got on to a place which was quite impracticable, and rather to the north of that previously selected. However, at 10 A.M. the ascent was recommenced, and on this occasion by the right line. Foot by foot and yard by yard the perilous ascent was made, and the summit was eventually reached at 11.30 A.M. Lieutenant Smith manœuvred his small party in the most admirable manner, moving them from point to point as opportunity offered, and the showers of stones from above permitted. The first sangar was successfully attacked and captured. Lieutenant Taylor's party now commenced the ascent, and on attaining the summit, in combination with the first party, they attacked all the sangars in succession and cleared them of the enemy, whose line was now completely turned and taken in flank. The garrisons of the ziarat and of the fort of Mayun now streamed out of those places in full flight. Their numbers were respectively estimated at 100 and 400 men. Had they not fallen back, their retreat must have been quite cut off. Owing to the distance from Nilt, they were enabled to effect this movement with slight loss.

The guns and details of 135 rifles on the ridge were now withdrawn, and fell back on the camp. At 1.20 A.M. the force was formed up, and a general advance ordered. The road led round by the north of the fort down into the ravine, and up the opposite bank, through the large sangar, in which 92 prisoners were taken, including two wounded. Some time was taken up in removing the eight feet of stones and wood built up behind the door of this sangar. All the prisoners, 118 in number, were sent back immediately to Chalt, escorted by the detachment of the 20th Bengal Infantry under Mr. Knight, who had instructions to rejoin the main body again without delay.

The Ragu Pertab Regiment in advance marched directly on the Thol Fort, throwing out left flanking parties towards the ziarat and the sangars near it, which were taken at the point of the bayonet. Twenty-two of the enemy were killed here. Lieutenant Townshend occupied Thol, and had orders as to his subsequent movements and disposition of guards at important points.

The Puniali Levy, 65 in number, crossed the river at Nilt on the mashak raft, and occupied Mayun very soon after it had been evacuated, and afterwards reported that they had killed ten of the enemy there. They subsequently advanced along the Hünza bank of the river and destroyed the defences of the fort at Hini, having previously levelled those of Mayun.

The 5th Gurkha Rifles, under Lieutenant Boiragon, now formed the advance guard, and our left being protected by the river, a right flanking party of 50 rifles of the 5th Gurkhas, under a native officer, moved up the heights on that flank, and held them during the night; a few of the enemy were seen, and fired on on these heights. Gulmit was reached and occupied by a small guard, the remainder of the force pushing on and reaching Pisan at dusk.

Just west of Pisan is the strong position of the Gall Pari, but it was not held, and the pursuit was so rapidly pushed that some men were fired on at this place while retreating.

Pisan is estimated to be some seven miles from Nilt.

The path over the ravine at Nilt was not practicable for guns, but Lieutenant Molony with a sufficient escort was instructed to advance as soon as it could be made so. With eight mules carrying the guns and carriages, the ammunition being carried on coolies, Lieutenant Molony joined me at Pisan at 3 A.M. on the 21st instant.

The baggage with an ample guard was ordered to follow the main body with all despatch.

The villages had been set on fire by the enemy as they retreated.

The night at Pisan passed without incident, one of the picquets firing on some men who tried to approach. Ample supplies of atta and meat were procured from the interior of the fort, and a full ration served out to all the troops.

Our casualties during the 20th instant had been two sepoy of the Body-Guard Regiment wounded. The enemy's loss on the Nagar side of the river was about 100 killed (this number has received confirmation from local native sources of information) and 118 prisoners. Their wounded they carried away.

At dawn on the 21st instant the advance was resumed, the total force consisting of 100 of the 1-5th Gurkha Rifles, 250 of the Body-Guard Regiment, and two guns of No. 4 (Hazara) Mountain Battery. The baggage had not come up, but supplies were obtainable ahead, and ammunition accompanied regiments and corps on coolies. A few miles beyond Pisan a letter was received by Surgeon-Major G. S. Robertson, Indian Medical Service, the Political Officer, from Jafr Ali Khan, the Thum of Nagar, who said he was waiting at the village of Fike to tender his submission. An answer was sent to him saying that the force was advancing on Nagar, and that Mr. Robertson would interview the Thum at Fike as he desired.

From Fike the march was continued to Nagar, which was eventually reached at 6 P.M. The road was a very trying one for troops, and full of steep ascents and descents. When any occasion was afforded of doing so, fire was opened on the enemy on the Hünza bank of the river. The distance from Pisan to Nagar is estimated to be twenty-one miles.

Before reaching Nagar Mr. Robertson received letters from Hünza, which stated that the people on that side of the river were prepared to submit. This was considered possible, and, as any delay in the occupation of the fort at Húnza was unadvisable, I issued orders for Captain Twigg to cross the river and take possession of it with the 5th Gurkhas. This was satisfactorily accomplished by 2 P.M. on the 22nd instant.

The troops, though fatigued by the day's exertion, were in excellent health and spirits. Lieutenant Townshend, with the headquarters of his regiment, the detachment of the 20th Bengal Infantry, a detachment (50 rifles) of the 5th Gurkhas, and all the baggage, reached Samaya, a village about five miles west of Nagar, on the morning of the 22nd instant.

I have to thank especially the following officers for their cordial co-operation and assistance:— Captain Twigg, the Senior Staff Officer, whose valuable aid I take this opportunity of gratefully acknowledging.

Lieutenants Townshend and Baird, commanding respectively the Ragu Pertab and Body-Guard Regiments.

Lieutenant Duncan, the Commissariat and Transport Officer.

Lieutenants J. Manners Smith (whose conduct I have made the subject of a special report), and Taylor, whose united storming parties turned the enemy's formidable position at Nilt.

Lieutenant Molony, Royal Artillery, and Mr. E. F. Knight.

Surgeon-Captain Roberts, Indian Medical Service, Principal Medical Officer.

SOUTH AMERICA.—MAGELLAN STRAIT—EAST ENTRANCE.

Reported Dangers Eastward of Cape Virgins.

SEVERAL reports have been made of late years of vessels striking outside the limits of charted danger eastward of Cape Virgins.

Careful examination of these reports shows that the estimated positions of these vessels vary considerably, and in no case is there any evidence to show where they really were. All the accidents occurred during the night, and while the absence of feature on the land makes it at all times extremely difficult to fix a position, the velocity and rapid changes in the tidal streams still further at times complicate navigation.

Therefore, although it is evident that the absence of close soundings to seaward of Cape

Virgins makes it impossible to say positively that there is not a danger uncharted, it is not considered that there is sufficient evidence to justify the idea that there is one.

The following note has been placed upon the Admiralty Charts:—

The entrance to Magellan Strait should be approached with great care. The velocity of the tidal streams, the variability of their direction off Cape Virgins, and the absence of good objects with which to fix the ship, make the determination of position, and the steering an intended course, very uncertain.

This Notice affects the following Admiralty Charts:—Magellan Strait, No. 554; Cape Three Points to Magellan Strait, No. 1284; Cape Virgins to the First Narrows, No. 1336. Also, South America Pilot, Part I, 1885, page 298; and South America Pilot, Part II, 1886, pages 49, 50.
